THE GRANGE IN OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

In two weeks more the annual meeting of the State Grange will take place, here in Salem, and the report of the condition of things will be encouraging. Our worthy State Lecturer confidently asserts that the increase of membership in this jurisdiction will average six hundred new names. Quite a number of dormant Granges have been revived and some new ones added. We have always felt the usefulness of the Grange and wished the farmers of the country could be so persuaded to view it that they would work for the good of the order, and that is essentially for their own good. It can only achieve the highest results when all the people who follow agriculture join in it and labor for their best good through its organization by the co-operation that it renders possible. "Union is strength." Without being organized we, the farmers of the country, cannot make our strength felt and respected. Let us organize for success, and we have it already accomplished. It would require columns of space simply to sum up the advantages the farmers of the country can accomplish if organized for co-operation. There is not an item in a farmer's experience that cannot be improved by it. Small savings make vast fortunes. Instead of saving twenty-five per cent on purchases and sales, to save five per cent will soon make the farmer of the country rich, but they don't seem to realize it. Tell them they can save five per cent, and many laugh you to scorn, but they have only to work together for the certain gain they can realize to soon become independent of money lenders.

But it is not alone to save or to gain, the Grange offers opportunity to teach and to learn. The social feature is beyond value and the educational feature is most valuable. Meeting once or twice a month for mutual advice and relating experience is not a waste of time, but a saving, in many respects. It makes friends of mere neighbors, and co-operation brings into business relations those who convey interesting information as well as receive it. Co-operation is valuable as teaching us all business methods. Work in the Grange teaches parliamentary usages. Talking of practical matters in the Grange brings up facts that interest and benefit every one. Then, if well organized, the Grange can put a quietus on the ambition of any man in politics, who is lacking in true principles. He can be defeated "and never know what hurt him."

This will be the twelfth year of the Grange in Oregon, and it is time it be gan a new life and started afresh. The great increase of population should help it. No doubt thousands come here who were Patrons in their old homes. These should be invited within the gates and made welcome to the old order in the new land. They will bring fresh ideas and no doubt sound principles, and will appreciate finding such friends so far away from their early homes.

There is another matter of importance that we have suggested without even a response. This jurisdiction covers a country five hundred miles square. Oregon, Washington, and Idaho are comprised in it. The growth and development of that eastern country need recognition in some form by the Grange, as under present organization there is very little Grange growth or spirit east of the Cascades. If that country had a separate organization, as it needs and requires, better results would follow than we can possibly expect under present conditions. Of course, we do not wish to get rid of our friends over there, but we wish to see them prosper and believe they can do so to better advantage, if so organized as to possess a State Grange, to include the Inland Empire, well so called. The mountains could be the dividing line, and one State Grange with all Grange interests to the west and another to the east. We are not opinionated, and have no possible interest except "the good of the order." We believe that requires less area within a single jurisdiction, so that local interests can be prominent and the same kind of country be comprised within one jurisdiction. There is now too much diversity, too much difference, too sparse a membership, and too little inducement for activity. It is a matter, however, that can be safely left for the brethren east of the Cascades to decide for themselves.

CONSUMPTION CURED.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Coughs, Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, English or French, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp and naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

DR. JAYNE'S AGUE MIXTURE.

A CERTAIN AND EFFECTUAL REMEDY FOR Fever and Ague, Intermittent and Remittent Fevers, &c.

This class of diseases so common in all parts of the World, and especially prevalent in malarious districts and vicinages of water-courses, are almost invariably accompanied by more or less derangement of the liver, and frequently by a defective action of the digestive organs.
The mere breaking of the Chill is but a step towards completing a radical cure; the various organs of the body, especially the stomach and liver, must be brought to a healthy and vigorous condition before a permanent cure can be established, and this fact has been specially kept in view by Dr. Jayne in his treatment of these complaints. The use of Jayne's Ague Mixture, in conjunction with Jayne's Sanative Pills, as prescribed in the Directions which accompany each bottle, will not only

but restore the system, more particularly the liver and stomach, to a sound condition, and so prevent a relapse of Fever and Ague by thoroughly

ERADICATING THE DISEASE, and the best evidence of this is the invariable success which has always followed the administration of these remedies, as attested by the certificates published annually in Dr. Jayne's Almanac, and the wide-spread popularity of the Ague Mixture in those districts of the United States, where the diseases, for which it is adapted, most prevail.
