Hereditary Tempers and Habits.

Not less transmissible than any of those distinguishing characteristics which belong to personal appearance, are peculiarities of temper and habits resulting from them.

In that finely constituted animal, the horse, how important it is inheritance of temper. Not only in the sense of vicious temper, or temper free from vice, but in that of spirit generally.

Shelter the Cattle.

Cows should not be exposed to the weather; they may be turned out daily to water in sheltered yards.

Attention to New-born Foals.

Many foals are lost through want of attention at the moment of birth. When the functions of respiration are not promptly established in the new-born foal, efforts must be made to excite them by blowing violently upon the muzzle.

As soon as the mare has recovered from the shock, the material instinct should be encouraged by allowing her to perform the office of nurse to her progeny, which will be physically benefited thereby.

The Glanders affect Human Beings.

The Pacific Rural Press tells of a man in Humboldt county, California, who recently died after a few days illness of glander caught from a horse.

who reported several horses were diseased. A number of cases have developed in San Francisco.

In view of the foregoing facts, there is manifest need of great watchfulness and promptness of action on the part of those who own horses or have to do with them.

Those who have used the BOSS ZINC and LEATHER COLLAR PADS and ANKLE BOOTS say they are the best and cheapest, because most durable.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required.

The East River as a Commercial Highway.

The East River is a most important factor in the commercial prosperity of the cities of New York and Brooklyn.

It is stated that President Cleveland will open the American Exhibition in London next May "by means of the telegraph wire."

The unobstructed navigation of the East River would also have an important bearing on the question of national defense in case of war with a foreign state.

For these reasons the problem of removing the obstructions to the free and safe passage of vessels through the East River has engaged an increasing degree of attention for a considerable time.

An Inflexible Juror.

"There are some infernally obstinate men in this world," said Frank Funai the other day, "but I struck eleven of the worst specimens last week I ever came across."

"How was that?" "Why, you see, I was on the jury. In one case I'd no sooner laid my eyes on the prisoner than I made up my mind he was guilty, and the testimony only served to strengthen that opinion."

"And of course you gave in." "Not much! I had a duty to society which I had sworn to perform, and I determined to do it if it took all night. I reasoned with them calmly, tearfully, prayerfully, but it was no use."

"Finally I said: 'Well, my mind is made up. When you fellows get over your dashed obstinacy wake me up.' And I just tipped my chair back and settled myself down for a good nap. Then I snored. Ever hear me snore?"

The following is one of the unrepented laws of New Jersey, passed while the State was a British colony: "That all women, of whatever age, rank, profession, or degree, whether virgins, maids, or widows, who shall after this act impose upon, seduce, and betray into matrimony any of his majesty's subjects by virtue of scents, cosmetics, washes, paints, artificial teeth, false hair, or high-heeled shoes, shall incur the penalty of the law now in force against witchcraft and like misdeemeanors."

WIT AND HUMOR.

The Land of the Man in the Moon: There's a country remarkably quaint and queer. Where the air won't support a balloon, And everything's just as it isn't here— 'Tis the Land of the Man in the Moon. There people don't bother with "parties" at all.

The ladies all make most delightful wives In the Land of the Man in the Moon; Rascality's published, and honor thrives In the Land of the Man in the Moon; The milkmen are honest, the liquors are pure, No agents beset you with plans to insure, Quack doctors don't promise each ailment to cure In the Land of the Man in the Moon.

A beautiful woman, with an artificially-lightened color, once said to Gen. Shields: "How is that, having obtained so much glory, you still seek for more?" "Ah, madam," he replied, with more force than politeness, "how is it that you, who have so much beauty, should still put on paint?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

First passenger—"I have been over the country a good deal in my time and I think the Great Eastern & Western line is the best ballasted of them all. The track is perfect, sir." Second passenger—"Commercial traveler?" First passenger—"No, sir; I am an actor." Second passenger—"Ah, yes; I see."—N. Y. Times.

Jim Webster being once more before the court, his Honor asked: "Haven't you been in jail for stealing chickens once before?" "No, sah; no, indeed I hain't. Praise de Lawd foah His infernit goodness and mussy, nobody hain't cotched me yet. Hit seems as if I was protected by de higher powers."—Texas Siftings.

The King of the Samoan Islands has sent a gift to President Cleveland a jug of liquor, a drink of which will keep a man drunk for three weeks. We violate no confidence in stating that the President will not open this jug until the next delegation of Missouri office-seekers strikes the White House.—Philadelphia Press.

It is stated that President Cleveland will open the American Exhibition in London next May "by means of the telegraph wire." This idea is not new. We have heard of a man opening a store by means of a piece of wire. Sometimes the feat is performed with a nail. It is against the law, though.—Norristown Herald.

Manager of star actress (to hotel proprietor)—"You can tell the reporters that Mile. Zam Zam has forty trunks on the way, one of which is filled with diamonds." Hotel proprietor (with a look of relief)—"I am very glad to hear it, sir, but don't want the trunks for publication; we want them simply as a guarantee of good faith."—N. Y. Times.

When Dick Thompson, of Indiana, was made Secretary of the Navy some one called upon Mrs. Thompson to congratulate her upon her husband's elevation to the head of the Navy Department. She could hardly believe that the news was true, and said to her visitor: "Why, Richard isn't fit to be Secretary of the Navy—he can't even swim."—Detroit Free Press.

Young Lady (visiting in Kentucky)—"What a number of colored people there must have been at the political meeting last night! I see by the morning paper that nearly all of the vice-presidents were colored." Hostess—"Impossible, my dear. Let me see the paper. [Looking at the paper:] O, 'Col.' don't mean colored; it means Colonel."—Harper's Bazar.

Bagley—"You are looking for a short cut to fortune, I believe?" De Guy—"That's just what I am looking for." "Here's your chance. The queen bee lays 3,000 eggs in twenty-four hours." "Well, I can't help that." "Hear me out. Put your wits to work and get up a cross between the queen bee and the barnyard hen, and you will be a millionaire in a year."—Philadelphia Call.

"That young man will yet make his mark in this world. His forthrightness is wonderful." "What is remarkable about him?" "Why the very day he popped the question he first stepped into a lawyer's office to know what a divorce suit would cost. He is indeed a remarkable man, and never makes a movement of any sort without stopping to consider the cost."—Philadelphia Item.

Lady Midas—"And we were bustled into the train anyhow, my dear Mrs. de Tompkins; and only imagine our horror when the train had started, at discovering that we were actually in a second-class carriage!" Grisby (innocently)—"Dear me! Yes! Very awkward indeed! You'd taken third-class tickets, I suppose?" Horror of Lady and Miss Midas, who generally take a saloon carriage all to themselves!—London Punch.

"Poor fellow!" said the female friend of the fallen; "but probably your home surroundings were not pleasant." "You're out there, mum," replied the interesting criminal; "there was a billiard-room next door, a bowling-alley right across the way, and half a dozen saloons within a minute's walk. O, yes, my home surroundings couldn't be beat. Pleasant? Well, I should guggle!"—Boston Transcript.

In Malta persons are forbidden to come to the opera "in short sleeves or with naked feet." We can understand why there should be an objection to short sleeves, but why should the feet be excluded? Some of these notions of etiquette are too absurd for anything. A society young man doesn't want to stay away from the opera simply because his only pair of boots are at the shoemaker's getting half-soled.—Norristown Herald.

Mr. Faupus (to young lady)—"Ah, Miss Charmante, I have just come from the side of Mrs. Smith, who has been asking me about the beautiful young lady at the flower table." Miss C. (appearing to busy herself in arranging some flowers)—"Have you never known how I detest flattery?" Mr. F. (who thinks he may have blundered)—"O, but really, you know, it is dark over where she is sitting. One can hardly see you."—Harper's Bazar.

Use and Praise

OF HALL'S HAIR RENEWER have always gone together. Private recommendations, by persons for whom it has restored youthful color to gray and faded hair, or cured baldness, dandruff, or diseases of the scalp and hair, have been its best advertisement, and have created a great demand for it even where its proprietors have made no effort for its introduction. It never fails to do all that is promised for it.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

Cures all diseases of the hair and scalp which cause deterioration and loss of hair, and as a dressing is infinitely superior to all other preparations. It contains no alcohol to make the hair dry, harsh, and brassy, but keeps it always glossy, lustrous, and soft.

DR. JAYNE'S AGUE MIXTURE.

A CERTAIN AND EFFETUAL REMEDY FOR Fever and Ague, Intermittent and Remittent Fevers, &c.

This class of diseases so common in all parts of the World, and especially prevalent in malarious districts and vicinages of water-courses, are almost invariably accompanied by more or less derangement of the liver, and frequently by a defective action of the digestive organs.

The mere breaking of the Chill is but a step towards completing a radical cure; the various organs of the body, especially the stomach and liver, must be brought to a healthy and vigorous condition before a permanent cure can be established, and this fact has been specially kept in view by Dr. Jayne in his treatment of these complaints.

restores the system, more particularly the liver and stomach, to a sound condition, and so prevent a relapse of Fever and Ague by thoroughly ERADICATING THE DISEASE.

and the best evidence of this is the remarkable success which has always followed the administration of these remedies, as attested by the certificates published annually in Dr. Jayne's Almanac, and the widespread popularity of the Ague Mixture in those districts of the United States, where the disease, for which it is adapted, most prevails.
