That Southern Oregon can grow better flowers than the district from which they are named and flourish, is attested by Lynn W. Smith, who picked a Shasta daisy from his home flower garden this week. The flower measured 4 1/4 inches across—a trifle larger and fully as pretty as the specifications required of a perfect specimen.

Extensive alterations of the Truax Cafe, completed last week, have transformed that popular eating place into one of the coziest public dining rooms in Southern Oregon. The large semi-circular lunch counter has given room to more tables, while a smaller counter will serve the quick lunch trade. One of the added conveniences is a private booth for dinner parties.

At the school meeting held Monday the endorsement of W. W. Truax to succeed himself as director was unanimous. For the office of clerk, Mrs. Myrtle Day and Mrs. M. E. Patrick were placed in nomination. Mrs. Day being elected by a vote of 17 to 10. Mrs. Patrick, the retiring clerk, has held the position for three years, serving in a thoroughly efficient and competent manner.

James Pitts returned on Wednesday from Roseburg, whither he was hailed on the Saturday previous to answer to the charge of obtaining money under false pretense. The charge was preferred by Richard Stubbs, of Roseburg, and arose from the sale of restaurant property in that city, owned by Pitts, to Stubbs. A consideration of the evidence showed it to be wholly insufficient, and the case was accordingly dismissed. Pitts, who spent several weeks in this city recently, is now employed at the U. S. Cafe in Medford.

A double wedding occurred at Jacksonville Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Lulu M. Baker was wedded to John J. Ritter, and Miss Minnie M. Neathamer to Henry Baker. All of the contracting parties to the happy ceremony are residents of Gold Hill and vicinity, where they have many friends to wish them well. The ceremony was performed by the Presbyterian pastor of the county seat, and the nuptials were a complete and agreeable surprise to Gold Hill folks.

Edwin P. Ingle, representing the Southern Pacific, was in this city Tuesday organizing a local branch of the Sunset Oregon Service Bureau. The attitude of the company in asking the co-operation of citizens to develop their community is a commendable one, and the plan of campaign well thought out. Through the medium of the Sunset magazine each community represented in the Bureau will receive special write-ups at various times during the five year campaign now inaugurated. The membership in this city was restricted to five, as follows: D. H. Miller, R. H. Moore, C. S. Redfield, Lynn W. Smith and J. C. Burch.

Thomas Perry, well known in this city, died at the home of his son, John, in Grants Pass Monday evening. Mr. Perry had appeared to be in good health throughout the day, and was resting upon the lawn when death suddenly claimed him. The examining physician pronounced his demise to have been caused by heart failure, doubtless aggravated by the extreme heat of the day. During the past winter Mr. Perry, who was 76 years of age, passed much of his time at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. R. Walker, in this city. Other surviving children are Mrs. Mae Simons, now visiting here, Mrs. Annie Casbolt and Mrs. Carrie Arnold of Walla Walla, Wash., and Chester Perry, of the same city. Funeral services were conducted at Grants Pass on Thursday.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, suffragette leader, was arrested in London as she was preparing to lead a small army of her followers in a march on the parliament house.

The present business depression is due largely to a state of mind, according to a statement issued by Frank A. Vanderlip, at a meeting of the New York Bankers' association.

General Villa has notified the state department at Washington that the property left by William Benton, British subject, who was killed in Mexico, would be protected in the interests of the widow.

Vice President Marshall scored the practice of usurious profits in an address before the University of Maine. Changed public opinion should be the aim of young men who assume to take leadership, he said.
