THURSDAY MORNING, Feb. 20th, 1879. The illness of the Editor prevents any ex tended market report this week. There seems to be nothing important transpiring; wheat is coming down rapidly on the high water, and it is rumored that several large ves sels were recently chartered. The correct tions in the market report indicate the present state of the market. The Editor hopes to be able to do this matter justice next week.

Pemological Society.

CLARKE & BAKER.

This subject has been occasionally touched upon of late, and it is one that must interest a great many, and that will grow in interest as our orchards develope, and fruit culture becomes a more definite business. The need of a society of this kind is too evident to need argument, and we suggest that it is a good subject for correspondence and discussion. Let us hear from those directly interested.

STOCK MEN, and all others interested, should carefully read the proclamation of Himes, the Printer, of Portland, which will appear in the Fanner next week.
