PEOPLE WHO ARE HERE FOR A DAY.

R. Burns, general agent for the O. R. & N. Co. at Walla Walla, spent Wednesday evening in Pendleton. According to his statement, the Walla Walla Fruit fair this year will surpass anything of the kind had in the past. The quality of the fruit is excellent, never was better, and this makes it possible to arrange displays of the finest and of the most artistic design. Grain also is good in quality that attractive display may be made. Experts have been engaged to prepare the display which, with previous years' experience, will be made really of a high order. A large attendance is looked for by the management. The fair will begin on the first of October.

Personal Mention.

J. S. Matthews, of English Springs, was in town on Wednesday. Fred Stine is now located in Seattle, raising his profession, dentistry. B. S. Brown, of the Walla Walla Watchman is visiting in Pendleton today. Deputy Sheriff Lam, of North Yakima, is in town, and leaves tonight for home. Arthur Holson and Tom Matthews, of Heppner, are in Pendleton today on a brief visit. J. M. Matlock has returned from his ranch at Echo, which is in charge of W. H. Babb. W. J. Lindsey, division foreman of the O. R. & N., of La Grande, was in town Wednesday evening. Walla Walla Union: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hughes returned yesterday from a short visit with relatives at Pendleton. Mrs. Seth Geer, formerly Miss Mildred Geer, is expected here soon on a visit with friends, from her home in Ellensburg, Wash. J. W. Dunley, of the Peoples Warehouse here, left Monday for Latham's and Highway springs, where he will be for a week or more. Walla Walla Union: Mrs. A. B. Rothrock, who has been visiting friends in this city, returned to her home at Adams, Ore., yesterday. Mrs. F. L. Forbes and Mrs. W. H. Bleakney left for Meacham this morning where Mr. Forbes and Mr. Bleakney already had gone. They are to remain during the summer. Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Sloan, of Long Creek, have lately been in the Yellowstone National Park, returning but a short time ago, and leaving this morning from Pendleton for a summer's visit in Palo Alto, California. George Brewster, a well known Adairite, is in town today. He brought down a flock of ducks for the Pendleton market. He has more than 400 more which he will dispose of later. Miss Miriam Tammatt, of Walla Walla, is here today in the interest of St. Paul's school. She leaves tomorrow for the Grand Blonds valley, where also she will present the advantages of the school, of which Miss Inogene Hayer is principal. W. B. Eldridge and N. M. Eldridge, of Pocatello, are here direct from Nome City. They went there this spring, and came away in three weeks. Neither expect to return to the Nome country, and both are glad to get back to civilization. They leave this evening for home, on the 5:30 train.

TO KEEP THE PEACE.

William Harris, Living South of Here, Arrested for Alleged Gun Threats. William Harris, whose home is south from Pendleton, is named in a warrant alleging that he came to town and bought a gun, and returned to his home neighborhood, to threaten shooting the family of T. A. Robinson. He was gone after today by the sheriff, and was to be brought into Justice Fitzgerald's court. It was proposed to require him to give bonds to keep the peace, if the evidence disclosed wrong on his part. Else, the costs are to be taxed to the private prosecutor. The trouble arose over the attaching of some grain of his, in purchase by Robinson, and subsequent wrangling over the transaction. Ed. Bourner, a reservation man, was discharged this forenoon by Justice Fitzgerald, and the case dismissed upon the motion of the district attorney. Bourner was accused of assault and battery on the person of a young girl named Eva Nye, it being evident that no criminal act was performed by Bourner, who merely took the girl's hand and attempted to draw her along the walk in search of her father, for whom she had been looking, having asked Bourner where he was.

SOME NEW WHEAT WAS SOLD.

Fifty Cents Was Paid For 1900 Crop. Charter Situation Not Encouraging. Pendleton, July 19.—New wheat has sold in the market during the past week for 50 cents for club, already. Shipment has gone to the seaboard of the crop of 1900. It seems like that nearly all wheat harvested this year will grade No. 1. Little has been shown by sample here that grades below No. 1. Only a small amount has been bought, however, and the market valuation for the new crop has not yet been established. Usually, nor will be for some time after the threshing has been more generally done. A feature of the condition of the cereal is the rise in charters expected to a point above the present quotation of 45 shillings. Fifty shillings is looked for by many of the shippers and buyers. This will reduce the value of wheat here in coast markets by no less than 12 to 15 cents a bushel below what would be the price were the charter rate at average for many years past. Nevertheless, confidence is felt that the price will be strong fifty here, perhaps more. Some weakness developed on the coast reflecting rain reports and better crop conditions in the Middle West. There more wheat will be harvested than was looked for during the recent quiet on the board of trade in Chicago. Wheat is not in evidence here as a selling product. Wheat in Portland. Portland, July 19.—The Commercial Review, in its issue today, says of the wheat market: Small quantities of Walla Walla wheat are coming down here, mostly from the valley and light, although the wheat offered freely. Trading can hardly be said to have commenced, excepting a few trades made in the interior, and appearances indicate there will be a slow selling movement at first, and will be very slow until heavy rains in the coast are busy threshing and hauling to warehouses. Reports indicate farmers have elevated ideas as to values, and seem to look at the statistical position of wheat from the results of the crop of Oregon and Washington, and appear to have under the impression that there is more or less of a shortage of wheat that they ought to get stiff prices. It is hardly necessary to state that their ideas are the opposite of the real situation. The United States not only has a large crop, but will harvest an average crop. Based upon present freight rates from the coast, and prices in Europe, and other necessary items of shipment, Walla Walla wheat on dock here is not worth more than 55 cents per bushel, and Valley the same; biestem, about 55 cents. These are present quotations, which, however, are not nominal. High prices this season are rather phenomenal, all depending upon European countries and the London cargo market. The market cannot safely be quoted more than 10 cents below in excess of above figures. Returns from the harvest are not yet in, and field crops run all the way from 32 to 40 bushels per acre, and the average so far is 28 bushels. Spring wheat has a good color, and will no doubt turn out an average crop. Wheat in San Francisco. San Francisco, July 19.—There has been a change to note during the week in the local market. A local house here says: "If ships were at all plentiful, or if there were any reasonable good prospect that we would be more plentiful later on, we are very much inclined to think we would buy a small boom in wheat here, but the chances are all against any surplus tonnage heading this way. In other words, it looks now as though this year would be a repetition of last, when the ships took the cream off any advance in the markets of the world. We quote No. 1 California shipping at $1.05 to $1.07; best choice at $1.12; Oregon wheat, $1.15 per cental. Barley.—The demand for feed is fair, and processors a little better. The new crop is late. Shippers are only in the market for desirable late winter wheat, but they do not market it as to price. No. 1 feed, 75 cents; brewing, 80 to 85 cents per cental. Wool in Boston. Boston, July 19.—The wool market here is slow, and there was not enough business doing to establish a price. The trade has fixed about 50c for scoured and fine medium and fine territory wools, with 32 to 35 cents for staple. Fleeces wools offer no attractions whatever, and prices are nominal. Quotations: Territory wools, scoured basis—Montana and Wyoming, fine medium and fine, 17 to 18 cents; scoured 50 cents; staple, 32 to 35 cents; Utah, fine medium and fine, 16 to 17 cents; scoured, 30 cents; staple, 32 to 33 cents. Australian, scoured basis, spot prices—Cumber, superfine, nominal, 82 to 87 cents; good 80 to 82 cents. Wool in San Francisco. San Francisco, July 19.—Wool—Spring—Nevada, 12 to 15 cents; Eastern Oregon, 10 to 15 cents; Valley, Oregon, 18 to 20 cents; Fall—Northern mountain, 10 to 12 cents; mountain, lambs', 8 to 10 cents; San Joaquin plains, 8 to 10 cents; Humboldt and Mendocino, 13 to 14 cents per pound. Wool in London. London, July 19.—At the wool auction sales this week 10,099 bales were offered. Merinos were in good request; German representatives and the home trade buying cross-breeds. The good

Two Commercial Travelers Slipped on the Pilot Rock Road at Night. Harry Denton, a Lubbock salesman from San Francisco, and Charles E. Wilson, a San Francisco show salesman, were given a thorough shaking up Tuesday night, by having their team go off the track and carry them into a jumbled heap to the bottom of the canyon beyond the last crossing on the road from Pilot Rock. They fell twenty feet, and the team went with them, because it couldn't stay away. Denton and Wilson were driving in from a trip to Pilot Rock, Albu and Ukiah, and had reached the first beyond the crossing, seven o'clock at night, when they suddenly felt the earth yanked from beneath them and they were suspended in the air for a millisecond part of a second, after which they tumbled to the bottom of the canyon beyond the last crossing, falling with the two horses and buggy, tangled up in an intractable mass.
