"Have you heard from Chicago?" kinder offsets "Have you heard from Oregon?"

The San Francisco Alta gets it off in this shape: The red bandana! In hoc signo proficiscis.

More than 120,000 bills have been introduced in Congress this session. Herrmann was the author of not more than half of them.

The Oregonian is informed that the "comedy" of "The Rivals" on the Chicago stage has ended. Harrison was the successful rival.

Capt. P. B. Johnson, of the Walla Walla Union, is dangerously sick. We extend our sympathies with a wish that he may soon be convalescent.

The Eastern manufacturers and wool buyers have had plenty of time to "hear from Oregon" and yet the price of wool has not improved. Too bad, isn't it?

The Hamilton Spectator makes a point in this manner: "Positive, grove; comparative, Grover; superlative, Cleveland and Thurman."

This is about true from the Louisville Courier-Journal:

There is hardly a Republican of any prominence who does not expect to be nominated for President or Vice-President.

Where is Gresham, the man the people wanted nominated for President on the Republican ticket? The will of the politicians prevailed and Harrison got the plum.

The Oregonian editor will now take down his encyclopedia and write an editorial, giving a history of Benjamin Harrison, nominee for President on the Republican ticket.

The tramp is worrying the citizens of every town of the northwest. The tramp is a child of "protection" and Republicans, at least, should not grumble at their presence among them.

A GENTLEMAN in Pendleton received a letter Saturday from a Portland wool buyer, who is a Republican, stating that if Blaine is nominated the price of wool would go down two cents a pound.

JOHN J. INGALLS, the Kansas Senator, says: "Harrison's record on the tariff, the currency and the Chinese question, is awkward." This was before Harrison's nomination. What will he say now?

So the Republicans have been a week at Chicago nominating Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, for President. A great many first-class and well-cherished hopes have been shattered during the week.

The total reward offered for the capture of the highwaymen who "hold up" the Northern Pacific train several days ago is more than $10,000. The country is being scoured by soldiers, Indians and a sheriff and posse.

The New York World takes the following notice of the Oregonian:

The Portland Oregonian, elated over the Republican victory in its State, has a spirited article showing that "Gresham and Hawley" would be a winning ticket. Oregon is on stilts and demands that her voice be listened to.

If the people living on the mountain should levy a tariff to prevent the people in the valley from hauling wood to the mountains to sell, they would use equally as good judgment as the levying of a tariff on foreign wheat; and yet the Republican statesmen claim the farmers' products are protected. What bosh.

A CINCINNATI man inquired of an Oregon tourist, traveling in the East, the other day: "Where is Oregon?" The Oregonian at once discovered that it took considerable time for everybody to "hear from Oregon," even in a Presidential year. We will wager that the Cincinnati man is a Republican.

BENJ. HARRISON.

Benj. Harrison, nominated for President by the National Republican Convention at Chicago to-day, was born in North Bend, Ohio, on August 20th, 1833, graduated at Miami University, Ohio, in 1852, studied law in Cincinnati, and in 1854 removed to Indianapolis, Indiana, where he has since resided.

Benjamin Harrison, the worthy grandson of his grandfather, now before the people for the same office to which his illustrious grandfather was triumphantly elected, is doubtless the best man that the Republicans could have placed in nomination. He is a "dark horse" as he was barely mentioned before the National Republican Convention assembled last week in Chicago.

At the conference of the representatives of Sherman, Alger, Harrison, Blaine, and Allison delegates, which took place at Chicago last Saturday, M. H. De Young, representing the Blaine interests, made the statement that if Harrison was nominated it would be utterly impossible to elect him.

A yeoman reached a church at Georgetown, Ind., during services, that gold had been discovered in the neighborhood, and that nuggets worth $4 or $5 apiece were being found on the surface.

The Pendleton Tribune has of late indulged in a few of such items as the following:

Gresham Harrison De Pew Hawley Blaine Sherman Allison Runk

Since Harrison's nomination the following song will be sung with enthusiasm:

There was an old party, a horrid old sheew, She had so many "favorites" some she didn't know what to do; So she spanked all but one, and sent them to bed; The other will be spanked in November instead.

This is the picture as painted by the Philadelphia Record:

"The United States are rapidly approaching the conditions that any apparatus in other protected countries. We are putting women and children at hard tasks and turning out tramps with increasing rapidity."
