AGAIN THE RUSH FOR GOLD

"MAIN STREET" IN RED LAKE
International Photo

By PROEHL HALLER JAKLON
THE gold fever has broken out anew. Recent strikes in two different parts of North America are drawing adventurous souls from all parts of the country to reenact with modern touches some of the scenes of the Klondike gold strike in the '90s.

The Red Lake region of British Columbia is the goal of hundreds of young and old prospectors, while in our own country we find the Kramer hills on the Mojave desert in California the objective of other hordes of adventurers stirred to action by the lure of gold.
Lorne Howie last summer struck gold in a wide band of quartz at Red Lake. Now with more than 1,500 claims already staked, they're calling it Canada's "greatest" strike. Howie and his companions reported how they had discovered a vein of gold nearly 1,000 feet long, running from 10 to 50 feet in width. Subsequently the vein was observed to run for a distance of more than 25 miles.

Red Lake is about 150 miles from the nearest railroad, but as distance is nothing when gold is at stake, this district soon found itself possessed of a thriving, bustling population of gold seekers lured from all points of the compass in the hope of digging a fortune from the earth. Despite weather of 20 to 30 degrees below zero, these prospectors pushed through the 150 miles of snow and discomfort to the land of promised gold. Unheard of prices were paid for dogs to make the desolate trip, and one enterprising aviator, Jack V. Elliott, has established an air route between Hudson, Ont., and the gold fields. Hudson is on the northern transcontinental line of the Canadian National railways, about 240 miles east of Winnipeg and 12 miles to the west of Sioux Lookout. It is the nearest railway point to the Red Lake district, and a short time ago was nothing more than a name on the map.

What kind of a place is Red Lake? Is it full of dance halls, saloons, gambling joints and other wild and woolly institutions which spring up like magic in such settlements? It's hard to get information either into or out of this district. Of course, there are no telegraph lines, and all dispatches have to be sent by dog team. From E. Paul Reading, who mushed across the barren area into Red Lake, comes the following information as it appeared in the Washington Star:

"Tucked snugly in one corner of a bay, near the outlet of this straggling sheet of frozen water is a cluster of tents. They are pitched on hastily constructed log cribs and roughly floored with hewn spruce. Through the roof of each a section of rusty stovepipe thrusts itself at a rakish angle, belching upward in the frosty atmosphere. "One of the tents bears above its flaps the end of a packing case bearing in staggering black letters the portentous legend, 'Mining Recorder's Office.' Another, though it does not yet boast a sign, is a provincial police post; a third is the office, and a fourth the cook tent, this last perhaps the most important of all.

Astute Johnnie

Johnnie had intently watched the moving of the family that had come to occupy the house next door but his chief interest lay in the child who seemed to be his own age. All attempts to make friends with the child were unavailing, however, so it was with a great deal of enthusiasm he announced:

"I know what the little boy next door name is. It's Original."

for hunger gnaws unceasingly in the cold.
"To the little poplar trees that stud the shore a legion of dogs are chained—huskies, collie curs, nondescript mongrels of intricate ancestry, fish eaters—the uncivilized and unrequited slaves of a harsh regime. They fill the air with doleful sound, the collies yelping shrilly, the huskies, unable to bark, rousing the echoes with that wailing ululation that resembles the cry of neither dog nor wolf, but is the song of the wolf-dog alone.
"Mining history is being written, and these are the characters that record it, for the Howie claims, now the property of the Howie Gold Syndicate, are the focus of the greatest gold rush Canada has seen in a score of years, and this desolated community assures itself that it is to form the nucleus of a great camp."

What are the chances of striking it rich? Is the field already too crowded? Mr. Reading is enthusiastic about the possibilities, but it might be well to wait for positive results before you take the following too seriously:
"This will be a stampede probably unequalled since the Klondike. It will not assume its full proportions until the spring break-up clears the way for further prospecting. Assays on the properties now being tested have shown extraordinary values and surprising consistency. On the main vein, which strikes roughly northeast and southwest, you can pick up samples bearing free gold, little glittering specks that permeate the quartz, right across on a width of 20, 40, and even 60 feet.
"Great lakes and rivers make summer travel easy and rapid. For ten miles to the east, and nearly as far west, the country is staked solid, and the peculiar thing is that practically all of the claims have yet to be prospected.
"If the anticipations of the mining men here are fulfilled, there will be fresh discoveries elsewhere in spring and fresh belts to be staked. In a zone of possible gold-bearing rock nearly ten miles wide and thirty long. At present interest centers in East bay, the northeast arm of the lake, which is 16 miles away but in line with the strike of Lorne Howie's lead.
"So far the sour dough has had his innings. A census of Red Lake's floating population this winter would have read like a map of the original Porcupine staking, with the name of Alex Gillies, who discovered the Hollinger, at the head of the list. Gillies has been in charge of development work on the Howie claims. He is quite unassuming and cautious in his statements, but does not conceal his faith in this new camp.

"John Hammett, chairman of the Howie Red Lake Syndicate, also sees a big future. He is not lacking in experience, for he has the development of four or five successful mines to his credit, and he declares outright that the surface showings at Red Lake are the most encouraging he has ever seen."

Turning to our own country, we find the desert wastes of the Mojave, about 120 miles from Bakersfield, Cal., filled with prospectors for the gold discovered in the Kramer hills. Here the going is easier, and miners are arriving in every kind of conveyance from flivvers to air-taxis, which leave on regular schedule from Los Angeles, San Francisco, and other coast cities.
Back of this scramble lies a real romance. Nearly thirty years ago one Austin Burcham, a miner, drilled powder holes 35 feet into the ground near the site of the present diggings. Then along came news of a new gold strike, and Burcham deserted his stake before setting off the dynamite he had ready for the last step in his long labors. Recently Edward Herkelrath found Burcham's uncompleted work and set off the blast. When the smoke cleared away he found gold ore later estimated to be worth $1,000 a ton.

Then the rush of the '20s began. The extent of the golden spread down through the gulches and over the low brown desert hills is yet undetermined, but enough real gold has been found to attract throngs of treasure seekers to the field. The town of Kramer, a short time ago nothing but a railway siding along the Santa Fe tracks, became overnight a gold-mad town. Old-time prospectors and "greenhorns" have staked out their claims and are working furiously day and night.
Everyone who has staked a claim constantly is on the lookout for claim-jumpers and high-graders. Revolvers and rifles put in their appearance soon after the hordes arrived, and old-timers in the mining game shook their heads dubiously as the jumble of location notices piled up in the recorder's office.
One tract of land adjoining the original discovery shaft of Edward Herkelrath and his cousin John, original discoverers, nearly 400 acres in extent, which has been thoroughly staked from end to end, was found to be owned by Mrs. S. S. Kelly of San Bernardino. The land was purchased from the state many years ago.

reached on stilts, there will still remain wonderful things to do. The greatest things of all to explore—and develop—are human natures and human souls. And maybe we shall have more time for these greater adventures when we have exhausted all the lesser!

NO WOMAN CAN KEEP HOUSE EFFICIENTLY

Without Good Health

MRS. FRANK DINDORE
823 PIERCE AVENUE, LANCASTER, OHIO

Four Walls Can Make a House, but it takes a Woman to Make a Home

To be a successful homemaker, a woman must guard her health. When mother is not well, the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, as these women did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lancaster, Ohio.—"For ten years after my marriage, I had poor health.

I was on a visit to my sister in Utica, Michigan, and she had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Her husband got me a bottle and I took it and felt so much better that I got a second one. Now, whenever I feel run-down I take the Vegetable Compound and soon feel all right again. I have had three little girls in the last six years and do all my housework, sewing, washing, and ironing. My time is pretty well taken up, but I will answer any letters I receive."—MRS. FRANK DINDORE, 823 PIERCE AVENUE, LANCASTER, OHIO.

Sturgis, Michigan.—"I am very thankful for what your medicine has done for me and have recommended it to others. I took it to give me strength before my baby was born. I would have to stop work and lie down sometimes all the afternoon. I felt as if I did not care whether anything was done or not. I got tired out so easily. One day I found a little book on my porch and that night I showed it to my husband and he went down town and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has helped me so much that I was soon able to do my work, and when my baby was born, my nurse, Mrs. Forbes, said it was the easiest birth she had ever attended. I will be more than pleased if I am helping someone else by giving my testimonial."—MRS. EDWARD PETERS, 208 Surprise Ave., Sturgis, Michigan.

Firmness and Obstinance

What is firmness of purpose with some people is mere obstinance in the other fellow. The former are as apt, however, to misjudge themselves as they are the other fellow. That there are a lot of human mules in this world, experience fully proves.—Grit.
