Imperialism is costing those who pay the taxes something like $500,000,000 a year. It comes high but we haven't got to have it. Imperialism is the child of the trusts and the money devil which have secured control of the republican party.

The Kentucky court of appeals, by a vote of six to one, two republican judges voting with the majority, decided in the election case that "the governor of the state has no power to adjourn the legislature except in case of disagreement between the two bodies."

W. J. Chastain, of Milton, candidate on the democratic ticket in this county for the legislature, will receive a large vote in this section of the county. Mr. Chastain is an old citizen of the county, respected by all who know him, and capable in every way to represent the people of this county. And best of all, Mr. Chastain is not a politician or an officeseeker and never shirks a duty.

The belief is gaining ground in the conservative east that in the democratic party alone is there at this crisis any hope of triumph of the splendid republican ideas, of the overthrow of militarism, imperialism and monopoly. Newspapers which supported McKinley in 1896 are now declaring for Bryan, and it is even said that 500,000 democrats who voted against the standard bearer four years ago will vote for him this year, feeling assured that what he stands for is better for the country from any and all standpoints.

Whitelaw Reid, in an address to the Philippine commission, just before it set sail for the islands, uttered half in jest a great truth. He said: "What do the American people in general and without distinction of party look to you for? If the truth must be whispered in your ear, there are here and there very sincere, capable people who are growing a bit weary of a multiplicity of commissions. They say—so cynical are they—that in all ages and countries, the easiest method of evading or postponing a difficult problem has been to appoint a commission on it and thus prolong the circumlocution" There have been more worthless, useless, extravagant commissions under the present administration than any other, and little have they accomplished, to the great disgust of the American people. Yet, while doing nothing, they have squandered large sums of the people's money, wrung from them through an iniquitous form of taxation.

There is once more talk of making Theodore Roosevelt the republican candidate for the vice presidency. It is even said that President McKinley insists upon Roosevelt accepting the honor and in doing so only has the best interests of Roosevelt and the party at heart. The fact is, the party needs a savior and Roosevelt is about the most available man for the sacrifice. President McKinley realizes that he is losing votes and that something must be done to create enthusiasm for the ticket with himself at the head of it, and Roosevelt is to be forced to take second place. If he accepts it the American people will be surprised, as they have heretofore looked upon the Rough Rider as a man of judgment as well as one of conviction, as an acceptance would certainly injure his political fortunes. If Theodore Roosevelt runs for vice president in 1900 he will not stand a ghost of a show for the presidental nomination in 1904, as otherwise he would.

India has been for nearly two hundred years under the absolute control of Great Britain, its own people having no more voice or authority in its management than the Filipinos or Porto Ricans have at the present day in their own government. And the net result of two hundred years of British rule—well intended as it may have been, kindly and just as it has been in the main—is that not less than five millions of its people are doomed to death by the cruel torture of starvation, mitigated only by a speedier death from the plague, and fully sixty millions—nearly as many as the whole population of the United States—are suffering from lack of the bare necessaries of life. History affords poor encouragement to the colonial policy on the part of any country. When a people fail to properly govern themselves no other people can undertake it with any degree of success. Self-government is best under any and all circumstances. Every man should have the fullest opportunity to govern himself.

M'KINLEY AND ROOSEVELT.

It is talked around Washington City that Theodore Roosevelt is in danger of being drafted into the service of the national republican party as a candidate for vice president on the ticket with President McKinley. Governor Roosevelt is not willing to take this nomination, and has made his wishes known in an unmistakable manner. He says he wants to be re-elected as governor of New York, and believes he can be of more service to the party in that role than as a candidate for vice-president.

But President McKinley, it has become known, wants Roosevelt on the ticket and is inclined to insist that the governor yield his political preferences for the good of the party at large. There was discussion of this matter at the cabinet meeting recently, and as Senator Hanna had just returned from New York, where he had a conference with ex-Secretary Bliss, it was understood he had reported Mr. Bliss unwilling to take the vice-presidential nomination and advising that Governor Roosevelt be pressed into service.

It cannot be said with truth that the question is irrevocably decided, but present appearances are that President McKinley will personally urge Governor Roosevelt to take the second place on the ticket and almost refuse to accept declination for an answer. Either this or the Philadelphia convention will be given the tip to go ahead and nominate Roosevelt despite the governor's declarations of unwillingness. Those who advocate this course say Governor Roosevelt is too good a party man to refuse to respond to such a call, and that he will accept and take the stump.

* * *

There are many reasons why Governor Roosevelt is wanted on the ticket this year. All of these reasons are complimentary to the governor. First, there is in Washington and in administration circles, as everywhere throughout the country, a recognition of the probability that Governor Roosevelt is the coming man in this country. The horoscope read, not in the stars, but in the minds of the American people, point to this brave and capable young American as a coming president.

Governor Roosevelt's friends in Washington say he has himself to some extent, caught the spirit of the day, and that he is, naturally, willing to so shape his career as to meet the wishes of his party. In accordance with this it is his desire to be re-elected governor of New York and not to identify himself with national politics until the time comes when the party may want him at the head of the ticket.

But all the governor's friends do not take this view of the situation. Some of them think the best thing he could do would be to get out of New York politics, which at best are hazardous with a boss ruling the republican party there with an iron hand and methods which are not always overscrupulous, and become once more a truly national figure.

In President McKinley's mind it is said there is no hostility to Governor Roosevelt; nothing but the kindliest feeling and desire to aid in promoting the future career of that brilliant young republican. In line with this is the suggestion that he be drafted now.

* * *

But the chief reason why Roosevelt is wanted by President McKinley is to strengthen the ticket. It is conceded by the president and by his closest advisers that the naming of the hero of San Juan Hill for vice president would be the best possible politics for the republican party. No one now attempts to disguise the fact that the republican party has a big fight on its hands this year. It is not going to be all plain and easy sailing. There are many weak points and some of these the nomination of Governor Roosevelt would close up.

If the democrats should happen to name Dewey for vice president on the ticket with Bryan, as is the latest gossip in the higher political circles in Washington, then there would be all the more reason why the republicans should have upon their ticket a hero of the late war with Spain. When it comes to war heroes there is none in the country who holds such a warm place in the affections of the people as Theodore Roosevelt. He is fitted for any office in the gift of the American people, and if any accident should call him prematurely to the presidency, the people would feel that they had a man worthy in character and training to meet all responsibilities in a most creditable manner.

There is still another reason why Roosevelt is wanted on the ticket. It has to do with the practical part of the campaign. President McKinley cannot take the active part in the campaign this year that he did in 1896. He is president now, and something is due to the dignity of the office. He does not feel that it would be becoming of him to tour the country making speeches, nor even to have delegations visit him, as at Canton four years ago.

* * *

Hence it is desirable that there be some man on the ticket who can go into the campaign with enthusiasm, with eloquence, with energy, and carry the imagination of the people with him. No one could do this better than Roosevelt. He is one of the greatest campaigners in the country. He would be a fair match for Mr. Bryan, and even for Bryan with Dewey tagging on behind as a hero of the war.

In many ways the governor of New York fits nicely into the situation which is now developing. For instance, it is no longer denied that the Boer war and the sympathies of a large part of the American people with the struggling republics of South Africa is to play an indirect but important part in the campaign. President McKinley is accused, though unjustly, of being a sympathizer with Great Britain. But Governor Roosevelt, himself of Dutch extraction, is known as a friend of the Boers.

* * *

According to the gossip in administration circles, the president has quite set his heart upon having Roosevelt on the ticket, and as the president is conceded to be in supreme command of the republican party this year the chances appear to be that he will have his way about it. If the president continues of his present opinion till the convention meet at Philadelphia, he can easily force the nomination of Roosevelt. In fact, all he will have to do will be to keep hands off, for the republican party is eager enough to draft the young governor of the empire state and could not be restrained there from by any thing save the positive declaration of Mr. Roosevelt that he would not accept.

From all sections of the country come cries for Roosevelt, and President McKinley, who is admittedly as good a politician as the country holds, has perceived this side of public opinion and is anxious to run with and not against it. It is even conceded in administration circles that if President McKinley were to die or step aside, the republican party would nominate Roosevelt for president almost as unanimously as it now stands ready to renominate the president.

The simple meaning of this is that the strongest republican in the country is Governor Roosevelt, and the president, recgising this fact, wants the governor for his runing mate in order to lessen the chances of William J. Bryan winning in the race, as is quite likely.

Don't Hesitate.

There is just one thing to use if your stomach is "out of order" and that "one thing" is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The supposition is that you want a prompt cure and a lasting cure. That is why the "Discovery" is recommended as the one thing for your condition. It cures promptly, perfectly and permanently, diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It's sure to help. It's almost sure to cure. It has completely cured ninety-eight per cent. of all those who have given it a fair and faithful trial.

"About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach," writes Mr. Wm. Connolly, of 328 Walnut St., Lorain, Ohio. "It got so bad that I had to lay off quite often two and three days in a week, my stomach would bloat, and I would belch up gas, and was in awful distress at such times. I have been treated by the best doctors in this city but got no help whatever. Some said I had cancer of the stomach, others dyspepsia. I have bought and tried everything I saw advertised for dyspepsia and stomach trouble, but continued to get worse all the time. About twelve months ago I was in such a condition that my friends had some fear about my recovery. It was then I wrote to you for advice. You told me that by my symptoms you thought I had liver complaint and advised the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' in connection. These medicines I have taken as directed and am very happy to state that I commenced to get better from the start and have not lost a day this summer on account of my stomach. I feel tiptop, and better than I have for ten years."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the liver.
