A Horse Relieved.

Last winter a team, belonging to J. B. Keeney & Co., while attached to a sleigh, ran away. The sleigh was overturned and the pole was broken. Since that time one of the horses has been a cripple, and no cause for his condition could be assigned. Last Saturday he was taken to W. W. Roper's blacksmith shop, and while being shod it was discovered that parts of the hickory pole about 234 inches in length and when bound tightly together measuring one inch in diameter. in length and when bound tightly to-gether measuring one inch in diameter, were imbedded in the frog of the poor animal's foot. During the extraction of the several peices the animal held per-fectly still, although the pain must have been excessive. In the cavity from which the wood was taken two fingers could be inserted easily. The wound had closed up immediately after the entrance of the splinter and those who examined it supposed it was a slight cut. What the animal suffered during the past three months cannot be imagined.
