

Talk With Kellogg

Now is the time to buy property in Gold Hill; don't wait till you have to have it; buy now and make the investor's profit, a word to the wise is sufficient; if you have not the cash; talk to Kellogg he will get it for you; he has some real bargains just now in Gold Hill properties.

We guarantee 7 per cent and have never paid less than 11 per cent on saving accounts paid by the month, both large and small. The Pacific Building & Loan Association, Talk with A. E. Kellogg, local agent.

Own your own homes; stop paying rent. The Pacific Building & Loan Association will furnish you the money; pay by the month; just like paying rent; it costs no more; talk with Kellogg, he does their business in Gold Hill.

FOR SALE—Well improved farm of 42 acres 3 miles from Gold Hill, 20 acres under cultivation, water right, and irrigating system with place, plenty of timber on place, 200 fruit trees 3 years old, 1 acre in berries, good house, barn and out buildings, picket and wire fence, 1/4 mile from school. Team, stock and implements go with place. Price $4000, part down, balance on favorable terms.

FOR SALE—3 miles from Gold Hill, 20 acres placer mining ground, good title, all tillable land, 500 tiers of fire wood standing on the claim. No improvement on the land. This is a snap for some one that wants a small ranch and a pay roll right at their door. Price, cash $400.00.

FOR SALE—40 acres unimproved land in Sams Valley, price $20 per acre; also an 80 acre tract at same price per acre. Both tracts nicely located.

FOR SALE—Farm, 30 acres, 6 miles from Gold Hill, rich river bottom land, 7 acres in alfalfa, good improvements and fences, all under cultivation excepting 4 acres. Price $6000; $2000 cash, balance on one and two years time.

FOR SALE—160 acres of timber land 5 miles from Gold Hill, about 2 1/2 million feet fine fir and pine timber nearly all tillable land, plenty of spring water on the tract and nicely located for farming and stock raising. Price $20 per acre, or will entertain a proposition with mill men for the timber at $1.50 per M.

FOR SALE—120 acres improved farm 6 1/2 miles from Gold Hill, rich creek bottom land; 80 acres under cultivation. An old perfected water right, plenty of water; producing 75 to 100 tons alfalfa, can double that amount with more acreage; very rich placer channel running through farm. Price $9,000.00; terms reasonable.

I HAVE a client that will build you immediately a home in Gold Hill on corner lots, nicely located. Submit your plans for house to cost from $1,000.00 to $1,600.00. $250.00 cash down, balance on the installment, $20 to $25.00 per month.

Fire, Life, Casualty, Accident and Sick Insurance, Loans and Investments

Talk With Kellogg

With 135,000 copies of the publicity pamphlet mailed to the registered voters of the state, Secretary of State Olcott is now even with the registration list, and no more will be mailed until further lists are forwarded by the clerks of the various counties.

By a vote of 46 to 43, the town of Joseph decided at an election to buy what is left of the private water system of the Joseph Water Works company. The company and the city have been at war in the courts for some years over their rival claims.

Charles W. Thebaud, president of the United States National Bank of Vale, has been acquitted of the charge of doing away with $20,000 worth of trust property. On a former trial he was found guilty and sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary.

Three small railroad companies are the first to file their annual reports for the year ending June 30, 1912, with the state railroad commission. These are the Mount Hood railroad company, the Oregon and Southeastern railroad company and the Portland and Troutdale Electric railway company.

MRS. TOM'S PART IN THE ELECTION

Governor Marshall's Wife Has the Memory For Names.

ROMANCE OF THEIR LIVES.

The Notification of the Indiana Executive For Democratic Vice Presidency Honors a Record Breaker.

By J. C. HAMMOND, Of Democratic National Publicity Bureau.

Indianapolis.—Just about the time that thousands of friends of Governor Thomas Riley Marshall were anxiously wanting to shake his hand in congratulation over his acceptance as candidate of vice president on the Democratic ticket a smiling woman stepped before him, and if one could have heard what she whispered in his ear it would have been something like "Now, hurry in, Tom, and change your clothes."

And Tom Marshall forgot to shake hands with the enthusiastic friends until he had carried out the orders of Mrs. Tom.

Indiana has honored four of her sons as vice presidential candidates on the Democratic ticket, but the crowds that greeted Governor Marshall in the big coliseum in the state fair grounds here today were the greatest in the history of the party.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

The west wanted to show the east what could be done in notification honors, and while Mrs. Marshall was happy, of course, over the honors for her husband, she was also worried, for her husband comes mighty close to being father, husband, son and partner all in one. And when a woman has that combination on her hands to care for has every right to be worried.

Governor Marshall will never gain any honors as a hammer thrower. He is not built that way.

While all the country was reading the vigorous words of Governor Marshall which told the voters what he expects Democracy to do in carrying out the pledges for the next four years it's worth while to know what part a woman is taking in the affairs of the campaign—how Tom Marshall happens to be in the position in which he stands today.

The good people of Columbia City, Ind., never thought Thomas Riley Marshall was a "marrying man." For forty years he had lived with his parents, nursing both his father and mother, who were invalids, which was the reason Governor Marshall was not a marrying man. He felt his first duty was to his parents.

Meeting Mrs. Marshall. After the death of his parents Governor Marshall dived deeper into his law practice, and one day an urgent case took him to Angola, Ind. His duties called him to the county clerk's office, and there he met Miss Lois Kimsey, daughter of the county clerk, who was assisting her father in the office.

From that day Governor Marshall had more business around the county clerk's office in Angola than any lawyer in half a dozen nearby counties.

Governor Marshall was forty-two years of age when he was married, Mrs. Marshall being nearly twenty years his junior.

The Marshalls had been married only a few weeks when the future vice president was called to an adjoining county on a case that would consume some five or six weeks of his time.

"Now, I did not want to be starting off like that," Governor Marshall explained to a friend one day, so I just told Mrs. Marshall that I thought she should go along. And she did."

Since then Governor Marshall has never made a trip without Mrs. Marshall going along. They have traveled all over the country together; they go to banquets and political meetings together until the friends of the Indiana executive refer to him and his wife as the "pards."

"Tom Marshall is not overstrong," explained one of his friends. "While not a delicate man, his constitution is not of the most vigorous type."

"When he gets into a political battle

She decided that he had better give up some of the handshaking and take care of his health first. So when you find him making a speech he does not stay around to hear the applause of the audience. Rather, he hurries to his room and changes his clothing.

"Some people have said that Tom Marshall is not a handshaking politician. He is not. His wife thinks it is more important to guard his health than to carry out the old time policy, and she is correct, as she is in most all other things."

"Home Air" Prevails. The Marshall home is typical of the mistress. It is a home of books, and still one does not feel "bookish." One of the Marshall friends said he always felt like eating when he entered the Marshall home in Columbia City or the executive mansion at Indianapolis.

Mrs. Marshall believes in a home first, and the "home air" prevails.

"If Governor Marshall ever occupied the White House people would not know that historic institution," declares an admirer. "Mrs. Marshall would have it a real home. People would feel comfortable even in the midst of the gold and glitter."

But it is not only as a wife and the mistress of a home that Mrs. Marshall shows her ability. She is a politician and a clever one. She also has a remarkable memory.

Governor Marshall has earned the reputation of being in a class of story tellers all by himself. He can remember stories, but he forgets names. A name is something to be cast aside with Governor Marshall, and this is one of the regrets of his life, if he has any regrets. The governor is not a worrying man. He is somewhat a fatalist, but if he could he would like to remember names; but, not having that ability, he does not worry, for Mrs. Marshall is the new rememberer of the family.

She has a peculiar ability along this line. Not only does she remember the last name, but any combination of names comes as second nature to her, and she carries this ability on down to the children and cousins of any one seeking the governor.

While the governor is shaking hands and trying to remember whether his caller is Jones or Smith, Mrs. Marshall is busy supplying the information and asking about all the relatives.

Ideal Partners. Governor Marshall has no brothers or sisters, and his parents being dead leaves him somewhat barren of relatives.

Governor Marshall's friends are enthusiastic over his home life. When he has started on talking of his wife a new light in the Hoosier executive comes to the surface.

They come near being ideal married partners.

"I was talking to Tom one day," explained one of his most intimate friends. "We were leaning back, and Tom had been telling some of his good stories to illustrate various topics of our conversation. We were waiting for Mrs. Marshall to come back from a shopping tour, and I happened to remark that I liked Mrs. Marshall better every time I met her."

"Well, now that's the way she strikes me, Jim," he said. "We have been married some sixteen years, and as time goes that is a long or short period, just as you think. To me it is but a fleeting day. Then I think back over my married life and find I have grown to know Mrs. Marshall better every day. A man must not only love but he must also respect his partner in this life—respect her in all things. She must have wonderful qualities to make the love and respect grow deeper and better each day. That's been my history."

"The fact that Mrs. Marshall has been in sympathy in my work, my play, my life, is good. But I have been Having exhausted his supply of adjectives in denouncing Taft, Roosevelt is now leading a campaign of denunciation of every one who does not agree with himself.

Farmers have pulled against the short end of the yoke long enough. Wilson and Marshall promise to see that the pulling is made more nearly even.

Wonder how the colonel likes being an outcast?

Open River Transportation Service Not to Be Discontinued.

Portland.—Through a concerted effort on the part of shippers of eastern Oregon and western Idaho, boat service of the Open River Transportation company between Portland and the interior, along the Columbia river, will not be discontinued at the end of this month, as had been arranged by the directors of the company, owing to a large deficit in the present year's finances of the company. Plans for the continuance of the service were made at a meeting of the stockholders of the company of Portland and other cities and towns of Oregon, Idaho and Washington, held at the chamber of commerce.

Through the new arrangement money will be raised in Portland by a voluntary assessment to pay off the present season's deficit of about $17,000, and Portland and the interior cities will arrange to handle the deficit of next year if enough business cannot be secured to place the boat line on a paying basis.

not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his action on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being Governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

"Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license.

"Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some book.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor:

- To curtail child labor.
- To regulate sale of cold storage products.
- To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children.
- To prevent blindness at birth.
- To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.
- To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.
- To establish public playgrounds.
- To improve pure food laws.
- To protect against loan sharks.
- To provide police court matrons.
- To prevent traffic in white slaves.
- To permit night schools.
- To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.
- Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:
- To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.
- To establish free employment agencies.
- To require full train crews.
- To require safety devices on switch engines.
- To require efficient headlights on engines.
- To require standard cabooses.
- To provide weekly wage, etc.

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive, nevertheless he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his action on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being Governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

"Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license.

"Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some book.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor:

- To curtail child labor.
- To regulate sale of cold storage products.
- To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children.
- To prevent blindness at birth.
- To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.
- To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.
- To establish public playgrounds.
- To improve pure food laws.
- To protect against loan sharks.
- To provide police court matrons.
- To prevent traffic in white slaves.
- To permit night schools.
- To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.

Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:

- To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.
- To establish free employment agencies.
- To require full train crews.
- To require safety devices on switch engines.
- To require efficient headlights on engines.
- To require standard cabooses.
- To provide weekly wage, etc.

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive, nevertheless he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his action on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being Governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

"Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license.

"Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some book.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor:

- To curtail child labor.
- To regulate sale of cold storage products.
- To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children.
- To prevent blindness at birth.
- To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.
- To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.
- To establish public playgrounds.
- To improve pure food laws.
- To protect against loan sharks.
- To provide police court matrons.
- To prevent traffic in white slaves.
- To permit night schools.
- To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.

Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:

- To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.
- To establish free employment agencies.
- To require full train crews.
- To require safety devices on switch engines.
- To require efficient headlights on engines.
- To require standard cabooses.
- To provide weekly wage, etc.

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive, nevertheless he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his action on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being Governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

"Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license.

"Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some book.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor:

- To curtail child labor.
- To regulate sale of cold storage products.
- To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children.
- To prevent blindness at birth.
- To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.
- To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.
- To establish public playgrounds.
- To improve pure food laws.
- To protect against loan sharks.
- To provide police court matrons.
- To prevent traffic in white slaves.
- To permit night schools.
- To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.

Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:

- To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.
- To establish free employment agencies.
- To require full train crews.
- To require safety devices on switch engines.
- To require efficient headlights on engines.
- To require standard cabooses.
- To provide weekly wage, etc.

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive, nevertheless he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are

STEINHOFF The Architect and Builder

Is here to stay, and is very much alive to the needs of this growing city, and will design and execute anything in the Building line. Brick, Stone and Cement. Plain or artistic

Cement and Iron Grill Fences A Specialty

Summons, Suit in Equity In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Jackson County.

A. W. McCutcheon, plaintiff, vs. Icedore Viola McCutchen, defendant.

Summons, Suit in Equity. To Icedore Viola McCutchen, the above named Defendant.

In the name of the state of Oregon you are hereby commanded to appear and answer the plaintiff's complaint against you now on file in the above entitled Court and cause, on or before the last day prescribed in the order for publication of summons herein, to-wit, on or before the 9th day of November, 1912, said date being the expiration of six weeks from the day of first publication of this alias summons.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer for want thereof plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for in the complaint, to-wit:

That the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant herein be dissolved.

This alias summons is published in the Gold Hill News, by order of the honorable F. M. Calkins, judge of the above entitled court, which said order was made and entered of record on the 19th day of September, 1912, which order requires you to appear and answer said complaint on or before the last day prescribed in said order for publication of this summons. Date of first publication is the 21st day of September, 1912, and the date of the last publication is the 9th day of November, 1912.

DEARMOND & DEARMOND, Attorneys for Plaintiff.

GOLD HILL OPERA HOUSE Seating Capacity 600. Stage 50x22.

It is the object of the management to book only first class attractions and about two performances a month. The stage has been enlarged and new dressing rooms added to the building with new scenery and the present stage, we can stage any kind of a production. The House in the future will be booked through the Northwestern Theatrical association having signed a contract to this effect, and they have assured us that they will use their best endeavors to only book good companies. W. H. STICKEL, Manager

Just a word!

Miners, I can sharpen, repair or make tools, and guarantee my work to stand the racket; try me and be shown

C. F. CARTER BLACKSMITH

In Oregon on August 1 there were 9698 registered motor vehicles and 1586 licensed chauffeurs. Automobile license fees to the amount of $40,408.50 had been collected by the secretary of state, of which Portland paid $20,065.

Following a battle with three men who resisted arrest, H. Z. Strand, city marshal of Harney City, 18 miles from Burns, was shot and killed there, and James Bucklin, Otto Lowell and Burbank Clay are under arrest as a result.

Governor West received advice from the department of agriculture that Oregon's proportion of the revenues from the national forest, allotted for the building of roads through the forests, was $17,023.81, which is now available.

A New and Complete Line of Fishing Tackle

BON TON

We have spoon hooks especially constructed for Rogue River. The best assortment of cane poles in the town. Something new in flies.

Give us a trial

We also issue hunting and fishing licenses

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

This great institution opens its doors for the fall semester on September 20th. Courses of instruction include: General Agriculture, Agronomy, Animal Husbandry, Dairy Husbandry, Bacteriology, Botany and Plant Pathology, Poultry Husbandry, Horticulture, Entomology, Veterinary Science, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Mining Engineering, Highway Engineering, Domestic Science, Domestic Art, Commerce, Forestry, Pharmacy, Zoology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, English Language and Literature, Public Speaking, Modern Languages, History, Art, Architecture, Industrial Pedagogy, Physical Education, Military Science and Tactics, and Music. Catalogue and illustrated literature mailed free on application. Address: Registrar, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon. School year opens September 20th.

MINERS

If you want your tools put in good shape be sure to see

CHARLES KELL

S. P. Time Card

Northbound
No. 20		8:13 a. m.
No. 24 (motor)		11:02 a. m.
No. 32 (motor)		3:27 p. m.
No. 16		6:44 p. m.
Southbound
No. 23 (motor)		8:13 a. m.
No. 31 (motor)		1:42 p. m.
No. 15		2:55 p. m.
No. 19		10:46 p. m.