The Age of State Development.

During the past six months the State of Oregon has made wonderful progress in the field of irrigation development. Ditch companies have been organized, and construction is well under way in many sections. Capital at home and abroad has been readily obtainable for these grand, legitimate enterprises, and the next six months will bring an era of better and more substantial prosperity than has yet been known in the history of the state. Waste places will be blotted from the map of the commonwealth, and fruitful fields will take the place of arid sections. The people of Oregon desire to keep track of the great changes being made within state lines. You can do it for $2 per year. That amount pays for the great industrial journal, THE IRRIGATION AGE.
