Community Progress

Depends upon the people who compose its citizenship. The community that is continually drained by outside interests will not be the flourishing city which it wants to be.

The citizen who is essential to the advancement of the community is the one whose interest is in the community in which he lives.

When money is spent with outside stores or stores owned by people living in other cities, that money goes to build up some other community.

People of Gold Hill and vicinity will use good judgement in trading at the Gold Hill Supply Co. It is a strictly home institution.

Our interest is to serve the people of the community.
