LOOK THE HOUSE OVER

Take a walk around your house and property.

If you are the average home-owner, you'll find lots of places where repairs, replacements or alternations should be made. The steps are becoming rickety—the electric wiring in the basement and garage is in poor condition—new plumbing fixtures are needed—the roof is beginning to leak—those hardwood floors for the living room you've been thinking about so long have never materialized—the garden and lawn should be rejuvenated—the whole house could do with a new paint job. The addition of a few labor-saving devices in the kitchen would make your home a more pleasant and efficient place to live in.

It's probable you've been thinking of making such repairs and betterments as these for several years—and haven't had them done because of nervousness as to the future, the thought that you'd better keep your money as intact as possible. That's the kind of reasoning that has prolonged the depression. It's the kind of reasoning that throws men out of work and makes it impossible for them to find new jobs; the kind of reasoning that causes basic industries to run at the lowest production point in decades.

Today you can obtain property-improvement, of what ever kind, for a fraction of what it would have cost you five or ten years ago. You'll probably never be able to buy so cheaply again—it's almost certain that prices will rise sharply in the near future. You'll be getting an amazing big construction dollar's worth. And you'll be putting men to work, putting money into payrolls and salary checks and purchase orders. Don't forget that jobs are cheaper than charity—and that only jobs make charity possible.

TAXES AND JOBS

E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, recently said that if the money his company pays in taxes were available for wages, it would be possible to pay 20 per cent more men on the payroll.

That is a striking example of the deleterious effects of excessive taxation. In the long run, it creates unemployment, destroys jobs and lessens the likelihood of permanent employment in the future. The tax burden frightens investors, discourages management, prevents industrial expansion—and puts more men in the line of the jobless.

Cut the cost of government, appreciably lower the tax burden in dollars collected—and a long step will have been taken toward curing depression.

IF YOU WON'T SAVE LIVES SAVE DOLLARS

The high humanitarian purpose of safety campaigns against accidents is to reduce the thousands of deaths and hundreds of thousands of injuries each year. In itself, it should awaken entire communities to action. However, there is another side, too often overlooked, that appeals to the pocketbook, and has thrived for its foundation. While 29,000 persons will be killed in automobiles this year unless the accident rate is reduced, the loss in dollars that results will be $2,600,000,000.

In illustration, recently it was necessary for stock casualty companies allied in the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, to increase rates for automobile public liability insurance in several states. That was because the companies had suffered very severe underwriting losses in those territories. Simultaneously with the announcement of these revisions, the National Bureau issued a leaflet addressed to the more than 100,000 agents in the states where the rates had remained where they were. This was a plain straightforward statement of the situation not only for the information of the agents themselves, but for the general public.

In pointing out that the future of rates is squarely up to the public, it said: "If a community is willing to have a high accident ratio, if it is satisfied to have its juries make excessive awards, if it takes no steps to stamp out the making of fraudulent claims, it must expect to see these conditions reflected in the form of high rates."

If you are in a state where rates have not been increased, do your bit to keep them down. If you are in one of the other states remember that only reduced accident record will entitle your area to reduction in the future.

Art Teachers to Study At U. O. Summer School

Eugene, Ore.—Planned to stimulate the appreciation of art and to remedy the prevalent lack of adequate teachers in this field, the Carnegie Corporation of New York has for the fourth consecutive year designated the University of Oregon school of fine arts as western headquarters for normal work in art, and has allotted the university $6500 for this work this summer. This sum will provide 18 scholarships for art teachers, who will come here with all expenses paid from the fund, and will provide expert instructions for any other summer session students interested.

The regular faculty of the school of fine arts will be augmented by the addition of Eugen Gustav Steinhilber, director of the National School of Decorative Art, Vienna.

The summer session at the university and at other institutions in the Oregon State System of Higher Education opens June 19.

Ancient History FROM OUR FILES 26 Years Ago

From the Gold Hill News June 7, 1907.

The grand opening dance in Harrison's new livery barn last Friday evening was well attended and everybody reports a very pleasant time.

Riley Hammersly consummated a $20,000 timber deal with some eastern people this week. Details are lacking.

Woodville people are making a mighty effort to secure a bridge across Rogue River at that point and we hope to see them successful. They need it.

Mrs. Florence Moon has sold the Valley Lodging house to Dave Noe and is preparing to move to Portland.

The Gold Hill ball team will give a dance in Carter's opera house next Friday evening, June 14. They are raising funds for the purchase of new uniforms and are worthy of a good crowd.

Miss Cora Rippey returned today from Grants Pass, where she has been in a hospital for the past week, having undergone a successful operation for her eyes. She was accompanied by Miss Myrtle Vincent.

A DIPLOMATIC ADVENTURER

Gene Lamb was captured by Chinese bandits while filming episodes for the thriller film "Explorers of the World" showing at the Roxy Theatre Sunday. His captors intended to confiscate his entire expedition's equipment and possibly kill its members. After a talk with the bandit leaders, however, Mr. Lamb so completely convinced them that they should be his friends instead of his enemies, that they escorted his caravan for five days to protect it from other bandits. An adventurer sometimes has to be a diplomat of the rarest qualifications.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS Uses For Turpentine

Turpentine is a marvelous cleanser. A few drops added to suds helps in cleaning and whitening clothes. A few drops in water with which one washes plants makes them especially green. A few drops in trunks, bags or closets will keep out the moths. A few drops in water used to wash beds or infested wood will rid place of any bed bugs or any other objectional vermin.
