

Poultry.

GEO. D. GOODHUE, EDITOR.

House scraps, that is the waste from the family table, will half keep a small brood of fowls, who will supply the household with fresh eggs all the year.

A Chicken Cholera Cure.—It is claimed that a mixture, made of equal parts of red pepper, alum, resin and sulphur, will cure chicken cholera.

The average number of eggs laid by an ordinary flock of hens is eight and one-half dozen to a fowl, yet instances have been recorded where a hen has laid 250 eggs in one year, and sixteen dozen is considered a remarkable yield.

Milk in any form takes the place of meat for fowls. So if you have milk to spare, don't feed meat. We know milk is the best and cheapest.

Fowls can be fattened well in a fortnight if they are cooped up where they can obtain gravel, and are fed on scalded corn meal, given them three times a day.

The people of San Francisco now pay out annually for eggs alone over $1,000,000, consuming 14,000 dozen daily.

LICE ON THE FOWLS.

There are three species of lice on this coast that infest the fowl kingdom. One is the small white, the large white, and the medium sized red.

Soft Eggs

One of the earliest forms of derangement of the egg organs is indicated by the laying of soft eggs.

Likely been stimulated and so weakened that they are unable to retain the egg until it has been coated with the shell.

Diseases of the Egg Organs.

One of the results of the domestication of poultry has been to develop enormously the fecundity of hens, and, as might be expected, this, if carried to too great lengths, weakens the producing organs and makes them more susceptible to disease.

Resources of Pacific County, W. T.

Pacific county, W. T., says the Oysterville Journal, is a fine county. It has as fine, if not finer, timber lands as any county in Washington territory.

Elsewhere appears the advertisement of Mrs. C. S. Rockefeller, Salem's popular florist, who offers collections of potted plants that are both rare and beautiful.

Heppner Gazette is Not a Claim!

Neither is it a mountain oyster; but it is a wordy paper scribbled up in plain U. S. language and printed on a sweat-power press in a part of Eastern Oregon.

The use of corrugated iron for roofing, siding and ceiling purposes, has been greatly extended of late years, and bids fair to become still more popular.
