A List of Those Who Have Already Subscribed.

At last Pendleton will celebrate, and judging from present appearances and the vim and energy with which the work is carried forward, it will be a celebration worthy of the name. Young menuallers in every sense—have carried a subscription tester into according subscription paper into every business house, and the result has been truly encouraging, $475 being now subscribed. A description of the prospective celebration appears elsewhere in this paper.

The benefits to be derived from a good, rousing celebration in Pendleton are at last beginning to be seen by our business men and citizens. They know that every visitor to the city on the glorious Fourth comes with the intention of having a good time at whatever exof having a good time at whatever expense, and consequently carries with him a large-sized wallet, well filled with coin of the realm. Part of this amount, and sometimes all, he is almost sure to deposit into the coffers of our business houses. Therefore a sum of money, aggregating probably several thousand dollars, will be kept at home by this celebration, that would have been spent elsewhere.

Following is a list of our liberal-minded business men and citizens who have cheerfolly subscribed their names and money to insure a fitting recognition of cheerfully subscribed their names and money to insure a filting recognition of the glorious anniversary of our nation's birth. May they have the satisfaction of knowing that they are simply casting bread upon the waters, and that it will return to them in the shape of the manifold benefits which will result from their enterorising spirit:
