ONE OF MANY.

A Specimen of Those Who Retard the Progress of Towns.

Old John Lucas lives in Walla Walla. He owns a valuable piece of property in Pendleton. A few years ago it cost him a few hundred dollars. From it he draws a good rent. Last year he was offered $5,500 for it, and this year it is worth fully $6,000. The improvements on it consist of tumble-down shanties. They are good enough for John Lucas, as he lives in Walla Walla. He has no interest in Pendleton itself. His interest consists in the amount of money he can withdraw from it. He is so illiberal and selfish that he always objects to making necessary improvements on his property. The other day one of his tenants was forced to pay for settling one of his shanties to the grade of the sidewalk, and John Lucas immortalized himself as a public spirited citizen by offering the dirt which had to be taken out from under the house before it could be settled, for sale. It was a shame that he could not find a purchaser. It would have been so profitable if he could have gotten cash for the dirt and at the same time make his tenant pay for an improvement that he should have paid for himself. The sidewalk in front of the Lucas property is not on the established grade, and John refuses to make the necessary changes. There is an ordinance which, if enforced, will compel him to do it, and this will be put in effect if the sidewalk is not forthwith changed to conform to those in the immediate vicinity. John Lucas is not too poor to do his share of the improvements necessary in the town, but he would simply like to have the right to levy a tax upon every man and escape from paying the tax himself. Our laws, to some extent, encourage such men, and that is the reason we have them. John Lucas is only a creature of circumstances, and he does not really know that circumstances have made him what he is.

A Series of Accidents.

Mrs. Major Brockenbrough and daughter left Pendleton last Saturday for Washington via the Northern Pacific railroad. Major Brockenbrough received a letter from his wife stating that owing to a freight train's smash up her train was detained at Heron siding, and possibly would remain there twenty-four hours. The next day another letter came stating that the train had succeeded in getting around the wreck within twelve hours, but another more serious accident has just happened on this side of Bozeman, Montana. A freight train collided with their train on Monday morning early, throwing the passengers from their berths and injuring some of them severely. Mrs. Brockenbrough writes that she received a painful and severe cut on the forehead, about an inch and a half long and to the bone, though it was not serious. Some of the passengers were worse injured. The little daughter escaped without any injuries at all. The major is in receipt of another letter from Mrs. Brockenbrough saying still another accident had happened. A land slide had just occurred ahead of their train, which would detain them some time. Here is a series of accidents that seldom happens to one train. It is hoped that the rest of Mrs. Brockenbrough's trip will be serene.

Satisfactorily Answered.

How is Raley to get three hundred majority in the two Pendleton precincts as some of the Democrats are betting he will unless there is a ring in Pendleton of Republicans as well as Democrats who propose to swap this man into office? Honest farmers, beware of such intriguing.—La Grande Gazette.

This is about the easiest thing answered imaginable. It is for the reason that he has resided in Pendleton over twelve years and has conducted himself so well that Democrats, and Republicans alike, know that he is the man to represent the interests of Umatilla county, and that he will act as well for Union county as for his own. So far as these counties and the city of Pendleton are concerned, he knows the prosperity of one means the prosperity of all. He is not without ideas. He is not going to the legislature to be a figurehead for Snodgrass and his ilk, but to represent the material interest of the people of both counties.

An Enjoyable Entertainment.

Professor Hepburn's piano recital last evening, in Mims Bros. & Co.'s music rooms, was largely attended by the best and most refined society of Pendleton. The Professor convinced the audience with his first selection, "Tale from the Vienna Woods," (paraphrase de concert by Julie Rives-King) that he was master of his profession, and he was loudly endorsed. Next came "The Battle of Manassas," by Blund Tom; "Feast of Roses," from Martha; and a selection by Mrs. Perkins, which elicited many compliments; solo, "When Nelly was Raking the Hay," by D. Herrick, Jr.; duet, "Life's Dream is O'er," by Prof. Hepburn and D. Herrick. The entertainment closed with one of the Professor's compositions. Rev. W. E. Potwine then thanked the Professor in behalf of the audience, and stated that an attempt would be made to organize a choral society, and called a meeting for that purpose, to be held at Mims Bros.' music room, on next Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

Dispute About Right of Way.

On Tuesday the O. R. & N. Co. filed in the land office in this city maps of the right of way from Eureka Flat Junction via Riparia up the north bank of Snake river to Lewiston. It is reported that Dr. Allen, a resident of the flat, will contest the entrance in his land, as according to their survey the railroad will, by his statement, utterly ruin his orchard and farm. He claims that he should be paid damages for loss of value to his whole farm, while the railroad company claims that, as he has not proved up on the land, they should only pay the actual cost of improvements damaged.

A Novel Ark.

The Teme varer Zeitung, in its account of the floods at Temesvar, reports the salvation of an old gypsy fiddler upon the quaintest boat, probably, that has ever been seen. The old man lived at the extreme end of the Fakiker-platz, in a wretched little cottage. He went home about midnight in a very jovial humor, lay himself down to sleep, and awoke about 7 o'clock in the morning. When he opened his eyes he made the unpleasant discovery that his hut was flooded, and that the water had forced its way into his bed-room. He had no movable goods except an old bedstead, a stool and his great double bass. He coolly placed his monster of a "Bas greige," his beloved bread-winner, upon the surface of the water, seated himself astride it, and paddled himself to "dry land" with one of the boards of his bed, amid the cheering and laughter of a number of gypsy comrades.

Going to Vote the Prohibition Ticket.

W. L. Connors writes to the Portland News: "Are you aware that the heads of the Republican party, Mr. Joe Simon and his will workers, have already made arrangements to trade off some of the honest men who are on the ticket, and if that is allowed by the Republicans, where can you get the authority from to say that Oregon is soundly Republican? I am surprised that Mr. H. W. Scott and his reform paper would allow this kind of reform in the Republican ranks. I think that the ticket presented at the polls will be a black-and-tan affair. So for my part and my three boys, we shall vote the Prohibition ticket. No Simon, no McGinn for us."

He Will Get There.

J. M. Bentley's enemies have endeavored in every way to defeat him, but news from western Umatilla shows that in every way he is gaining strength. In this portion of the county a unanimous vote will be cast in his favor.

He has the Qualities.

The office of county treasurer should be in the hands of an accommodating, obliging and competent gentleman. Mr. J. N. Robbins possesses these qualities; therefore vote for him for your next treasurer and you will never regret it.

Walla Walla Union: An extra train of 12 cars came out from Pendleton to Dry creek siding on Thursday, loaded with heavy railroad iron, to replace the light rails now in use. Quite a force of men are engaged on this work, and it is the intention of the railroad company to replace all light rails between this place and Pendleton with heavier iron as soon as possible, the change being made in the sharp curves and steep grades of the line between Milton and Centerville first.

Grant County News: Patrick McGinnis a young man from the Shoofly country, was arrested last week by deputy sheriff John Fisk, on a charge of horse stealing, preferred by the late grand jury. He was placed under bonds of $1,000 for his appearance at the next term of court, but the court reduced the bonds to $600, but failing to give the same he lingers in confinement dire.

Walla Walla Statesman: Judge Langford stated that it cost 50 cents a minute to run the court, and that attorneys must have their cases ready when called, or there would be trouble.

Baker City Reveille, 10th: A number of Umatilla Indians are here, endeavoring to "finaamook tennas cuitans."
