FATHER'S DAY

Last Sunday was Father's Day. There was very little notice taken of the day as compared to Mother's day, for, there has never been the sentimental interest taken in father that has been shown his life's companion.

Poets, and artists have created masterpieces dedicated to motherhood and that helps a lot in arousing of emotions in the people, and, therefore makes it easier to become enthused over mother.

The oversight of Father's day was possibly never noticed by many. Perhaps a large per cent of the fathers were not aware that there was a day set aside for them. Father's are naturally supposed to be less receptive of sentiment and pleasing overtures than is mother. They are more taken to business and less guided by emotion than their fair partners in life. Perhaps that accounts for the lack of enthusiastic reaction to Father's Day.

Nevertheless even a big, strong, hard working father appreciates the little, tender, showings of sentiment more than the world gives him credit for.

turned down the 'farm bloc' they also listened to Senator Borah and others and put in a dry plank. It is expected that the Democratic platform will either have a much more arid plank or else come out flat footed in favor of less prohibition. Before two more weeks the running teams will be well groomed for the contest and the band wagons will be ready to carry their loads and the entire country will again become involved in another great presidential campaign and after the smoke of battle is cleared away regardless of the victor there will be little change in the conduct of our nations policies.

THE G. O. P. TEAM

With the nomination of Hoover and Curtis as the standard bearers of the national Republican party, we find several unique situations. If elected we will have our first dual president. We will have our first president from west of the Mississippi. Even more we have both candidates from west of the Mississippi, the president from the west coast. We will have an almost purely independent in the president's chair—a man who has held important positions of trust with both Democratic and Republican parties. In the vice president's chair we will have perhaps the first native American to ever hold the office, Sen. Curtis being a decedent of the aborigines of this continent.

Down at Houston there will be another big convention in a few days. At this convention the standard bearer of another party will be chosen. Governor Smith of New York, and a very able man seems to have a little the edge on the votes and were the rules governing this convention the same as those governing the Kansas City convention there is not much doubt but that Al Smith would be the Democratic standard bearer.

Tin Cans and Wagon Wheels

TIN CANS nailed to the rim of a wagon wheel and a hillside water fall turned the wheel's for the forty-miners.

From this crude start the red-blooded men of the western power companies developed the highly efficient water wheels of the present day and led the way in hydro-electric power generation, which has resulted in constantly improved service at decreasing costs to consumers.
