It was a picnic to watch a crowd of men attempt to raise the one-legged colt to a standing posture to-day in the court yard. The animal had been lying down for some time, and the impression got abroad that it was unable to rise. Thereupon a number of tender-hearted men got around the animal, and pulled, and twisted and tugged in vain. After they were exhausted the waggish colt hopped up alone on its three legs as lively as its more fortunate brothers. The crowd was sold.

One of the prisoners engaged in repairing the road near the bridge above town, slipped away yesterday about noon, and made rapid tracks for the golden elsewhere. Along towards evening, however, he was seen skulking down a gulch, and an officer started after him with a pistol. He refrained from firing, and finally ran the fellow down, who will be compelled to serve out his sentence for vagrancy with hard labor. with hard labor.

At the Wallowa brick yard while digging clay, some bones of a mammoth animal, now extinct, were unearthed. Part of one bone is gone, but enough remains to show that it was probably the hip bone and is almost as large as a man's body. The other is evidently a rib and measures seven feet in length. The bones were found underneath the clay on a layer of sand.

An out-and-out raccoon can be seen An out-and-out raccoon can be seen confined in a wooden cage in front of Kemper's beer hall. It was captured by A. B. Hanna, a mile or so above town, after considerable difficulty. These animals are very scarce in the vicinity of Pendleton, and, indeed, yery few are aware of their existence. His raccoonship, therefore, becomes an object of much curiosity and attention.

F. H. Kemper has received the intelligence that his brother, William, who is now in Dakota Territory, has had his foot amputated in a hospital there. Many years ago, while playing at school, he was struck on the foot by a stone from the hands of a companion, the effect of which, although not until recently, made the amputation of that member necessary.

Charles Rayburn returned on last night's train from Moscow, Idaho, where he has been working for some time. He says the rain, snow and blizzards in that section froze him out, and he wanted to get back to the genial climate of East-ern Oregon in general, and Pendleton in particular. Charley was welcomed home by many a friend.

A boarding-house car, standing near the depot, was gutted of its contents this afternoon by fire, which caught from the stope-pipe. No alarm was turned in, but members of the Alert hose team took the fire in hand and soon had it under con-trol, coupling their hose to a hydrafit in the vicinity.

The Republicans of Pendleton and vicinity are to have a GRAND TORCH LIGHT procession on Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, at 8 o'clock. All Republicans wishing to participate in the celebration are invited to come on horseback, in buggies and wagons and swell the crowd.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

Arrival of the Water Wheel for the New ystem of Electric Lights. A turbine water wheel of the Victor patiern, manufactured by the firm of S'illwell & Brier, Chicago, to be used in furnishing power for the operation of the dynamos of the consolidated electric light companies has arrived, and can be seen at the Fendleton flouring mill. The wheel has a capacity of one hundred seen at the l'endleton flouring mill. The wheel has a capacity of one hundres horse-power, a supply more than ample The iron casing in which it will be con fined has also arrived, and is much large than ordinary. It looks as though a family could live in it comfortably, and have a model "iron house." The wheel have a model country to the description of now in use for the operation of the dy namo at the mill, which will be removed is a Leffel, of only twenty-nine horsepower, a supply greatly inadequate for the new dynamos now on the road. One of these is to be used for furnishing incandescents. It is called the "Edison triple system," and will have a large capacity. The other is for furnishing the brilliant arc lights; the name of this system cannot yet be learned. Both dynamos and other paraphernalia will be laid down in Pendleton in the near future, when more can be learned as to their nature and capabilities. A quantity of machinery, belts, pulleys etc., has already arrived in company with the wheel.

It can be gathered from the above that the Pendleton Electric Light and Power Comany believes in doing things on an extensive scale, and in anticipating evis a Leffel, of only twenty-nine horse

The stone building at Byers' mill which will contain the machinery of the electric light system, is now nearly com

An Eccentric Hermit.

From the Jacksonville, Or., Times, An old man named Wm. Contner was found dead in his bed at his place near Central Point last Thursday. He had long resided there alone, living the life of a hermit, in an adobe house, and it was supposed he was in good circumstances. Search of the premises after his death revealed the most primitive arrangements for his domestic comfort. His water bucket was hollowed from a white oak knot, as were also his drinking and water bucket was hollowed from a white oak knot, as were also his drinking and eating utensils. He reached the water in his well, some eighteen feet deep, by a series of steps cut in the soil. His cellar was a tunnel at the bottom of a shaft twelve feet deep, and contained a supply of fruits and winter vegetables. He raised no crop but tobacco, of which he sold a considerable quantity and it was currently reported that he had treasure hidden about the premises. His bed was composed of burlap sacks filled with leaves and his whole surrounding indicated but few removes from the wooden age or the cave dwellers.

Jack Bartle, well known in Southern Oregon as a former stage driver on the old overland route, made two attempts at committing suicide in Ashland recently, the first and most dangerous by taking an ounce of chloroform and the other by tempting to cut his throat with a knife, says the "Record." Dr. Parsons was called and rendered the necessary medical aid, but his stomach is so loadly burned by so much drug that survival is doubtful. Trouble with his wife and her determination to see for a divorce led him to attempt the rash act.
