NEW INDIAN BOARDING SCHOOL. Washington News Says Department Has

Prepared Plans and Specifications. From Washington comes the news plans and specifications for a new boarding school to be erected on the Umatilla reservation in Oregon. The school has been designed with a view to meeting the present demands, and any demands that may grow in the next 10 or 15 years. It is the intention of the department to make this a first-class boarding school, which, while not as large as many others, will be complete in every detail and thoroughly modern in equipment.
There will be other improvements around the school and reservation, but as yet the plans for the entire improvement have not been completed.
The water and sewerage system is to be repaired in places and replaced by new in others, and will be left in the very best condition.

"The school to be erected will be a two-story frame structure, designed especially for the Umutilla reserva-tion, and intended to meet the specific demands of the Indian school in that demands of the Indian school in that section. The latest ideas with regard to healthful and well-lighted schools have been incorporated, and every effort has been expended to secure a building which will be beyond criticism. It is hoped that hids may be submitted at an early day which will come within the allowance for the school building, and that the work may be pushed to early completion. The building, when completed, will be 60 feet long and 38 feet deep, and will be nearly 60 feet high."
