270 Oregon Farm Families Will be Given New Land

Senator Steiwer (R., Ore.) said Saturday at Washington, D. C., he had been assured the rural rehabilitation corporation would remove 150 families from 37,000 acres of submarginal land in Tillamook county, Oregon.

The cost will be $185,000.

Under plans described to the senator, 60 families who will be financed in the movement by the government will be placed in a resettlement area in the same county in Townships 4 South, and 5 South, Range 10 West.

Each family will be settled on a new farm of about 15 acres at an approximate cost for land, equipment and other expenses of $2550 each. Twenty-two of the families, the senator said, were described as having sufficient capitol to undertake their own relocation on more productive lands.

In view of the fact there is little opportunity for employment, other than agricultural, in the area, the senator said the rehabilitation corporation plans to aid the families in developing markets for farm and garden products in the beach settlements along the Pacific ocean.

Plans previously were announced for resettlement of families in the Jefferson county grazing area where the government will purchase 130,000 acres at a cost of $650,000. One hundred and twenty families will be affected by that purchase.

The senator said 40 of the families will remain in the area while 85 will be moved to farms on supermarginal land in the immediate vicinity.

Campaign to Register 1934 Babies Enters Fourth Week

Portland, Jan. 2—This week sees Oregon's Register Your Baby campaign at its climax, with the State Board of Health asking that every father and mother with a child not more than a year old, report its birth immediately on a census bureau card.

Checking of cards mailed to Washington, D. C., by Oregon parents since the campaign opened December 6, began here Monday. A force of six persons was put to work on the task. Each card will be compared to the records of births which have come to the board in the regular way, and when a baby is found who was not so reported the deficiency will at once be made up and steps taken to see why it occurred.

For this reason—in order that a complete check on the routine system may be obtained—the board, the bureau and the state emergency relief administration are insistent that all eligible parents send cards regardless of whether their baby's birth is already recorded or not.

Checking started with 5,000 cards on hand and Dr. Frederick D. Stricker, secretary of the board, asking the people of the state to send in 9,000 more at once. Aid of American Legion Auxiliary units, parent-teacher associations and organizations affiliated with the state federation of women's clubs has been enlisted in seeing that every family has a card, and that it is signed and mailed whenever there is a baby to whom it applies.

Any one may obtain a card or cards by dropping a postal to the State Board of Health, 816 Oregon Building, Portland, Oregon.

Roxy Installs New Earphones for Deaf

Another step in the Roxy theatre's policy of constantly adding new equipment for the entertainment and comfort of its patrons is the installation of earphones for the hard of hearing. The new phones have been thoroughly tried out and people who were unable to enjoy talking pictures are now able to hear them almost perfectly.

The phones are detachable and the patron asks for them at the door. There is no extra charge for this added service, according to the management.

S. F. Rushes Plans For Big Assembly of Fruit Jobbers

Regarded as one of the most important business gatherings in the United States, since its discussions will bear directly upon the marketing and distribution of a large part of the nation's food supply, plans for the annual convention of the Western Fruit Jobbers association of America, scheduled in San Francisco January 22 to 26, are attracting widespread attention.

More than 5000 growers, shippers and receivers of fruits and vegetables are planning to attend the meeting, according to word received here from Joseph Marguleas of San Francisco, chairman of the convention committee. Not only will members of the association get together, but they will have an opportunity to meet western growers from whom they purchase millions of dollars worth of perishable crops each year, it was pointed out.

San Francisco received the 1935 convention in spirited competition with several other cities, and is preparing to show its appreciation by surrounding the business sessions with many entertainment features. Under direction of Chairman Marguleas and Julius Zentner, head of the finance committee, final details of the convention program are now being completed.

Organized in 1904, the Western Fruit Jobbers association is now the leading organization catering to the handlers of fresh fruits and vegetables in the United States. It has fully 1000 members and, in addition, serves as a guide to a vast number of non-member concerns which look to the organization for information and listings, according to the announcement.

Luxuries often indulged become necessities.
