

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous.

The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and to strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Wolter, Box 212, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

New Use for Aluminum.

Experiments are being made to discover if aluminum may not be used in the manufacture of high-class wind instruments. If this could be done it is thought it would be very desirable, on account of verdigris deposits, and as it is not easily affected by changes of temperature the instruments would be less likely to get out of tune.

The Oldest and Best.

S. S. S. is a combination of roots and herbs of great curative powers, and when taken into the circulation searches out and removes all manner of poisons from the blood, without the least shock or harm to the system. On the contrary, the general health begins to improve from the first dose, for S. S. S. is not only a blood purifier, but an excellent tonic, and strengthens and builds up the constitution while purging the blood of impurities. S. S. S. cures all diseases of a blood poison origin, Cancer, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Chronic Sores and Ulcers, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Herpes and similar troubles, and is an infallible cure, and the only antidote for that most horrible disease, Contagious Blood Poison.

A record of nearly fifty years of successful cures is a record to be proud of. S. S. S. is more popular today than ever. It numbers its friends by the thousands. Our medical correspondence is larger than ever in the history of the medicine. Many write to thank us for the great good S. S. S. has done them, while others are seeking advice about their cases. All letters receive prompt and careful attention. Our physicians have made a life-long study of Blood and Skin Diseases, and better understand such cases than the ordinary practitioner who makes a specialty of no one disease.

We are doing great good to suffering humanity through our consulting department, and invite you to write us if you have any blood or skin trouble. We make no charge whatever for this service.

CONSUMPTION

DICKENS' OLD HOME.

Demolition of Tavistock House, in Which He Lived Nine Years.

An interesting memorial of Charles Dickens is now in course of destruction by the house-breaker, says the London News. Tavistock House, Tavistock square, to which he removed on leaving Devonshire terrace in 1851, is being pulled down by the ground landlord, the Duke of Bedford. Up to the present the house, which was a handsome, substantial and well-kept building, remained externally just as Dickens left it in 1860, and as it stands in the engraving in Forster's "Life of Dickens." It has undergone some vicissitudes since Dickens' days. He sold it to Mr. Davis, a Jewish gentleman, of whom he said in a letter to Mr. Willis: "I must say that in all things the purchaser has behaved thoroughly well, and that I cannot call to mind any occasion when I have had money dealings with a Christian that have been so satisfactory, considerate and trusting."

Mr. Davis was succeeded by Mr. and Mrs. Weldon, with whom Gounod lived for some time, holding singing classes in the large drawing room. Of late years the house has been a Jew's college, and latterly has for some months been empty. It stands behind the northeast corner of Tavistock square, and, like its neighbor, Bedford house, which is also being dismantled, is too large for the neighborhood.

Dickens occupied the house for nine years. He bought it of his friend, Frank Stone, who had lived there several years. Dickens' house in Devonshire terrace had become too small for him, and his lease was falling in. Stone was also preparing a new house for himself, and moved his furniture into the Devonshire terrace house, that Dickens might carry out some changes in Tavistock house, which were planned by his brother-in-law, Henry Austin. Dickens and his family went to Broadstairs while these works were being carried out, and removed into Tavistock house in November. Mr. Forster tells us that "Bleak House" was begun in his new abode of Tavistock house, at the end of November, 1851.

In the first Twelfth Night in the new home the children's theatricals were being run, and were renewed till the chief actors were children no longer. "The best of these performances," says Mr. Forster, "were 'Tom Thumb' and 'Fortunio,' in 1854 and 1855. Dickens now joining first in the revel and Mr. Mark Lemon bringing into it his own clever children and a very mountain of child-pleasing fun in himself." At a later period the schoolroom was turned into a theater, Clarkson Stanfield providing the scenery and Cooke, of Astley's, planning the seats. "You will be surprised at the look of the place," wrote Dickens. "It is no more like the schoolroom than it is like the sign of the Salvation Inn at Ambleside, in Westmoreland."

Dickens was overwhelmed with requests from friends to see the play. "My audience is now ninety-three," he wrote, in despair, "and at least ten will neither hear nor see." So the play was continued for several nights. After he acquired Gadshill place, and made it a temporary summer residence, he still regarded Tavistock house not only as his London residence, but as his home. It continued to be his permanent family abode till 1860, when he sold it and finally removed to Gadshill. His nine years' occupancy of it has made it an object of much interest, and American admirers especially have constantly sought it out.

The Hen's Delusion.

Ephraim Knox lived in the center of his native village, and his hens wandered here and there at their own sweet will, to the frequent annoyance of his neighbors. Ephraim, however, was no respecter of persons, and considered his hens "as good as anybody," and desirable visitors.

When it was decided that the town library should be built in a vacant lot "next door to him," Ephraim was filled with pride and joy, and he and his hens superintended operations from the first.

Ephraim's brother Seth was not devoted to hens. One day he was passing the site of the library with a friend and stopped to view the progress of affairs. Ephraim's hens were there, cackling away as if their lives depended on it. Seth looked at them in disgust.

"What in the world are those hens making such a noise for, do you suppose? There ain't any grain in there," said the friend.

"Well," remarked Seth, dryly, "they've had the oversight of 'most everything in town. You know the cornerstone of the building was laid yesterday, and I calculate that speckled hen over there thinks she laid it!"

but prevents it.

Taken in time thousands of lives will be saved in this present epidemic. Every family should take the precaution to secure a supply of Peruna at once, for the retail and wholesale stock of the remedy may be exhausted by the enormous demand for it.

It is wisdom to have Peruna in the house even before the grip attacks the household.

It has been ascertained by a reporter that the following people of national reputation have given public endorsement and testimonials to Peruna as a remedy for la grippe:

Congressman Howard, of Alabama, says: "I have taken Peruna for the grip and recommend it as an excellent remedy to all fellow-sufferers." Congressman White, of North Carolina, says: "I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the grip. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it."

Miss Frances M. Anderson, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Judge Anderson, of Virginia says: "I was taken very ill with the grip. I took Peruna and was able to leave my bed in a week."

Mrs. Harriette A. S. Marsh, president of the Women's Benevolent Association, of Chicago, writes: "I suffered with grip seven weeks. Nothing helped me. Tried Peruna and within three weeks was fully restored. Shall never be without it again."

At the appearance of the first symptoms of the grip people should stay in doors and take Peruna in small doses (teaspoonful every hour) until the symptoms disappear. This will prevent a long, disastrous sickness and perhaps fatal results.

Hundreds of car loads of Peruna are shipped in all directions to meet the extraordinary demand of the grip epidemic.

Everybody laying in a stock of this valuable remedy in time to meet the terrible enemy, the Grip.

The extensive facilities of the manufacturers taxed to their utmost to meet the urgent demand for Peruna.

Almost everybody has the grip. Almost everybody must have Peruna.

Taken at the appearance of the first symptoms of the grip, not only is Peruna a prompt cure for the grip but it prevents those disastrous after effects so characteristic of this dread disease.

Peruna not only cures the grip

A Blow Emphasized.

"Did you feel the blow when that young woman threw you over?" "Feel it? She wrote on a postal card that I needn't come to see her any more, and I board in a house with three spinisters and five giggling girls."

What He Did.

Kentuckian—He called me a liar, sir New Yorker—And what did you do? Kentuckian—I went to the funeral.

The Right Deduction.

"I ordered 200 pounds of ice today," remarked the young housekeeper, "and our ice man carried it up himself. That shows he's strong, doesn't it?" "No," snapped the lord of the manor, "it shows that he weighed it himself."

Designing Landlord.

Traveler—Why do you allow that waiter to remain constantly so close to that young married couple? It evidently annoys them.

Landlord—Oh, because they keep ordering things, so as to get him out of hearing!

Her Dilemma.

Clara—How did you come to accept Mr. Saphead?

Dora—I had to. He proposed to me in a canoe and he got so agitated I was afraid we'd upset.

A Change of Scene.

"Why is that Filipino running in that precipitate fashion?" asked the tourist.

"Oh," answered the native, gravely, "he's merely traveling for his health."
