Should a fire occur at present, the consequences might prove disastrous to Pendleton. Most of the cisterns have not been kept in order, and cannot be depended upon, and the water works could not supply enough water to put out a candle. The levee makes the use of the river impracticable, and altogether a fire might, result in great loss of property, despite Pendleton's efficient fire department.

J. C. Leasure and H. L. Marston left this morning for the Greenhorn mountains, to remain for some time. They go for the purpose of making a thorough personal investigation of the mines in which they are interested, and to bring back samples of average ore, taken from all portions of the ledge, for assay.

The man who left his wagon and horses standing in the street is from Echo, and his name is King. He is surely the king of brutes, for he has been on a continual spree, getting drunk, and leaving his horses to be cared for by the marshal. Strange it is that drink should thus steal away a man's senses.

Dr. King has received a set of Dr. O. Dwyer's intubation tubes for relieving throat troubles, the only instrument of the kind now in Pendleton. They are practically an artificial wind-pipe, enabling a patient suffering from croup or diphtheria to breathe without difficulty.

A squaw's cayuse got loose last evening, and started out down Court street like a Kansas cyclone, scattering sacks of flour, tin cans, blankets, etc. at every jump, to the infinite amusement of spectators.

THE O. & W. T. R. R.

Its Progress and Prospective Branches—Opinions Regarding it.

Mr. W. T. Chalk is in town to-day from Wallula, and reports rapid progress on the Eureka Flat branch of the O. & W. T. railroad. Track is laid as far as the junction, and grading is completed within ten miles of Walla Walla. All work is now finished at Centerville, with the exception of a depot, and work will be commenced on the sidetracks and warehouse at Helix.

The warehouse at Helix, and lumber is now arriving for the depot building. Reese & Redman will also construct warehouses and platforms for grain at Centerville, Helix and various stations. It will be seen that the amount of money invested and spent in Umatilla county because of the railroad is enormous, and this enterprise will add almost immeasurably to the wealth of the county.

The pay roll of the company now amounts to over $500 a day, besides the amount expended for supplies consumed. In a short time, a force will be put to work on a branch from Helix in the direction of Pendleton, and it is thought that about twelve miles of track will be laid this fall.

Mr. Chalk was quite reticent about the destination of this branch, but said positively that it would not be continued to Pendleton, the course of this town making such a step impossible on the part of Mr. Hunt. It might stop within two or three miles of Pendleton, probably in order to impress upon the minds of the business men an idea of the great advantage they have lost by their failure to accede to Hunt's terms. The final destination of this branch, however, will not be known to its originators, will not be given to the public. But as far as Pendleton is concerned it will be "near, but yet so far." The question still resolves itself as follows: Thirty thousand dollars, right-of-way and depot grounds will fetch the railroad, and this demand must be acceded to. There are yet no good grounds to believe that the railroad will come without these inducements.

They Refuse Him Work.

There is at present in town an old stone-mason named Matthew Herron, who is a deserving man, and holds two honorable discharges from the New York corps of engineers, who served during the civil war. He has the stone contract on the Matlock-Sargent brick, and on J. M. Praett's residence, and together with a partner did the work on the Dayton court house. His ability as a mechanic is therefore unquestioned. Needing work, he recently made application to the leader and foreman of the French stonemasons here, asking for work on some one of their numerous jobs. A meeting was called to determine the matter, and the Frenchmen decided not to employ him. Their reason is said to be that he underbid them on the Matlock-Sargent brick. These French mechanics are good men, deserving, hard-working people, and they cannot afford to jeopardize their reputations by refusing to give work to a man who simply opposed them in following his legitimate business. Mr. Herron should have work; he deserves it, and the right shall not be denied him. Were the French mechanics in Mr. Herron's place would they not feel that he should give them work? The boycott is too cowardly for free men to make use of.

An Unwelcome Guest.

This afternoon, a large lean raw-boned horse, with a hungry look and a pensive air, created a startling sensation on Main street. He first unconcernedly entered Despain's grocery store, and was driven out. Not being discouraged by this cool reception, he walked with great confidence into Joe Ell's saddler shop, looking around viewing the establishment, but was again un hospitably driven out by means of a blacksnake. He then attempted to enter Rothchild & Bean's store, but was prevented from doing so, after which he proceeded to "take in" Chinatown, walking along the sidewalk and examining the heathen curiously. He went half-way inside of one of their little dens, but did not enter, perhaps being gifted with a little horse fastidiousness. These peculiar actions of the animal can hardly be explained. He seemed to be intelligent enough, and should have known that he would be an unwelcome guest at all these places. He is certainly a very curious sort of a horse, at least.

TEEL SPRINGS.

A Correspondent Gives a Pen Picture of Life at this Favorite Resort.

Well, at last we are at Lehman's Springs, and a pleasant surprise awaited us. Instead of the quiet of the woods, a veritable village of tents and log cabins greeted our sight as we passed over a rise in the road a few rods away. The shouts of the little children, the merry laughter of the older ones and the yells of greeting when we arrived, coupled with the barking of dogs, the cackle of poultry and the babble of questions for news from town, convince us we are far from being outside the pale of civilization; and yet, the last twenty-five miles have been over a wild mountain road, without a house (barring one or two camps erected by wood men) and here in the heart of mountains we find a village, teeming with life, each individual intent on deriving the utmost benefit from the short vacation allowed them here. Some come for health, others for pleasure and others because the crowd comes.

We find many familiar faces here, and learn that many others are expected soon. The following are the names of most of those here now, arranged in groups by cottage, tent and camp to which they belong: Hotel—Mrs. Loue Shaw and three children, Pendleton; Mrs. John Emmons and one child, La Grande; Mattie Wells, Pete Medernach, Sam Christenson, Archie Fuqua, Pendleton.

Joy Green Cottage—Mr. John Ray, wife and two children, Miss Mattie Crystal, Pilot Rock; Mr. Thomas Ray, Lexington.

Wild Wood Cottage—Wm Bowman, wife and two children, Mrs. Wm. Lee, Birch Creek.

The Palace—F. F. Boylen, wife and one child, S Sedore, and Miss Fanny Kinney, Pilot Rock.

Camp Plenty.—Mr. Chas. Cochran, wife and two children; Mrs. E. Nordyke and two children; Mr. John Cochran, wife and four children, Willow Creek.

Monte Carlo.—Mr. Ben. J. Selling, wife, Abe and Fan y, Pendleton.

The Tower.—Elsie Penland, wife and three children, Helix.

Camp for Sure.—Mr. J. W. Smith, wife and four children; Mrs. Anna Perrin and three children, Arlington.

Equality Camp.—Mr. Taylor Dodson, wife and three children; Mrs. Emma Rogers and one child; E. Minor, Homer Harrington, Heppner.

Over the Fence.—Charles Sperry and Charles McFarland, Heppner.

Huckleberry Camp.—Ted Mansell and Will Lane, Pendleton.

Hard Scrabble.—V. C. Campbell and John Bowman, Pendleton.

There are now about seventy-five people, four cottages and fifteen tents here. No doubt there will be two or three times as many later in the season.

The highest heat indicated by the thermometer this season is eighty-five degrees. If you will compare it with the Pendleton temperature you will, I think, find about twelve degrees difference. The nights are quite cool, and overcoats are often seen in the evening.

Monday is wash-day, and the girls—yes, the girls—girls who I imagine, when at home, let their mothers attend to that department, range themselves in the vestal row of cleansers. It makes by no means an uninteresting sight to see eight or ten ladies bobbing their heads up and down to the accompaniment of camp gossip, as they rub the buttons off the garments on an old-fashioned wash-board.

The springs are near the head of a small stream that empties into Canas creek, one and a-half miles above Canas prairie, and Mr. Lehman has made extensive improvements in his efforts to make them pleasant and convenient. There is an enclosure of about forty acres clear of everything except the large fir, pine and tamarac, which furnish abundant shade, and here in this enclosure Mr. Lehman has erected the following buildings: Hotel, 12x34 feet, with a dining-room 12x18 feet, and lodging-house 8x16 feet; four large cottages or dwellings for those who wish to rent; bath house 13x50 feet, containing six bath rooms at present; store, 12x20, where nearly everything is kept for sale; billiard room, 14x20 feet, with pool table; dance hall, 28x32 feet.

A large dam has been placed across the stream, making a pond or plunge bath 6x120 feet, where those who are fond of swimming disport themselves at all times of the day.

Swings, croquet grounds and other sports are well patronized. Mr. Lehman is untiring in his efforts to make his family, as he calls them, at home, and he has certainly succeeded in making it a thoroughly Democratic community, for everyone seems bubbling over with good feeling and friendly solicitude.

I have visited a great many health resorts, and cannot see why this should not equal the best. Here we have a high altitude, pure-scented air, hot mineral baths, pure cold water, exercise, and if care is left behind, it will certainly benefit anyone to take an outing in such a place as this. There are some features which strike me as rather peculiar, and others which are not advantageous to this place as a resort.

The absence of birds, the merry songsters, who to me make the woodland attractive, are here wanting; we listen for their music in vain. The bright-colored flowers which should deck every rural scene are here represented only by a white flower, resembling in shape the phlox and a small pale-blue flower which grows in some profusion up on the mountain sides. There are a few others, but not many.

The roads to the springs are long and tedious. One arrives here very tired and is loth to leave on that account. However, Mr. Lehman is constantly improving them, and has this year removed the rocks and made nine miles of good road; and when I come to think it over, I think, after all, it is well worth the trip, for where do we find pleasure in this life without effort.

LET'S HAVE A TOURNAMENT.

It Will Furnish Sport and Amusement and Be Not Without More Substantial Advantages.

The base-ball association met in the EAST OREGONIAN office yesterday evening for the purpose of arranging for a tournament in Pendleton, and perfecting the organization of the association. A committee consisting of Lot Livermore, J. H. Turner, Frank Johnson, and Horace Stillman was appointed to secure grounds for the tournament, and will endeavor to obtain the F. O. A. A. grounds in the lower end of town. J. R. Dickson and E. L. Mims were appointed as a committee to secure members for the association, the object being to induce every one to take an active interest in the promotion of the national game. A regular stock company may be organized for this purpose, steps being also taken in this direction. Too much encouragement cannot be given to the effort of securing a tournament, and the amount of hard work, money and rustling given in this direction will receive its three-fold reward should the effort be successful.

There is no reason, now that Pendleton has a crack baseball club, and a number of influential citizens bubbling over with enthusiasm on the baseball question, why a tournament could not be arranged as easy as "rolling off a log," and every inducement should be offered by every one to help the thing along. It will surpass a Fourth of July celebration or a fair at this high stage of the baseball fever, and cannot but result in benefit to the town and its business men.

WHAT THE OREGONIAN SAYS.

Cran Would Have Been Elected Mayor had he Remained in Pendleton.

The Pendleton baseball club won the tournament at Baker City. Their catcher was Oscar Cran, one of the Portland club's recent acquisitions. It is needless to say that the people of Pendleton were pleased over the result. Nor did they fail to show their appreciation of the work done. They presented Mr. Cran with the following testimonial:

To Oscar Cran, Esq.:—We, the undersigned citizens of Pendleton and admirers of the game of baseball, desire to express our appreciation of the fine playing done by you in catching for the Pendleton B. B. C. in their championship contest at Baker City, on July 22, 1888. In our opinion your brilliant work behind the bat and good judgment at critical points of the game was what largely enabled us to come off victorious and we wish you continued success.

The letter is signed by forty-eight of the leading citizens of the city, including Hon. James A. Fee, circuit judge, J. E. Bean, J. H. Raley, Lehman Blum, cashier Pendleton national bank, C. S. Jackson, manager EAST OREGONIAN, Wm. Martin, county judge, John C. Leasure, R. Alexander, Lee Moorhouse, E. Mayer and others.

If Cran should happen to settle in Pendleton he could probably be elected to any position within the gift of the people.

Two Prisoners Pardoned.

Gov. Pennoyer has commuted the sentence of E. T. Barnett, sentenced to four years in the penitentiary, from Multnomah county, for the larceny by bullock, and of John M. Culp, serving a sentence of twelve years, from December 10, 1864, for manslaughter, committed in Jackson county, both to expire to-day.

The reason assigned in Barnett's case is former good reputation and unimpeachable standing, doubts as to his guilt, and uniform good conduct; the condition is made that he leave the State forever. Among the papers filed in the case was a letter from Governor Foraker, of Ohio, concerning Barnett's reputation.

Culp was convicted for killing a man named George W. Smith at Willow Springs. Smith was found dead in Culp's barn, and the evidence against him was entirely circumstantial. The reasons for commutation are "grave doubts as to his guilt, based upon the affidavit of the leading witness of the prosecution that he had testified falsely, previous good conduct and uniformly good conduct while in prison."

L. DUSENBERY & CO. Protection of Tariff Reform.

Beyond question, the Tariff is the issue on which the coming campaign will be fought and it behooves every citizen who could vote intelligently to inform himself upon a subject which so closely affects his temporal welfare.

GEN. LIEB'S BOOK, The Protective Tariff. WHAT IT DOES FOR US.

Readers who is usually considered a most abstract subject easy of comprehension. It will serve as a Tariff primer for the learner as well as a text-book for the learned. This book shows the practical effect of the Protective System upon the country. Perhaps the most conspicuous feature of the book is its exact alignment with the message of President Cleveland.

The position of Mr. Blaine's "Twenty Years in Congress" is taken up, his assertions upon the Tariff analyzed, criticised and made to furnish their own refutation.

INDORSEMENTS: The form as well as the substance of the book is most admirable, and I have seen nothing surpassing it for use to the great work of spreading the truth among the people. It is an able and logical exposition of the injustice and delusions of the protective tariff. The work is timely, and a very valuable contribution to the literature of tariff reform.

I notice that this book is receiving great commendation. It is based upon fundamental truths, and I wish that the facts and arguments may be in the hands of every citizen called upon this year to vote upon the great economical questions of surplus and tariff.

We take pleasure in giving this work our hearty indorsement, and recommend that local committees and clubs assist in extending its circulation among the voters of Illinois. STATE DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF ILLINOIS.
