INSURANCE SPECIALS' PICNIC.

Take Outing at Bingham Springs and Parkside of Manager Avery's Hospitality.

A party of special insurance agents from San Francisco spent Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night at Bingham Springs, and came back to Pendleton this morning. Everyone had a time of enjoyment while at the springs, and appreciated the hospitality of Manager Avery, who has prepared for the summer's visitors and has the springs in better shape than ever before.

The party was composed of Frank L. Hunter, of the London & Northern; A. C. Thornton, of the Fireman's Fund; J. J. Dennis, of the Pennsylvania; J. C. Cunningham, of the American Central; H. E. Parkhurst, of the New Zealand; George A. Crux, of the Manchester; and the following guests of the party, Harry L. Hexter, R. A. W. Barfoot, of Pendleton, and D. Ryrie, of Colfax; Thomas A. Hudson, of The Dalles; and the official photographer of the party, Lee Moorhouse, who represents some of the companies here.

Arriving at the springs Saturday night, the young men proceeded to take possession of the resort, and until they came away this morning, were in undisputed mastery of the situation.

By a queer dictum of political and financial economy, they proceeded to fine each other for talking shop, and by playing "sugar low," and thus taking from one of the party to give to another, they could pay the expenses of the trip, so this they did, and the fine and the game went merrily on. If one of them was hinted at business or talked insurance by innocently or used a word that could be a stretch of imagination be referable to the fire insurance business, he was fined, and the fine money went into the general coffers, to defray the cost of providing refreshments.

Once Cunningham remarked in talking of something remote from the insurance business to a young lady: "Oh, I assure you, Miss —, I shall be happy to call on you."

And Cunningham was fined for talking shop — assuring young ladies. Hunter did the insurance dance, with an audience very select indeed, and which applauded him to the encore; Deering and Parkhurst, both tall and willowy, gave an imitation of two young men on an outing at some mineral springs with a company of San Francisco fire insurance agents on the occasion of the annual picnic of said specials, and the imitation is said to have been first-class; Dennis was mistaken for a priest, and invited by Manager Avery to say grace at the table, and Crux and Thornton both turned themselves for the moment into male mermaids and sported in the waters of the pool to the admiration of all.

Lee Moorhouse took pictures of them all, and everyone had a good time generally. They voted for another outing at the same place next year, and will maintain it as a regular institution so long as the springs last.

The Indians who were in town today stated that the dancing would go on at the camp above the agency for two days more, ending Tuesday night. Some of the Indians are leaving, but most of them will remain until after the Tuesday night dance. Sunday many visited the agency from Pendleton, every available team and carriage being in use. The dancing is very good this year, and the whites seem not to lose interest in the shows offered by the Indians.
