'The Commercial Review of Portland estimates the stock on band in the interior to be 5,710,000 bushels July 1, 1800. Exclusive of the stock at the seaboard and at the flouring mills, it may safely be estimated that the stock carried over will exceed 7,000,000 bushels. According to the same authority, charter rates fluctuated from 31s 3d to 42s 6d, the difference being equal to about 7 cents per bushel in the price of wheat. In 1800 ships were chartered for the very low rate of 17s chartered for the very low rate of 17s 6d. It will thus be seen that there is no stability in charter rates; that they vary with the varying crops; that in seasons of abundant crops they always advance rates and absorb the profits.
