The registration of voters in this county is quite heavy. There are more votes in the county than was estimated. It would appear that the population has been considerably increased in the last two years. Umatilla's population is something like 20,000. The result of the census to be taken next month will be waited for with interest.

Bourke Cochran, of New York, made an address recently at Montgomery, Alabama, wherein he proposed to solve the Southern race problem by repealing the fifteenth amendment to the constitution. It would require the votes of three-fourths of all the states to do that, and these could not be obtained. Therefore, the advice of Mr. Cochran is impractical. As ex-Gov. MacCorkle, of West Virginia, pointed out, the negro population is not only a valuable factor in the industrial progress of the South but is also an element of political strength which in the future the South may find itself interested to utilize. The repeal of the fifteenth amendment would necessarily mean a reduced representation of the South in congress and in the Electoral college. One thing is certain, revolutions do not move backward. Mr. Cochran in his address appears to think they do.

The assessment of Multnomah county for 1899, shows a reduction of $11,210, 093 in value over 1896. Money on hand and assessed in 1895 amounted to $1,023,176 while in 1899 it decreased to $527,225. Town lots fell from $20,261, 534 to $14,122,008. Improvements from $9,771,497 to $6,557,192. On April 3, 1899, a little more than one month later than this assessment, the statements of the four national banks of Portland showed deposits amounting to over five billions, and it is safe to say that the seven private banks of that city had as much more, or a total of ten millions and yet only one-half million was assessed. In other words, under our present taxation system, taxation is unequal, and almost everybody looks upon it as robbery, and all of those that do, attempt to escape it. In short, the present system of raising revenues for government offers opportunity to the rascal and tempts the honest taxpayer to become one. In fact, it affords a school for scoundrels.

It is asserted by the leaders of the prohibition party that fully 500 votes will be polled in this county for that party's ticket at the election next month. This is undoubtedly an over estimate. There are a great many people who have symptoms of voting the ticket but they never do. They preach prohibition, but they do not vote it. To attempt to control men's appetites by enacting and enforcing a man-made law is almost a waste of effort. Men who cannot govern their appetites should probably not be allowed to participate in the government of others. If the man who abuses the use of alcoholic beverages was disfranchised, on the ground that since he cannot control himself he should not expect to participate in governing others by his right of suffrage, it would likely do more for temperance than even the adoption of prohibition, and at the same time it would leave to men who could control themselves all the rights guaranteed to them under free institutions and self-government.

The trainmen on the Washington and Columbia river railroad should be informed in no uncertain way that the road has no switching rights on Webb street. The switching should be done in the company's yards in the lower end of town, and not upon a street where teams and people are passing at all hours of the day. At times the streets in the vicinity of the mills are blocked for a half hour or more with a train switching, to the risk of people passing with teams and on foot. And even "iving switches" are now and then indulged in, when the streets are filled with children returning from school. The council should inform the railroad company of the careless action of its train crews and, if a stop is not put to the abuse, the guilty ones should be vigorously prosecuted. The trains of the company have a right to go up and down the street, and from its depot, but the company has no right to leave its trains standing upon the street or to switch its cars on the street, and the management of the road is of such an intelligent kind that it only needs its attention called to the abuse in a proper way for it to afford a remedy.

MOLDING NATIONAL CHARACTER.
To the earnest observer the last three years have developed some significant changes in the character of the people of this republic. Some of these may be considered commendable and in furtherance of a higher national standard, but it cannot be denied that others must be viewed with regret by those who have a clear grasp of the possibilities of character building. These statements are in the nature of axioms. Science requires that a man's mind be his own, that he acts as his own, that he shall defend his property in them, have pride in them and stand by them. Clearly, then, the study of science in a scientific way is one of the most powerful factors in character building, and, as Mr. Crowe concludes, "if in our schools we might insure to all pupils this attitude of mind, this desire for strict veracity, we should have started them well on the way to correct judgments and wise conduct; we should have implanted in their natures the first elements of good citizenship."

"Could Not Sleep."
Sleeplessness marks the very climax of human suffering. It is only a step removed from insanity. When sleep no longer restores the exhausted nature, the struggle with disease cannot last long. The starting point of the nervous disorders which produce ill-health and sleeplessness is generally a diseased condition of the womanly organs. Restore these organs to sound health and the appetite comes back, the day's work no longer wears, and sleep is sound and refreshing. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases of the womanly organs. It stops the drains which weaken women, it heals the inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.
There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is a temperance medicine.
"My health has been poor for many years and I had taken a great deal of medicine, but it did me no good," writes Mrs. Rose Kennedy, of Portland, Co. Wash. "Last August I was very ill. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he kindly advised me to take 'Favorite Prescription.' I took five bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I feel like a new woman without a physician's aid."

Our safety must always lie in the presence of those whose first thoughts are calm and far-seeing, and we must judge our educational system by the number of such men and women it produces. The work of faithful teachers must be directed mainly to this end. "Else we have reached a dangerous crisis, and our sacred duty is to stop and take our bearings. If we have manifested certain national traits hitherto scarcely suspected, and now willingly confessed, every motive of patriotism and prudence should impel us to study our case, that we may effectually prescribe for it."
Mr. Crowe at this point disavows any intention of raising the question of the political wisdom or simple justice of the course which the country has taken in its international relations. He does not here challenge any belief as to these matters which has been formed thoughtfully, honestly, manfully. But he does maintain that the last few months have left lessons for thoughtful, honest men to unite in studying a proposition not likely to

Advice of a Druggist

It is proper, I think, to let others know about the popularity and virtues of Acker's English Remedy for Coughs, Colds and Consumption. From the moment I began handling it, it sold rapidly, and the sales keep growing all the time as fast as people find out what a remarkable preparation it is. The satisfaction it gives is universal. Our best citizens use it and say it is the best thing for throat and lung troubles they ever saw. Mr. S. H. Culver, one of our prominent townsmen, says Acker's English Remedy is the only medicine that helped his chronic cough of many years' standing. At first it gave relief and now, after taking a few bottles, he is wholly cured. I buy it by the gross at a time, and my sales are larger on this one medicine than on any other in my store. It is a great pleasure for me to feel that while I am preparing I am also doing so much good to the community by selling such a grand medicine. (Signed) E. H. DODMAN, Westfield, N. Y.

Sold at 25c, 50c, and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England at 1s, 2s, 3s, 4s, 6d. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back.

If the American people are doing these things—or even if a considerable number is doing them—it certainly is a time for calm consideration and for careful search after a remedy. And the most effective remedy Mr. Crowe believes to be a more thorough study of science in our schools, which, he maintains, tends to produce those most-needed persons of sober first thought. Scientific study brings the mind directly into contact with fact; it practices the mind in its active reason, and the drawing of conclusions from particular facts made known by immediate observation of nature; it defies prejudice, demands a sufficient amount of evidence, laughs at credulity through the appeal to reason of love of truth. These statements are in the nature of axioms. Science requires that a man's mind be his own, that he acts as his own, that he shall defend his property in them, have pride in them and stand by them. Clearly, then, the study of science in a scientific way is one of the most powerful factors in character building, and, as Mr. Crowe concludes, "if in our schools we might insure to all pupils this attitude of mind, this desire for strict veracity, we should have started them well on the way to correct judgments and wise conduct; we should have implanted in their natures the first elements of good citizenship."
