We take the following from the San Francisco Commercial Herald: Tonnage is rapidly accumulating in this port causing a very marked decline in grain freights to Europe, the large Br. ship Three Brothers (wood) having accepted a charter to a disport at 35s; or to Cork for orders, 37s 6d. She will carry some 4,000 tons of wheat. The ship L. Schepp, 1,000 tons less register, gets 40s to Liverpool direct. At this writing the disengaged fleet here and in ports adjacent aggregates 85,000 tons register. Hops.—The local market is firm. There are Eastern orders here under limits that cannot be executed at present asking rates, say 50c@55c for California, 45c@47c for second, and Oregon and Washington Territory 50c@52c. Call Board sales are not of any magnitude. Details, however, of each board will be found fully stated in these columns. Future months in all this year, ruling at No. 1 at $1 68@1 75 per cwt. Hebrew Census in America. According to the census of 1880, there are only 230,584 Jews in the United States. The immigration from Russia has added about the number of 17,000, so that the total Jewish population of the country may be estimated at 247,584. Of the total number, New York has 80,318; Pennsylvania, 20,000; Illinois, 12,625; California, 18,580; and Ohio, 12,551—these five containing more than half the Jews of the entire country. There are about 10,357 Jews in Maryland, 8,500 in Massachusetts, 7,588 in Louisiana, 7,580 in Missouri, 5,663 in New Jersey, and the rest are scattered over the country busily plying trade from Maine to Oregon. More than two-thirds of all the Jews in the country are congregated in the principal cities. New York contains 60,000; San Francisco, 10,000; Brooklyn, 14,000; Philadelphia 13,000; Chicago, 12,000; Baltimore, 10,000; Cincinnati 8,000; Boston, 7,000; St. Louis, 6,500; New Orleans, 5,000; Cleveland, 3,500; Newark 3,500—and so on down the list. In the United States Circuit Court in Massachusetts, Judge Lowell has given an important decision concerning the filling of new silver coin with base metal, and attempting to pass punched coin with holes thus filled. The former practice is held by the court to be an act of counterfeiting, and the latter is made subject to the penalty provided for the crime of passing, or attempting to pass, counterfeit money. These practices have hitherto been by many persons regarded as trivial offenses. To all such, Judge Lowell's decision should, through wide publication, be a timely warning. A Salzburg wine merchant, who was punished by two months' imprisonment and $125 for adulterating wine, was forced to betray the secret of his operation. It was this: Three thousand casks of wine, by the addition of water, alcohol, potato sugar, wine dregs and salt, were made to yield the enormous quantity of fifty-two thousand casks, which he sold at fifteen times its value.

price. Now merchants or speculators who are willing to invest in any product, want it at the beginning of its season to give them time to turn it, and such an offer will not be held open till the last hour of the last day of the season, when the new fruit of the next crop is beginning to appear. Also there are now in this market enquiries for pitted dried plums of any thick meated variety by the carload; who has got any? Now is a chance to sell; let us hear from you; last year we could hardly get a nibble for this kind of fruit. Also there is a market for all the refuse apples and pears for cider and vinegar, that will more than pay wages for gathering; so there is no necessity of allowing fruit to go to waste. Wool.—Still no change in common and low grades, but a better enquiry for fine grades. Hay is scarce. Good timothy will bring $20, and other qualities stiffening in price.

Swine Fever and American Bacon.

Commissioner Agent Davis, of Gloucester, England, says that American provisions are now sold in every city, town and village in the district; and in view of the fact that swine fever is now prevalent, and hogs are being slaughtered in large numbers to prevent its spreading, American bacon and hams will be in demand and the price considerably advanced. The swine fever has been in this district for the past two years in some localities, and all means have been tried to prevent its spreading. It has now increased to such an alarming extent that a royal commission has been issued to inquire into the cause and devise means to prevent its spread, and if possible, to stamp it out. This and the adjoining county of Berkshire are both noted for the number and breed of hogs, and the disastrous fever will have a distressing effect on the bacon market. The London market was supplied largely from this district with its fresh pork and bacon. It is generally supposed that the public markets for swine in this and other cities will be closed in a short time. A number of hog breeders have been served with notice to keep their hogs confined to their own premises, and to use all means to cleanse and fumigate the same. We cannot hope for a supply of bacon from any where but the United States, and the demand in the near future must be very large.

The Avotrupois Pound.

The standard of weights and measures for commercial purposes is the avotrupois pound, containing 7000 English Troy grains. It is precisely the same as in use by Great Britain and all other English-speaking communities and nations. By a statute of Edward III, (1296) it was enacted that a grain of wheat taken out of the middle of the ear and well dried be taken as the basis for a standard of weight—and it was further enacted that thirty-two of these grains should weigh one penny weight, of which twenty should make an ounce, and that twelve ounces should make a pound. The pound of this period, therefore, consisted of 7680 grains, but that afterwards adopted had only 5760 grains, because the pennyweight came to be divided into twenty-four instead of thirty-two grains.

This standard has remained in force without any further change up to the present day, and the standard pound weight which is deposited in the vaults of the U. S. mint in Philadelphia for safe keeping is a true copy of the official standard of Great Britain—and from it all the ordinary weights of commerce are standardized in the manner already described.—[Am. England's Dependency for Food.

According to the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian, increase of population in Great Britain during the last fifteen years has been about five million. Discussing the question of Great Britain's dependence upon foreign countries for food, the Guardian thinks that it has been shown that the food needed for the increase of population can be more advantageously got from abroad. It produces tables of the consumption of foreign food stuffs annually from 1876 to 1881, which show the following rate of increase: In bacon and hams per head of population, from 1.92 in 1876 to 18.19 in '81; butter from 4.19 to 6.33 pounds; cheese 3.32 to 5.77 pounds; eggs 13.19 to 21.65 in number; potatoes 5.10 to 12.85 pounds; and wheat and flour 140.21 pounds in 1876 to 216.92 pounds in 1881. The low increase in butter is for the reason of its perishable nature and increased home production, due to the abandonment of wheat and corn fields under stress of foreign competition, which afforded opportunity for dairy farming. The importation of wheat is equal to one sack for every man, woman and child in the kingdom.

British Mercantile Marine.

The new issue of "Lloyd's Register" gives the following account of the mercantile marine of Great Britain: "It includes 5207 steamers of more than 100 tons register, of the aggregate measurement of 5,938,800 tons, at the rate of $15 per ton, of the gross value of $89,022,765; and steel sailing ships amounting to tonnage of 1,722,657 tons, valued at $12 per ton, valued at $20,671,884; wooden and composite sailing ships of 2,840,238 tons, valued at $6 per ton, at $17,041,548, giving the total value of vessels at $126,736,197.

In addition to these, there are now in course of construction steamers of the aggregate measurement of 1,290,000 tons, valued at the same of $19,350,000. It is estimated the amount of capital invested in the Australian and Indian trade and on the coasts of China and Japan, in tugs, passenger steamers and fishing fleets, may be set down as $60,000,000, and therefore the aggregate value of the mercantile marine of Great Britain may be represented by the sum of $236,000,000."

British Capital.

The London Bankers' Magazine estimates the possession of British capitalists at the vast sum of $17,325,000,000, producing an annual income of $885,000,000. Their investments include the bulk of the British national debt, $3,750,000,000; bonds of the colonies and foreign countries, $5,750,000,000; Indian government and railroad stocks, $800,000,000. These are principal items, but large investments are made in canals, railroads, shipping, iron manufactures, and other kinds of industrial enterprise. The income, if divided pro rata among the population, will give each person in the United Kingdom about $23 a year. It is estimated that one-half comes from abroad. At every January, $100,000,000 is distributed among the holders of securities; about half as much falls due in February, a little less in March than in any month, except January and July. The last six months of the year correspond with those of the first in order of occurrence.

British and American Wheat-Growing.

That America can raise wheat a cost that will permit its being grown from the widely scattered districts of her vast territory, shipped over three thousand miles of sea on the Atlantic, and nearly six times that distance from the Pacific coast via Cape Horn, and sold in the market of Great Britain in fair competition with the products of that favored soil, is a fact established by the history of trade. The land system of Great Britain places a very heavy burden of public and private expense upon the soil, and adds to the cost of the crop. The extreme slowness with which agricultural improvements, as also improved processes of milling, are adopted in that country, is a hindrance to her progress and aids the American competition; the sickle and cradle are still used in the largest field there, while the progressive Yankee sweeps his fields with the automatic reaper and binder, and multiplies fifty fold his labor power.—[American Miller]
