REPUBLICANS IN CONVENTION

Hanna Called the Gathering to Order Amid Much Enthusiasm.

WOLCOTT IS TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

Hanna's Speech Was Well Received and Roosevelt Holds a Leave; Adjournment Until Tomorrow.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 19.—At 12 o'clock promptly the republican national convention of 1900 assembled and the racking excitement of conference and caucus, crushing hands and confusion in the hotel corridors gave way to definiteness and form of actual convention proceedings.

The day opened auspiciously for the event. The air was cool, and indications were for good weather throughout the meeting. Chairman Hanna called the convention to order. Prayer was then offered by Rev. James Gray Bolton, D. D., of Philadelphia.

A Sketch of the Convention.

The leaders were slow in arriving at the hall and it was not until Senator Hanna put in his appearance that the enthusiasm was unbroken. He got a great cheer as he moved to the platform. General Groveson, the white haired veteran, also got cheers. Occupying the seats upon the platform were four of the 13 men now living who were delegates to the first convention of the republican party in 1856. All were members of the regular Ohio delegation. At 12:37 the first pronounced demonstration occurred, when Governor Roosevelt came in. He wore a rough rider hat. The men jumped on chairs to cheer him and the women fluttered handkerchiefs. The delegates crowded forward to greet him and his entrance was like that of a conquering hero. The long gallery was now packed with humanity and the floor from wall to wall was a living sea of people. Senator Hanna seemed in no hurry to call the convention to order. At 12:39 the band broke into strains of the "Star Spangled Banner." Governor Roosevelt was on his feet in response to the national anthem. Instantly the whole convention rose en masse.

The 10,000 people stood while a stirring air was played and applauded with cheer after cheer as they took their seats. Chairman Hanna remained standing. He lifted his gavel and brought it down with a resounding whack, and shouted:

"The convention will come to order." The time was exactly 12:55.

As the opening prayer closed Chairman Hanna was the center of attraction.

"In bidding you welcome" he began, "I wish to congratulate you on this magnificent representation from the republican party. There was no mistake in bringing the convention to Philadelphia, the cradle of liberty, the birthplace of the republic. Here too was the center of that throbbing idea, protection to American industry."

"We are on the eve of another great struggle. Already we are beginning to force our battalions under the leadership of that great statesman, General William McKinley."

This speech was taken as a signal and the convention broke forth in a whirlwind of enthusiasm. Men and women sprang to their feet, delegates, spectators, guests, all animated by a common purpose to do honor to the president, responded.

Wolcott Temporary Chairman.

As Senator Hanna closed his speech he spoke of the sterling service of the senator from Colorado, Wolcott, to his party, and presented him to the convention as the temporary chairman. Wolcott has a clear, resonant voice, which penetrated to the furthest recess of the hall. When, with outstretched arms, he predicted the triumphant election of the republican ticket in November, the audience surrendered, and when he first mentioned McKinley's name he could not proceed again for a full minute, owing to the demonstration. As he rehearsed the history of four years of the republican administration, the victories it had won, the glorious outcome of the Spanish-American war, the campaign in connection in the Philippines, the convention repeatedly broke into wild applause. The first mention of expansion was also a signal for a demonstration, and as his brilliant peroration closed, Chairman Wolcott turned at once to the business of the convention, announcing the list of committees and the officials previously agreed upon.

The Roll Call of States.

The call of the roll of states for the submission of members of the various committees was begun. It proved a tedious process and the convention was virtually in recess as the names were handed in.

While the lists were being brought to the stage, Governor Roosevelt was holding a regular levee in the pit. Delegates swarmed toward him from all directions. When order had been restored, after the confusion incident to this scene, Chairman Wolcott announced that the secretary would read the lists of the various committees. The Clerk read the list in a voice which did not carry fifty feet from the stage and no single name was applauded. When the list had been read Cannon of Illinois moved adjournment until tomorrow. Rev. Levy, who delivered the invocation at the first republican convention in this city, 44 years ago today, delivered benediction upon the convention. The whole convention rose to receive the blessing and then at 3 o'clock adjourned until tomorrow.

The Roosevelt Boom Killed.

Philadelphia, June 19.—It is now asserted that Hanna served notice that Roosevelt's candidacy, although it would have been eminently acceptable at first, put forward as it was by the enemies of the administration, did not meet now with approval and that a fight would be carried to the last ditch. Roosevelt was said to have been told by his friends that to yield would be to stand in his own light as a candidate for president four years hence; that the vice-presidency was a grave yard from which he could never be resuscitated. His place, they argued, was at the head of the ticket in New York again this fall. In the last

AMERICAN SHIPS AT TAKU

They Did Not Act With the Allied Forces Against the Ports.

HEAVY CASUALTIES AMONG CHINESE

Generals and Other High Chinese Officials Are Degraded by the Empress Dowager.

London, June 19.—From German official dispatches it is learned that the American ships took no part in the bombardment of the Taku forts Saturday morning. No news has yet been received of the relief of the legations at Peking. There has been no news from there since June 14.

The admiralty office has received the following dispatch from the officer commanding the cruiser Endymion: "Lien Kan Tau, Monday—The Taku forts opened fire this morning on the ships of the allied squadron. After a six hours' engagement the forts were silenced and occupied by the allied forces. Additional men for the storming of the forts went ashore from the ships the previous afternoon. Four Chinese torpedo boat destroyers were captured. The casualties of the Algerine are slight, while those of the striking party are unknown. A Chinese cruiser, flying an admiral's flag, is retained outside of Taku by the allied demirals. No information of Seymour's return to Tien Tsin has been received."

The Empress is Concerned.

A news agency dispatch from Shanghai says: The latest news from Peking is that the dowager empress is greatly concerned at the capture of the Taku forts and that wholesale degradations of the Chinese army, including Generals Sung Ching and Fung Fu Shiang, the governor of Peking, and other high officials, who promised the Tsung Li Yamen to accomplish the expulsion of the foreigners, have taken place. Three of the Taku forts were completely destroyed, and most of the Chinese in the garrisons were killed or wounded by a charge from sailors of the allied fleets.

Uncle Sam's Attitude to China.

Washington, June 19.—Adjutant General Corbin declares that up to date only one regiment of the ninth infantry had been ordered from Manila to China. In addition to the Oregon, which is to go up to Taku from Hong Kong, the Buffalo, with 200 green lindenmen aboard, has been ordered from Southampton, England, via the Philippines, while the gunboats Princeton and Marietta are being held at Cavite under orders to be ready for service at any moment. The Zairefo is being held at the same place in readiness to take supplies for the naval contingent at Taku.

Admiral Kempff is not limited in the protection he can afford American life and property, but may do anything in his judgment to conserve American interests of all kinds in China. This instruction opens up unexpected possibilities, involving even an alignment of the United States with China, in case it may be found necessary in the manner to prevent any surmounting or destruction by other powers of such trade privileges as we now enjoy in China, improbable as such alignment may be. The official view here is, that there is not yet a state of war between China and the United States. It is contended that the stirring events of Sunday morning did not officially involve us in war and that the action of the Chinese commander at Taku may yet be disavowed, or prove to have been based upon ignorance or a misunderstanding.

French Troops for China.

Paris, June 19.—The minister of marine announces that the French armored cruiser, Guichen, will leave France for Taku on June 23, and that the armored cruiser Admiral Charnoi and the second class cruiser, Frigate, will leave on June 29. He adds that two transports, conveying two battalions of infantry and two batteries of artillery, would leave at the same time.

The flames were finally got under control.

THE SCOURING MILLS.

At Pendleton Are Turning Out First-Class Work.

W. P. Fell, of the Pendleton scouring mill, who has been in Walla Walla this week on a wool-buying mission, returned to Pendleton Wednesday afternoon, says the scouring conversation agent Pendleton's leading industry. Mr. Fell said that the price of wool is better this season, compared with that of last year, but that clips are slow to come in for the reason that sheepmen are waiting for a repetition of the prices during December and January. However, the sheepmen around Pendleton are disposing of their clips more generally than those in other sections of the country.

Last year the Pendleton scouring mill used as much as 5,000,000 pounds of wool, and this year the output will be still greater. The daily capacity of the mill is from 25,000 to 40,000 pounds and from 55 to 70 men are given employment. The product of these mills is getting a wide reputation as first class in every respect and is equal to if not superior to the manufactured wools of any factory in the country.

Mr. Fell says that Pendleton was never in better condition at this season of the year. Several business houses and many residences have been erected this spring, and the city in general is enjoying many improvements. The crop prospects in Umatilla county were never so good.
