KIDNEY TROUBLES OF WOMEN

Miss Frederick's Letters Show How She Relied on Mrs. Pinkham and Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have a yellow, muddy complexion, feel tired and have bearing down pains. Menstrues have not appeared for three months; sometimes am troubled with a white discharge. Also have kidney and bladder trouble. I have been this way for a long time, and feel so miserable I thought I would write to you and see if you could do me any good."—Miss EDNA FREDERICK, Troy, Ohio, Aug. 6, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound according to directions, and can say I have not felt so well for years as I do at present. Before taking your medicine a more miserable person you never saw. I could not eat or sleep, and did not care to talk with any one. Now I feel so well I cannot be grateful enough to you for what you have done for me."—Miss EDNA FREDERICK, Troy, Ohio, Sept. 10, 1899.

Backache Cured. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to thank you for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. It is the only medicine I have found that helped me. I doctored with one of the best physicians in the city of New York, but received no benefit. I had been ailing for about sixteen years, was so weak and nervous that I could hardly walk; had continued pain in my back and was troubled with leucorrhoea. Menstrues were irregular and painful. Words cannot express the benefit I have derived from the use of your medicine. I heartily recommend it to all suffering women."—Miss MARY BARRINGER, Windsor, Pa.

MCKINLEY AND ROOSEVELT

They are the Standard Bearers of the Republican Party for 1900.

ARE NOMINATED WITHOUT OPPOSITION

The Enthusiasm Was Unbounded and Soon After the Nominations the Convention Adjourned sine die.

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., June 21.—This was a great day, and long before 10 o'clock the hall was surrounded by an immense army of people. Governor Roosevelt entered the hall at 10 o'clock and thousands set up a cheer at the sight of him. Henry Cabot Lodge, the permanent chairman, reached the stage at 10:15 o'clock. A band from Canton, Ohio, the president's home town, made its way into the hall. The Canton band came here at the president's own request. He regards the band as his "mascot."

At 10:30 a. m., Chairman Lodge rapped for order and announced the opening invocation by Archbishop Ryan. When the striking figure of the archbishop disappeared from the stage the gavel fell to make quiet for the more practical work of the convention. Amid the tumult and applause Senator Foraker rose to the platform to nominate McKinley for president. As Foraker continued he was repeatedly interrupted with cheers. But it remained for the sentence, for the first time mentioning McKinley by name as the nominee, to electrify the great multitude. Pandemonium then broke loose. The former temper of enthusiasm passed before this cyclone of sound and movement. Every one stood up and waived something and yelled like Indians. The state standards were wrestled from their places and born aloft with umbrellas, great plumes and hats and banners were forming a perfect tempestuous sea of color. Senator Hanna sprang to the front of the stage, with a flag in one hand and a plume in the other, and led in a tremendous demonstration. It was exactly 15 minutes afterwards when order was restored and Chairman Lodge announced: "The chair recognizes Governor Roosevelt, of New York."

Again a magic of name set the audience into convulsions of enthusiasm. Then Roosevelt began a speech, speaking in a very clear full voice.

Roosevelt, in his speech seconded the nomination of McKinley. His argumentative style kept the audience enraptured with him, and he was given much more attention than any other speaker. In his closing words the governor brought another demonstration and for a minute it seemed the convention would go mad, and then and there make two nominations instead of one.

Gradually the convention came back to order and the chairman recognized Senator Thurston for a speech seconding the nomination of the president. At the conclusion of Thurston's speech John W. Yerkes, of Kentucky, rose to second the nomination on behalf of the Oregonian. When Yerkes concluded, from all parts of the hall came the cry: "Vote! vote! vote!" Disregarding the call for a vote, Lodge recognized George Knight, of California. "Vote! vote!" again came the cry from the galleries as Knight concluded, but the chairman recognized Governor Mount of Indiana, who also seconded the nomination of McKinley.

McKinley Nominated. As Roosevelt closed his speech the convention again demanded a vote and the chairman announced that the roll of states would be called for vote on the nomination for president. At 12:37 the vote began. During the call of the states the galleries were not noticeably attentive and there was an unusual demonstration among the delegates. Some states were not content with casting votes for McKinley, but the chairman of them announced the vote which the candidate would receive in November. Secretary hurriedly made the return, and he handed it to the chairman. Lodge took the paper and advancing to the front of the stage, said: "The total vote cast is 930. William McKinley has received 930 votes for president." The chairman then announced McKinley as "our candidate" for the presidency for the term beginning March 4, 1901. Again a pandemonium broke loose. Up went plumes and standards. Up stood the great audience, women mingling in the shouts and frantic demonstrations. A huge counterit of an elephant, the emblem of the republican party, was brought into the hall. Around its neck was entwined garlands of flowers. Laughter and applause were mingled as the great emblem was borne about.

Chairman Lodge then announced the call of states to proceed in the nomination of a candidate for vice-president.

The Naming of Roosevelt. Chairman Lodge recognized Colonel Young, of Iowa who withdrew the name of Dooliver and offered that of Roosevelt instead. The demonstration which followed the announcement by Young of Roosevelt as the candidate of the young men of the country, was not second to that accorded to the president's name. The vast assemblage sprang to its feet and state emblems, plumes, handkerchiefs and hats fairly filled the air. The band began to play "There'll Be Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." The delegates began marching around the hall, bling past Roosevelt and extending congratulations to him. The chairman restored quiet, and recognized Butler Murray, of Massachusetts, for a speech seconding the nomination of Roosevelt. After the speech by Murray, General James M. Ashton, of Washington, was recognized and also seconded the nomination of Roosevelt.

Then Came Cries for Dewey. "Dewey, Dewey," demanded the delegates, as the well known figure of the New York senator emerged from his delegation. Dewey's closing period, declaring Roosevelt's choice would be unanimous, was a touch off for a whirl of excitement. The impatient audience called for a vote. At the conclusion of the roll call, Chairman Lodge announced that Roosevolt had received 925 votes, one delegate not voting. This delegate was Roosevelt himself. The announcement that Roosevelt had been nominated evoked a burst of applause that shook the great steel girders of the building to their foundations. The serious work of the convention was now practically over, and only a few details remained to be performed. Senator Lodge was placed at the head of the committee to notify the president of his nomination, and Senator Wolcott at the head of the committee to notify the vice-presidential nominee. At 2:14 the republican national convention of 1900 adjourned sine die.

No Decision in Lawton Case. Land Office Heard Contest, But Matter Was Left Open Until June 28. The members of the Lawton Investment company, owning the townsite of Lawton, in Grant county, have recently attended contest proceedings in La Grande before the land office officials, and the case is now pending. No decision will be rendered before the 27th of June, as permission was given to file certain papers up to and including the 23rd of June, and therefore the decision in the case will not be given before the 27th.

Col. Halsey has been counsel for the company, and looked after the legal points. He said today to the East Oregonian that the case remains open, and made the statement epitomized above. The members of the company feel confident that they will win the case, expecting the land commissioner's decision to be in their favor.

Indicted a Dog-Killer. Man Who Shot Printer Boy is Now Before the Court of Multnomah County. At the Hotel Pendleton today is Will C. Gibson, formerly with Irwin, Hodson & Co., and who for a year has been off the road, and who has again taken his "grip" and will hereafter represent in this territory H. S. Croker Company, of San Francisco, and C. H. Croker Company, of Portland, selling stationery and the other lines of business. Mr. Gibson is the owner of "Printer Boy," a famous son of Little Ned, the latter C. O. White's well known canine. Printer Boy was reported to be dead several months ago, but Mr. Gibson states that the dog is as well as ever, and fully recovered from the effects of a bullet shot through one of his hind legs.

It happened in Portland, where Mr. Gibson lives. Several dogs had run on to a rear porch of a residence, and the owner took his gun and shot eight of them. Printer Boy was one of the dogs shot, but Printer Boy was not one of them. He lived, and got well, and is now just as good as ever, not even being afraid of the firing of a gun.

The man who did the shooting was indicted, for it is an indictable offense to shoot a dog in Oregon. He is now under the indictment, and will be tried in the circuit court in Portland. Mr. Gibson declares that following the case and its settlement he will bring civil suit for damages. He values the dog very highly.
