HAPPY NEW YEAR.

BEVA LOCKWOOD ran twice as well in Kentucky as in New York. She received three votes in all.

LA GRANDE proposes to make a vigorous effort to secure the location of the Union county seat at that place.

THERE'S a preacher over in Sand Hollow named Reasoner. If he is rightly named he ought to do a good business in his line.

Col. John Kelsey, of Corvallis, says he will make an aggressive fight in the coming Legislature for election as United States Senator.

THE Portland News says there is a "Reign of Terror" with a big R and T—throughout the Gulf States. There must be a reign of King Fibber in the News office.

THE East Portland Vindicator thinks any person who advocates the election of the President by a direct vote of the people is an "embryo anarchist." If that be the case, then "Hoch die anarchist."

A CORRESPONDENT of the Oregonian wants the State tax apportioned among the counties according to the vote cast at the preceding election. If this brilliant idea were carried out, what a decrease there would be in the vote all at once.

A PORTLAND paper says: "Judge Geo. H. Williams made a formal profession of religion at the Tabernacle on Friday evening of last week. When called upon to make a few remarks, he arose and said: 'Yesterday Mr. Moody came to my house and I joined with him in prayer, the first time I ever bowed my knees to God or man in my life.'"

By the way, President-elect Harrison is a very pious fellow, we believe.

HELENA (M. T.) Independent: "The Portland Oregonian, in villifying Mrs. Cleveland, is showing as little originality as decency. The Minneapolis Tribune was the pioneer in the business, but found it necessary, in order to appease the wrath of the community in which it is published, to make a retraction of the offensive article. If Portland is half as decent as Minneapolis, the outrageous editorial in the Oregonian of the 14th inst. will cost it dearly."

WALLA WALLA people are not very anxious for Statehood, after all, judging by the following from the Journal: "The people, on the whole, are not so over-anxious to press this matter of transforming this Territory into a State. They are perfectly willing to let the thing take its usual, if not natural, course. The cry of Statehood is not raised by our business men or farming community, and never was. It is merely the 'Marsellians' of politicians and office-seekers, who are after the loaves and fishes."

DIANA MIDDLETON, a negro who died recently near Clinton, Tenn., is believed to have been the oldest person in the world. According to the best accounts she had reached the remarkable age of 126 years. She was kidnapped in Africa and brought to this country before the revolutionary war. She was at that time a slave in Virginia. Later she was sold into North Carolina, and from there she went to Tennessee. She was freed because of her extreme old age before the war. Stranger of all, she was not Washington's nurse.

PETE JACKSON, the negro bruiser, whipped Joe McAuliffe Friday in San Francisco, in 24 rounds. Glad of it. Now we wish some Chinaman would knock out the "Nigger," and an Orang Outang the Chinaman.

THE DAILY.

After a careful canvass and due deliberation the EAST OREGONIAN has decided that it cannot begin the publication of a morning paper with full associated press dispatches at this time. Yet we are making negotiations, which will take several weeks, by which we will probably be able to do so, provided there is a prospect of Pendleton continuing its growth. In our estimation, as our readers are aware, that growth depends chiefly upon securing a competing railroad, the prospects for which do not at present appear very encouraging.

The Evening Daily now gives the best press report that we can afford; better indeed than any paper between Portland and Salt Lake City, and it must suffice for the present. To publish the sort of a morning daily we have in contemplation would involve an additional expense of about $300 per month, which we could not stand up under.

Whether the Evening Daily even will be long continued remains to be seen. We have no fault to find with the patronage of the people of Pendleton, which has been generally liberal, but a town of Pendleton's present size cannot maintain a good daily newspaper. If it grows, it can; if it stands still, it will not. The present arrangement will be continued, however, until further notice.

BAKER CITY.

It is evident that Baker City is growing rapidly. Mr. Downing, who was over a few days ago, said he thought fully one hundred dwelling houses had been built during the year. The burnt block is also being rebuilt; and the town has lately erected a $30,000 school house. Baker has a very large and profitable trade with several mining districts, whose riches have probably just begun to be developed.

The resources around Pendleton are somewhat different from those around Baker. Here they are chiefly agricultural; there the mining and stock industries take the lead. There is more room and opportunity here for permanent and enduring growth, though both towns may grow and prosper almost equally if each takes advantage of its opportunities.

Failing to secure the Hunt railroad, however, Pendleton will within the next year fall behind Baker, and not long after that behind La Grande. The region around Pendleton is such as to demand large transportation facilities, and its position is such that competing lines are absolutely necessary to its prosperity.

Pendleton has the choice in her own hands now, as it will never have again, of becoming the chief city of Eastern Oregon, or of dropping down to fourth or fifth on the list.

OREGON is, or should be, if anything, a food producing State. It has all the resources for producing in unlimited quantities all kinds of food, except such as are produced only in tropical countries. It is not too much to say that Oregon and Washington, if their food producing resources were taxed to their full capacity, would feed the whole people of the United States.—Oregonian.

Yes, and the only market for our surplus food products is in foreign countries, chiefly England. Hence the sublime beauty of a protective tariff, which decreases the price of the food products, and enhances the cost of necessities received in exchange therefor.

THE latest very distinguished visitor to General Harrison was Senator Teller. Strange to say, it was at once discovered just what he went out for to do. It was to advocate Blaine's appointment, and to protest against Blaine's appointment; to urge Platt, and to warn against Platt; and then he came away, and all the world wondered.

SPRINGER proposes to call South Dakota, when admitted as a State, Winona; North Dakota to retain the name Dakota; Montana to retain its present name; Washington to be called Tacoma, and New Mexico Montezuma. Springer's head is level.

It is rumored at Washington that President Cleveland will veto the River and Harbor bill.

A dynamite cartridge was placed under the Carter house, McGeheysville, Va., in which a party of negroes were having a dance. It exploded and almost totally destroyed the building, and injured Amos Moore and two women. Terrible loss of life would have happened if an alarm had not been given by a man who saw the cartridge and recognized the danger.

The taxes of the Southern Pacific company for the 1888-89, amounting to $521,679.60, were paid into the California state treasury Friday.

Roger Q. Mills says that tariff reform will be the issue that will lead the Democracy to victory four years hence.
