These sacks were to be given to jealers in wheat from Scotland, Germany, France and England, and all foreign countries. The idea was to people what could be raised M. E. Carleton

E. Carleton, assistant pathologist and expert authority on wheat culture United States department of agriculture, was a visitor to the exposi-tion held in Portland last year. While evinced great interest in the several displays, his attention and admiration was most forcibly directed to that of cereals. He regarded the production as something wonderful, and promptly decided that it would be to the credit advantage of this government if such a display could be secured for the great fair across the waters. He accordingly arranged with several farmers in the Northwest for samples of their crops in this line, Promises were easily secured, but their fullfilment easily secured, but their fullillment proved another thing. Just at the time when failure seemed certain, Mr. Carleton appealed to the O. R. & N. Co. for assistance in the matter. The communication was turned over to Industrial Agent Judson, and, with the learty approval of Traffic Manager Canadall be at once energytically set.

THE DRY SEASON.

People Should Exercise Care to Avoid Loss From Fires.

This is the dryest season of the year ad there is more danger from fire than at any other. It requires constant effort for those in charge to keep water in the reservoir, nevertheless there are ome people in Pendleton who seem to take a fiendish delight in seeing how much water they can use for irrigating

The wheat crop of the Pacific North west for 1900 promises to reach a tota of approximately 35,000,000 bushels. This, with about the nearest approach to a failure that the Willamette valley to a failure that the Willamette valley has ever known, and a yield below the average in Whitman county, Washington, and Umatilla county, Oregon, is a total which indicates a liberal increase in acreage in other sections, as well as an improved yield in some of the older counties, says the Portland Oregonian. No one believes for a moment that the Willamette valley is give out of wheat raising, or that the going out of wheat raising, or that the present failure is at all liable to occur present failure is at all liable to occur again for many years. Much less will the big wheat beit east of the mountains diversify crops to any appreciable extent on account of a shortage in the yield this season.

It is thus apparent that the production of a 35,000,000-bushel wheat crop in the Nortwhest in an "off" year argues exceptionally well for the inture of the industry. The new land which has come into wheatgrowing since the record-breaking crop of 1897 is undoubtedly of sufficient area to turn off under lavorable circumstances enough wheat to swell the total for the off under invorable circumstances enough wheat to swell the total for the Northwest to 50,000,000 bushels. There is yet a large area of good wheat land in the North Pacific states on which the sod has never been turned, and even at present low prices the business of wheatgrowing is reported by many printed in another column are not as large as were promised by early condi-tions, but their proportions are great enough to give the farmers of the three states gilt-edged collateral of greater value than all of the gold that has come out of Alaska's wonderful gold mines this year. Wheat is the top item for Kansas this year, putting $90,000,000 to the credit side. Next comes the livestock, cattle and hogs, sold and to be sold for slaughter within the current 12 months, adding $75,000,000. The third place is taken by the corn crops already sufficiently advanced to warrant an estimate of $60,000,000. Fourth place belongs to the hay crop, at $21, place belongs to the hay crop, at $21,-000,000. Then is placed the sheep, dairy and poultry class, at $15,000,000. Odds and ends, like sorghums, at $9,-000,000; oats, at $5,000,000; fruit, at $3,000,000; potatoes, at $3,000,000 millet and Hungarian at $3,000,000

It fell to the lot of Officer William Coffman to nab the man, who proved to be J. C. Farrell, of Meacham. Mr. Coffman first ran across Mr. Farrell in Best searched him, but he had cached the weapon, retaining some shells. After the officer had left the saloon. Mr. Farrell was so unwise as to make the remark that he had fired the shot, but had taken the revolver and put away, so if arrested no weapon cou found on him. Officer Coffman was informed of that remark, and it was only a few minutes thereafter that h met Mr. Farrell in the St. George rell was standing near the large plate glass window on Alta street, face toward the window, and was ap-parently testing his weapon to find out whether it was in good working order or not, and he discovered that it was. The bullet passed through the glass about a foot from the bottom of the pane and then took its course through a mess of cantaloupe lying within.
