INKLINGS--

Bits of this and that gleaned from everywhere.

One of the weaknesses of our type of government under the spoils system is that too often the men who are best qualified do not get the positions. The positions, many of them responsible ones, are given to party workers and those who by one chance or another happen to have a contract with the powers that be. Hundreds of more qualified men never get a hearing because of their lack of political acquaintance.

Many states are revising and re-vamping their driver's laws in an effort to curb the mounting toll of traffic accidents. Some of the states require an examination of drivers from time to time. The difficulty is that the quality that makes for a poor or careless driver is difficult to discover or discern. Some men are naturally alert and quick thinking and acting on the steering wheel.

Some are habitually careful and make up for their lack of alertness by a larger amount of care. Others are habitually careful and make up for their lack of alertness by a larger amount of care. Others are naturally careless. They fail to keep their mind upon their driving and cause accidents because of their carelessness. These things are no easy to discover no matter how rigid the examination. A driver's record is the best guide of his ability as a driver.

We note by our daily that moving picture people seldom collect their salary checks. This is always done by an agent. The same service is performed for a local wage earner by his wife.

Florida has a constitutional provision prohibiting state income and inheritance taxes.

We note that the British propose to reap a harvest from high prices during the coronation. We derive no little satisfaction from the fact that regardless of what the charges are, they will not entail a readjustment of this department's budget.

When the Indians ran the country they had no poorhouses. The families all took care of their old people. The Indian never wasted anything. He never killed more game than he needed and always had plenty.

The danger of making a good suggestion at a meeting is that you will be made chairman of the committee and will have to do all the work.

A true workman derives no satisfaction in turning out shoddy merchandise merely to meet a popular price.

The joy of every employer is an employee who is always willing to help a little more, to remain a few minutes after time to rewrite a letter and to suffer the petty impositions of business with a good spirit. Such an employee is worth all a firm can afford to pay and often more.

Prices Rise for Oregon Fruits

Oregon fruits, particularly pears and apples, are tending to establish seasonal high prices these days on northern auction markets. Typical of the scenes enacted daily are buyers (above) inspecting fruit on display floor prior to sale, and an auctioneer (right) receiving competitive bids.

The fruit and vegetable auction market system, observing this year its 110th anniversary, returns more than $130,000,000 annually to growers, and supplies 40,000,000 consumers. Auction markets are situated in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis.

A sure cure for talking too much is to think more. Most people who talk too much do not do much thinking.

The least interesting person to visit with is the person who has positive opinions about every matter that comes up and states his opinion with a tone that defies any one to have a different view.

One of the major mysteries of life is how the sales girl ever makes a sale whose stock argument is "Gee, dearie that looks swell on ya."

The best defense the tax payee has is to make everybody pay some taxes. One reason why taxes are the burden that they are is because too few people pay taxes.

The hardest job a man has to do is to be nice to the person whom he knows is lying about him behind his back. It is not easy to be polite when you feel like knocking a man's block off level with his ears.

When a merchant stops advertising he starts a sit down strike, and if he withholds his advertising long enough no one will disturb him from his comfortable position.

The Wagner labor law recently upheld by the Supreme Court, provided that the National Labor board have control over employer-employee differences. The decision of the court, however, only applies to what is held to be interstate commerce. This ruling does not affect employee-employer relationship in cities, towns and villages where the product does not enter into interstate commerce. In this respect it differs from the NRA which sought to control and regulate all labor whenever and in whatever it was employed.

There is this to say in favor of the old saloon. It has the courage to sail under its true colors and go by its right name. It was promised, not long ago, that the saloon would never be permitted to come back. Everything about the old saloon and more has come back except the name.

thing thoroughly. The difficulty is that under the present scheme of living we skim over the surface of many things and never really learn one thing well. It is a pleasure to talk to a man who has complete information on one thing whether that thing is raising alfalfa hay, making horseshoes or tanning hides. Not long ago a salesman was in this office who at one time worked for a milling company. For over an hour he talked about wheat. We had no idea that so much that is interesting would be said about wheat. He had made an intensive study of the subject and was interesting and entertaining to talk to because he knew one thing thoroughly.

We will not believe the social security program is complete until it includes a provision to care for the small business man in his old age. The owners of many small businesses are receiving no more out of their business than their employees receive and are carrying all the risk. Many small businesses have retained employees when depression came and they did not need them, and spent their surplus by so doing. The old age pension & security should protect everyone alike. A local minister said that most of his congregation had evidently gone on a sit down strike. The trouble is he says that they do their sitting down at home about the time they should be getting ready to go to church.
