Some Effects of the Rain.
T. M. Coffey went out to his place a day or two ago, at the head of George's canyon, feeling quite blue, as he expected to have to cut out all his 400 acres of wheat for hay. He came in this morning, with the blue look all gone, presumably washed away by the rain, and a satisfied smile on his face instead. He brought a couple of his wheat, which is about three feet high, with large, well-filled heads, and having a forty-bushel-to-the-acre appearance. Mr. Coffey said there were spots in his field that had burned some in the late hot weather, but that it would make good hay, and consequently would be no loss.

He attributes the fine appearance of his grain to the fact that he plowed his land twice and cultivated it well before sowing.

He reports very high water in Birch Creek, and that the river was water-spout out in that country yesterday. The fields of Mrs. Lee, R. G. Thompson and several other Birch Creek farmers being badly flooded.

Thanks, Not Any in Our's.
From the Richmond Baton.
The editor of the Pendleton EAST OREGONIAN gives vent to his feelings in the following paragraph:
"Oh, there are devils in this county, and it is plain to be seen that they will stay a man in the back when they have the least chance."

Some time ago, the Baton Man was one of a party on the staff of the EAST OREGONIAN. He is glad, now, that he didn't accept the offer. If the devils in Oregon pinacies will "stay a man in the back when they have the least chance," he doesn't want to go to Oregon.

Did it in Missouri.
Up to noon on election day at Centerville one of the judges of election numbered the ballots as they were deposited to correspond with the numbers on the tally sheet. When asked why he did this, as it was an illegal procedure, he replied, "that's the way they do it around here." He was informed, but that is not according to the laws of Oregon; and this Missouri way, although an excellent method, and which is the law in a number of States, was discontinued.

The Return Courtesies.
From the Lewisville Courier-Journal.
Our esteemed but excited friend, the Boston Traveler, declares that itself and its red Republican confreres will fight, if need be, till hell freezes over—six words to that effect—to secure the free vote of every down-trodden Negro in the South. That is surely a noble aim. And when Miss Ophelia has made a man of Torj let us hope she will vote him intelligently and patriotically, and give him and us a rest.

HOW TO MAKE MEN BETTER.

After the Conditions That Predispose Them to Evil.
From the New York Standard.

The address of Rev. Hugh O. Pentecost before the Unity congregation of last Sunday was devoted to showing how powerfully social conditions modify society. In concluding, he said:
It is impossible for me to preach the gospel I once preached in my blindness and ignorance. It is impossible for me to tell men that God arbitrarily rules this world; that he chooses that some people shall be rich and others poor; that the rich should be generous to the poor; that the poor should be humble and thankful to the rich; that it is all right for Dives to dwell in his palace, and for Lazarus to sit at the gate with dogs licking his sores, accepting the crumbs which fall from the rich man's table; and to comfort Lazarus with the truly pious thought that his compensation will come in the next world, when he will have the vengeful delight of finding social conditions reversed, he being in bliss in Abraham's bosom, while Dives is roasting in hell on the other side of the great gulf, begging him, Lazarus, for a drop of cold water to cool his parched tongue. It is impossible for me to preach this now, because I know that it is not true! To me it is very clear that all the ignorance, misery and degradation of this world are not in accordance with the will of God; that they result from man's injustice and inhumanity to man as exhibited in wicked social conditions, created and perpetuated by selfishness and greed.

The reason I do not exhort men to trust in the church for guidance and deliverance is because it is clear to me that the church cares nothing for the gospel of Jesus, and is in practical alliance with all those social agencies which operate to defraud and oppress the poor.

The reason I do not preach to the rich that it is God's will for them to get rich and then to be charitable to the poor is because I know that charity, however commendable in many respects, is a positive injury, both to the poor and to the rich. On the one hand it promotes pauperism and tends to reduce wages; on the other it fosters pharisaism and hypocrisy. The reason I do not tell the people that they should be thankful for their riches or resigned in their poverty, is because I believe that is not the gospel for this day and generation. If there were no help for too much riches or too much poverty, all these things which I have declared I do not preach might be applicable to the situation; but in this day of enlightenment, when some of us, at least, clearly see that the apparent anomalies of society are clearly explainable and may be remedied, it is folly to go on as if we were still in ignorance, and it would be sheer duplicity and hypocrisy for one who knows the truth not to proclaim it from the housetops.

The gospel for the last part of the nineteenth century is this: Alter your social system; make it just and fair; change the conditions under which men live so that each man will have an equal opportunity in life, and there will be some chance for the salvation of men. So order society that no man shall be able to legally acquire money which they produce. Make it impossible for some men to roll in wealth which cannot by any possibility be honestly acquired, and make it unnecessary that other men shall be steeped in poverty which cannot by any possibility be deserved. This, indeed, would not make all men equal, for, as we differ in height, weight, complexion and physical strength, so we differ in mental and moral qualities. Men can never be personally equals. Some men, under conditions of absolute justice, would be strong and others weak; some timid and others courageous; some highly educated and others ignorant; some ambitious and others indolent; and these factors would always be operative, as they should be, in determining the relative success and failure of men. But if society were justly organized all men would have equal opportunities. None could gain success he did not merit or suffer failure he did not deserve; there would be no ill-gotten wealth and no involuntary poverty. And when this state of things prevails the trumpet will sound which shall announce the coming of the kingdom of God on earth; for when all men have equal opportunities in society then hope will spring up in the human breast; then it will be possible for a man to use all his best powers; then the reward of health and ambition will be set before each human being; then will be awakened desires for the good things of life, intellectual and moral, as well as material, which furnish such effective inspiration among a few now.

You must, in short, arise in your might and unmake all those laws, under which men are in any way permitted to accumulate money which they do not earn by hand or brain. When you do this you will have established the right of every man to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. You will then have inaugurated that reign of peace, prosperity and goodness, wherein it will be practicable for men to love their neighbors as themselves, to serve God, love mercy and do justly. Wherein the teachings of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount will be easily workable. Then it will be possible to say to all men: "Behold the lilies of the field, how they grow; and the birds of the air, how they are provided for; even so will your Heavenly Father care for you."

A $10 Man of War.
From the New York World.
The sale of an embellished man-of-war, built at the Brooklyn navy-yard on Tuesday is a most suggestive circumstance. A quarter of a century ago the vessel was begun. Even a name was given it, and its destiny seemed to be to do honor on the high seas to the proud title "State of New York." But navy-building and politics make a bad mix. This ambitious warship never had the chance to tickle the humorous vein of facetious Moors nor to test its strength against the sides of injudicious canal boats.

Miss Grace Elizabeth Matthews, daughter of Justice Matthews of the Supreme Court, and John Harlan Cleveland of Kentucky, nephew of Justice Harlan, were married in Washington Tuesday.

Election Notes.

Marquis is elected by 184 majority. Young's majority over Hartman for clerk is only five, and Houser is victorious over Bentley by twenty-two majority. Captain Martin's majority over Lucy is 244, and Pierce's majority over Reeder is 204. This is what a wog would style the "big and little" of the election.

Genin, for Congress, carried Umatilla county by forty-six majority, while Lord for Supreme Judge, the first a Democrat and the latter a Republican, is elected by seventy majority.

Gambler, Bean and Kirk will represent Umatilla county well in the next Legislature. They were elected by handsome majorities.

Rand for prosecuting attorney, beat Crawford in this county 65. He is a young man, lately admitted to the bar, but spoken of highly by those who know him.

Robbins will be the only Democrat who will live for the next two years in the court house. His majority for treasurer is 42. At the start his election was the only one thought to be doubtful.

The EAST OREGONIAN has made several attempts to get the result of the election from Baker and Union counties by telegraph, but has not been successful as the returns are not yet all in. Doubtless Raley is elected joint-Senator by about 10 majority, and Fee, district judge by fully 200.

Raley's majority in this county is 232 and Mattoon's in Union county is 235 it is stated, but the truth of it is, it is about 22, and Raley is elected by about ten majority, and if he is cheated out of it something is going to drop.

He, Mann will be so flattered by a 7,000 majority that he will probably make a fight for a Senatorial position to succeed Dolph. The Democrats should favor him, as he is less a corporationist.

Arrested and Released.

W. M. Scott was arrested this morning by Deputy Sheriff Taylor on complaint of J. R. Murphy, George Barnhart and Jed Beale, on a charge of horse stealing. He was taken before Justice Bishop, and Mr. Scott easily explained the situation, by stating that he had taken up the horses and advertised for their owners according to law, the advertisements now running in the EAST OREGONIAN. This was shown to be the case, and he was released without further examination. District Attorney Fitzgerald also deeming Mr. Scott's statement perfectly satisfactory in the premises.

Business men should take the Daily or Weekly Record, published by this office. It gives all the information concerning the records of Umatilla county as they are made.

Bob Burdette, the prince of humorists, will be here on the 12th. He will lecture in the opera house in the evening. Owing to Judge Walker's illness Judge Shattuck is holding the adjourned term of court and everybody likes him.

Everybody says the bountiful rain is sure a bountiful crop. The farmers are happy. God bless them.

Bob Burdette on the evening of the 12th. He will afford a treat seldom enjoyed.

MARRIED.

SPICER—MOORE.—At the Golden Rule Hotel, yesterday, by Rev. M. G. Royal, Mr. L. A. Spicer and Miss Sarah F. Moore.
COX—HAMER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Echo, on Wednesday, June 6, Mr. George M. Cox and Miss Jolie Hamer, both of this county.

Mr. Cox is a well known and highly respected young man, and the EAST OREGONIAN wishes him success and happiness in his new venture.
