BRYAN AT WALLA WALLA.

Spoke Twice to Thousands of People. His Pendleton Speech.

The coming of W. J. Bryan to Pendleton will pass into local history as one of the important events. The address which was heard by several thousand people made a profound impression and is pronounced the ablest public address ever heard in this section. Many declare it to be the greatest discussion of public issues ever heard.

The proof that it has done these things is on file with your druggist. We guarantee it to do all these things. Note: There is nothing "just as good" or "just the same" as Foley's Honey and Tar, although there are substitutes on which dealers make more profit. BANNER SALVE cures piles. It's guaranteed.

at the depot, in the presence of thousands of spectators, by fifty or more carriages, and two brass bands; one of Walla Walla and one from Waitsburg. The sidewalks were literally lined with people from the depot to the Hotel Dares, where the Bryan reception was held. The special made the time from Pendleton to Walla Walla in one hour and ten minutes. At 2 o'clock lunch was served, and during that time the program had to be changed on account of the rain. Thousands of people were disappointed on account of the opera house being too small, and the court house was filled, with the promise that Bryan would speak there also, which he did, after speaking two hours in the opera house. He spoke one hour in the court house.

At Salem. In its report of the Bryan meeting at Salem, the Oregon Daily Statesman (republican), under date line which say that nearly 14,000 people heard the Nebraskaan, said: "Col. William Jennings Bryan, the distinguished democratic leader, was fettered a grand reception in Oregon's Capital City yesterday. Estimates regarding the crowd vary, but 7500 is considered a reasonable estimate of the visitors from outside points. N. J. Judah, chairman of the general committee, estimated the crowd at 8200, while John Bayne, another member of the same committee, placed the number at 10,000. Major D. C. Sherman, a member of the reception committee, thinks there were 14,000 visitors in the city."

BRYAN IN PORTLAND.

Portland is making tremendous preparations for the advent of the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, who will speak in that city April 4 at the exposition auditorium, and will be tendered a public reception at the Portland hotel. The auditorium will be so arranged at the exposition building that from 10,000 to 20,000 people will be within the sound of the speaker's voice.

The eloquence of this great orator has thrilled the people of Oregon before, but it is evident from surface indications that he will be more warmly greeted than ever before upon this occasion.

The railroads and the steamship lines have made a special low rate to excursionists desiring to visit the Metropolis of the Northwest upon the day of Mr. Bryan's welcome. Already the transportation lines fear that they may not be able to handle the vast throngs of people that will go to democracy's standard bearer and are borrowing coaches from other roads and are preparing to press into service every available car.

Portland will be taxed to her utmost to properly care for the crowds that are coming here. The enterprising citizens are taking time opportunely to prepare for the masses and every visitor will go away feeling that he has been royally entertained and was amply repaid by the spectacle of a magnificent convalescence and the knowledge that he heard Hon. W. J. Bryan discuss the living issues of the day.

HAS A FINE REPORT.

Roy Raley Proves Skillful in Newspaper Stenography. The interest in the speech of Mr. Bryan is so general that the East Oregonian will publish it in full. The services of Roy Raley, an expert young stenographer, were secured, and he has the stenographic notes complete. He has reproduced it upon the typewriter and has the speech verbatim, having taken Mr. Bryan's language with remarkable accuracy. Inasmuch as Mr. Raley, although known as a fine office stenographer, had not previously attempted newspaper stenographic work, the excellent report of Mr. Bryan's address he has taken and now reproduced in this paper by local newspaper men as highly creditable to him.
