If a friend of yours does well,
Tell him so.
Don't go raise a jealous yell—
Tell him so.
He'll be glad to know you're glad,
Glad it doesn't make you sad.
Finest fun you ever had—
Tell him so.
If you like your brother's work,
Tell him so.
Drive away the doubts that lurk—
Tell him so.
He may feel that he has failed,
By grim doubt may be assailed.
By your word he'll be regaled—
Tell him so.
If you think his work is punk,
Tell him so.
It will rouse his fighting spunk—
Tell him so.
Tell him he is in a rut.
He'll just think you are a nut—
Mabe knock your block off! But
Tell him so.
—Strickland W. Gillilan.

The year 1816 is said to have had no summer; that ice and frost prevailed in every month of the year; that no corn or fruit were grown, and that every other crop was an almost total failure. And yet one will grumble at the weather we are having.

The world needs the boy and the girl who will make good. It will find a place of increasing value for the one who refuses to be discouraged, to quit trying. There is no place in the economy of business or society for the shirk, the liar, the trickster or the quitter. Be true to your highest ideal and make every difficulty but the stepping stone to something better. Grit and gumption always win.
