Thursday Morriso, April 24, 1879. There is actually nothing of importance transpiring in the grain market. No vessels are on the berth, no wheat is in sight to be bought or sold, and millers are only purchasers of small lots to keep them supplied from day to day, literally doing a hand-tomouth business. Figures remain without change. The European market is dulf as can be, and very likely the supply in American hands and the prospect of a great harvest and unusual surplus on this continent has a great deal to do with the depression in breadstuffs. The reports from European countries is rather indicative of poor crops as far as indications can be understood, but all over this continent, from latest accounts, there is good prospect of a good yield in the coming harvest.

When this is understood, there is nothing more of importance to be said. We must await the coming of harvest to form any conclusion as to the price of breadstuffs in the

The Griswold Case

The appeal case of W. C. Griswold vs the United States was decided by Judge Sawyer this afternoon in the U. S. Ciroult Court, whither it had been taken on writ of error from the District Court. This decision reverses that previously rendered by Judge Deady, and places the plaintiff in his original position, in which he is held in $10,000 bail.

A Home in Salem For Sale.

Any person wishing for a good home in Salem, as for instance some family from the country wishing to educate the children, will do well to look at the residence lately occupied by S. A. Clarke editor of the Fan-Mer, advertised for sale in this issue. It is a very comfortable home, one of the most desirable and healthy locations in that heastiful city; the well is sunk forty feet in the local residual control of the most desirable and desirable bed-rock, and furnishes pure and delicious water; the stables are extensive, there is abundance of choice fruit growing on the place, and in all a full acre of ground.
