

"You've GOT To Earn MORE"

Isn't a question alone of whether you want a better salary—it's a hard condition of life that you must face to protect yourself and those dependent upon you. You can't stand still—if you don't want to go backward, you must go forward—that is, you've got to earn more.

Earning more means holding a better position—Independence, happiness, and a chance to provide for the future.

Not Easy to Wed in France.

It is no easy matter to be married in France, says F. Berkeley Smith in Success Magazine. One great thing in favor of so sacred a ceremony is an event requiring months of preparation, of the signing of endless papers, the certificates of birth and the consent of parents, until at last the wedding day, which has been arranged for to the entire satisfaction of every one concerned, including the legal authorities, arrives. If marriage is difficult, divorce is even more so. There are no such romantic and youthful adventures as eloping on a twelve dollar capital, handing ten to the accommodating parson and waiting for forgiveness with the change.

When Whistler Was Late.

Whistler, the artist, was one day invited to dinner at a friend's house and arrived at his destination two hours late. "How extraordinary!" he exclaimed as he walked into the dining room, where the company was seated at the table. "Really, I should think you might have waited a bit. Why, you're just like a lot of pigs with your eating!"

MAYOR DEFENDS COUNCIL

Legislature Asked to Give City Power to Operate Slaughter House.

Milwaukee.—"We can run a slaughter house and make it pay without destroying business as the scoffers cry. The biggest single item in homes is the meat bill and the packers are all millionaires." This is the way Emil Seidel, Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, defends the action of his city council in urging the legislature to give the municipality power to start a municipal slaughter house, cold storage plant and other business enterprises.

Duquesne's First Fight.

Admiral Duquesne, the famous French naval hero, was the son of a shipbuilder and at the age of seventeen was placed in command of one of his father's vessels. He sailed forth, espied a Dutch vessel, boarded it, compelled it to surrender and brought it into port. Not until he had been carried through the streets in triumph on the shoulders of his fellow townsmen did it occur to the officials that France and Holland were at peace. That fact being admitted, legal proceedings had to follow, as the result of which the youthful captain was warned to be more careful another time. Richelieu, however, heard of his exploit and, without considering the comity of nations, offered him a commission in the navy.

Vocation and Avocation.

"Avocation" is one of those unfortunate words that are constantly being used in a wrong sense. Strictly speaking, it refers to something that calls a man away from the ordinary occupation of his daily life. If you earn your living by drafting conveyances and interpreting legal subtleties and also are often seen in leisure hours with a camera in your hand and have a dark room at home, then the law is your vocation and photography your avocation.—London Telegraph.

Reveries of Long Island.

A teacher tells me that at a Brooklyn school not long since the class in geography was asked, "What are some of the natural peculiarities of Long Island?" The pupils tried to think, and after awhile a boy raised his hand. "I know," said he. "Well, what are they?" asked the teacher. "Why, said the boy, with a triumphant look, "on the south side you can see the sea, and on the north side you can hear the sound."—Exchange.

A Matter of Opinion.

"Mary!"
Father's voice rolled down the stairs and into the dim and silent parlor.
"Yes, papa, dear!"
"Ask that young man if he has the time."
A moment of silence.
"Yes; George has his watch with him."
"Then ask him what is the time."
"He says it is 11:18, papa."
"Then ask him if he doesn't think it about bedtime."
Another moment of silence.
"He says, papa," the silvery voice announced impersonally—"he says that he rarely goes to bed before 1, but it seems to him that it is a matter of personal preference merely and that if he were in your place he would go now if he felt sleepy."—Harper's Bazar.
