W. W. Journal: A. E. Isham, Esq., came very near meeting with a cruel death at Starbuck, last Wednesday. He took a walk upon the trestle works, pondering over some legal points, when suddenly the train came rushing along and the alarm was given. To save himself, he made a leap for life, lost his hat and sprained both of his knees.

THE CITY CEMETERY. To the Editor of the East Oregonian. Permit me to add a word or two to the communication on the subject of the city cemetery, which appeared in a recent issue of the EAST OREGONIAN. Until the city water works were completed there was no opportunity, and therefore some excuse for our neglect to improve and beautify the resting place of the ashes of our dead, but now there is not the slightest reason for further delay, and the steps urged by your correspondent should be initiated at once, and the work carried on to completion as soon as is possible.

There are no towns of any sort of public spirit where the care of the "City of the Dead" is ignored by the city authorities; indeed, in many places of less than half the size of Pendleton, the subject is one which receives careful attention, and a commendable pride is taken in improving and beautifying the grounds of the cemetery. Doubtless, much of the natural interest which might have been taken by individuals in the matter heretofore, has been drawn off by the report that the cemetery was to be moved. It is safe to say that if a new site for a cemetery is secured, it will not be for a year or two at the least, and even then, it is not at all probable that any attempt will be made by the town or any one else to remove the bodies of those who already sleep there.

At any rate, there can be no harm in taking some steps to beautify the place, even though it shall prove to be only temporary. Let the city extend its mains to the ground and furnish the water for this purpose and there will be no lack of funds raised by private subscription to carry on this work, which is due not merely to the reputation of the city, but to the memory of the dead. W. E. POTWINE.

Pendleton and Long Creek. From the Long Creek Eagle. From Pendleton to the North Fork bridge, by this route is 63 miles, which Pendleton will build, leaving only 20 or 22 miles of road, part of which is already built and the balance over a natural route for us to complete, making in all 73 or 76 miles, over which will be a good road, to a first-class market, and three miles nearer than Hopper, which is 80 miles distant from Long Creek via Allen and Parker's mill.

Pendleton is to-day, and has been for several years, the leading flour market of Eastern Oregon, the joint capacity of her two mills being 600 barrels per day. She has also a machine shop, foundry and other important manufactures which are necessary to the growth and prosperity of a rising Republic and enables her to compete with any town in Eastern Oregon for the trade of the surrounding community.

Wake up! citizens of the Long Creek Republic, now is the accepted time to secure cheaper freights, a shorter and better route to the outside world, a first class market and a bi-weekly mail route which will bring you mail from three to five days quicker. Gold Watch Prize. Despain & Howard, the enterprising grocers on Main street, are about to introduce a new and novel scheme to promote a cash trade. They have a solid gold Hunting-case watch with American improved works worth $75, which will be given as a gift to the fortunate one securing the corresponding number on the watch, previously drawn by one (blind folded) and sealed within an envelope which will not be opened till the tickets are all drawn. Any one making a purchase of $2.50, cash, is entitled to one number; $5, two numbers, etc. Any one needing groceries should not miss the opportunity by trying for this valuable prize. They will continue to sell as cheap as ever. For further particulars apply at the store.

A CHURCH APPEAL. Memorial to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church Respecting the Establishment of an Indian College on the Umatilla Reservation. The following is the memorial which was ordered sent to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which convenes in Philadelphia in May, by the Presbytery of Eastern Oregon at its recent meeting in Pendleton:

"Fifty years of missionary work among the Aborigines of this northwest territory, including the State of Oregon and the Territories of Idaho and Washington, have passed, and now with fresh opportunities and increased responsibilities we enter upon another semi-centenary of a most noble and noble and Christianizing our red brothers.

The Land in Severalty Law lifts the Indian race to a new plane of existence. It is now within their power to become citizens of these United States, entitled to rights, privileges of such citizens. Whether they prove to be a vicious and dangerous element in our national life or not; whether they become an industrious, self-sustaining and law-abiding people, depends largely on what is done by the church to defend and assist them in their new surroundings and associations. Whether they have a fair chance to improve their opportunities or are pushed to the wall by unscrupulous whites depends largely on the stand the church takes in their behalf.

An earnest and prolonged effort must be made to surround them with such conditions as will be probable aid to the development of a sturdy, Christian manhood. True, there is as yet but little to encourage us in the belief that our Indian population will ever contribute anything that will prove vital or distinctive in our national character or existence, still it is clearly the duty of the church to do all in her power to secure for them the opportunity of making the most of themselves.

The beginning of a new era in their political existence seems an auspicious time to found an institution of learning, in which promising and deserving young men and women of the Indian race can have an opportunity of securing a scientific or classical education. Within the bounds of the Synod of the Columbia, not including Alaska, there are twenty five hundred children over six and under sixteen years of age. The old Macedonian cry can be heard distinctly—"Come over and help us; come and help us take our place in the Church and in the great body politic, with some show of holding our own in the advanced position which we are soon to take." It will require the work of months perhaps years, to frame a satisfactory answer to this call in the line of higher education, because a successful school is not the creation of a day; but now is the time to make a beginning.

A step has recently been taken in the way of meeting the demands of the hour. An institution of learning has been incorporated, intended for Indian youth of both sexes, who wish to secure an academic education. The institution is named The Spaulding Indian College, in grateful remembrance of Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Spaulding, who founded the Nez Perce Mission in 1836. The College is to be conducted under the auspices of the synod of the Columbia. It is to be supported by tuition fees and voluntary contributions.

It is the design of the trustees to collect as much money as possible within a the the bound of Synod and then to make a general appeal to the churches in the East for aid in establishing this much-needed institution of learning. It is worthy of note that there is no similar institution connected with the Presbyterian Church.

In view of these facts the Presbytery of Eastern Oregon hereby most respectfully memorialize the General Assembly of the United States of America to endorse the Spaulding Indian College and commend it to the churches as an object most worthy of sympathy and support.

Pinafore. From the Daily Union. Walla Walla people have had several opportunities of hearing and seeing Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pinafore," but it has never been presented here to a larger audience or attended by greater general satisfaction, than at the performance at Small's last night by the Juvenile Opera Company. Evan Gamble, as Ralph Rackstraw, appeared in better voice than on his previous occasions, while Camille Cleveland looked and sang the part of Josephine very nicely. In Miss Emma Berg the Juveniles have their real star, if voice, training and knowledge of her art is any criterion, and in Captain Corcoran she fully sustained that reputation. Sir Joseph Porter, by Teddy Gamble, was a very extraordinary sample of the little comedian's merits, and was received with favor by the large audience.

This performance closed the short season of the youngsters, and the management have no fault to find with our people, who have given them good audiences, neither have our people any fault to find with the troupe, who have given them a season of amusement not often excelled.

WALLULA ZEPHYR. Correspondence W. W. Journal. WALLULA, April 25. In visiting the city of sand and sagebrush I find the hotels, restaurants and saloons are doing a rushing business. At the eating houses they have to wait for their turns, and it looks like old times to see the drunks lying around the saloons and streets. Almost every saloon has a "stud poker" game; in one place they have a man drawing the tail of a horse across the bowels of a cat, "and a good man too."

Real estate is changing hands rapidly. Lots are selling in Lyons' addition, which is called Dublin, from $100 to $200, and plenty for sale at those prices. I was informed that Mr. Lyons is about to lay off another addition to the old one on the west, and probably could be had for $30 or $40 a lot. The Union depot will be built opposite Dublin on the east. Lots are selling on the sand hills and across the Walla Walla river for $40 to $50 and upward.

His Election is Assured. From the Baker City Democrat. It is gratifying to the bar of the sixth judicial district to know that able jurist, W. M. Ramsey is to be their next judge. Mr. Ramsey is not a politician, nor did he seek the nomination which was given him by the State convention. His election is assured beyond all doubt, and the voters of the district will never have any reason to regret that they gave him their support.

Representative Patrick Collins, of Massachusetts, took a vacation during the deadlock in the House. A friend met him Saturday afternoon and exclaimed: "Hello! why aren't you tending to your duties?" "I don't have to," replied Collins. "Well, you'd better go up to the House," continued the friend, "or you'll be arrested and carried up." "Not much I won't," exclaimed Collins, with more enthusiasm than attention to grammar. "I was excused last Wednesday for the day, and as it is still Wednesday in the House I am perfectly safe. See?"

Services will be held as usual to-morrow in the Baptist church. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. All are invited to worship with us. G. D. DOWNEY, Pastor.

Oskaloosa, Kansas, has a complete city government of women, and now the churches of Ottawa, in the same State, employ only girls for ushers. The Kansas man seems to be a shrunken superfluity.
