It is now announced by the railroad managers that when the O. & W. T. reaches the city, coal will be delivered at Walla Walla for $7 a ton, a big reduction over former rates. Pendleton will lose hundreds of dollars this winter on the item of coal, because of the non-completion of Hunt's road to this place.

When the two new hotels and the court house are finished Pendleton can say without the least self-flattery that no town of its size in the whole of Oregon can illuminate it with a candle in the matter of number and magnificence of fine hulldings.

There were, of course, many entertaining features, and indeed every selection on the list was creditably performed, considering that all the singers were amateurs. Lack of space forbids a complete review of the program, although it was worthy of it. Following is a brief synopsis of a few leading features of the entertainment:

After the usual address, Rev. T. M. Boyd being the speaker, the performance began with a general opening chorus, "The Miller's Wooing." by the Handel-Haydn Society, which was excellently rendered, and following came a quiet symphony, a musical dream, in the shape of a harmonious piano and organ duet by Rev. Lee and Prof. Hepburn.

RUMORED SHOOTING SCRAPE.

A Report Reaches Town That Another Quarrel has Occurred Near Alba-Johnny

Lightfoot Shot. A report has reached town, brought by a person from that neighborhood, that a person from that neighborhood, that another shooting scrape had occurred in the mountains near Alba, following upon the very heels of the one in which unfortunate Len Campbell lost his life.

The story, which could not be traced to an authentic source, and cannot therefore be vouched for, is as follows:

As was reported, the bands of sheep belonging to the Campbell boys and Mr. Lightfoot had become mixed, and occasion.

As was reported, the bands of sheep belonging to the Campbell boys and Mr. Lightfoot had become mixed, and occasioned the quarrel which ended so tragically. After the affair was over, Mr. Lightfoot, still supposing some of his sheep were mixed with Campbell's band, sent his son, Johnny, to the Campbell camp to inquire into the matter. Ed Campbell, who was there, became angered, and told the young fellow that he should not enter the band to make the investigation, but notwithstanding this command Lightfoot went in among the sheep. At this Campbell, who was brooding over his brother's death, and was prone to revenge what he considered an insult, drew his pistol and fired, killing young Lightfoot's horse, a bullet also taking effect in the leg of its rider, how severely is not known. Lightfoot returned the fire, emptying three chambers of his revolver, but his assailant escaped the bullets, as he had done in the previous encounter. The combatants then parted company, Lightfoot doubtless thinking that one bullet was already a little too heavy a load to be comfortably carried away, without adding more to the burden.
