GALA DAYS AS SOCIAL LEVELERS.

Although underlying the arguments in favor of the Street Fair and Harvest Carnival are solid business considerations, nevertheless, there is a higher and more important reason why the enterprise should have been planned and should now be carefully carried to successful issue. The reason is found in the tendency manifest in society for people to separate into cliques and sets and petty factions. As the result of this process, jealousies are excited and prejudices caused.

This process of social isolation works to the narrowing of vision and tends to kill the spirit of fraternity. Out of it grow feelings anything but cordial towards the people with whom there is no frequent association, and the whole thing works to the detriment of the social body.

Great gatherings tend to dissipate these two elements. They cause people of all stations in life and varying views to jostle the one against the other. The rich man, perhaps, yielding to the weakness of human nature and imagining himself really better than the man without wealth, for the time finds himself standing side by side with the poorer, but equally many and valued citizen. And, on the other hand, the man whose life efforts have not succeeded in laying up a store of great wealth finds himself in the hurry and bustle and push of the gala occasion standing side by side with the man of whom he thought bitter thoughts and toward whom, in a measure, his jealousy was directed.

Each representative of these classes on occasions when every one comes out for public enjoyment finds that the other person is not half so bad as he imagines, and that the other person has infinitely better qualities than daily life had led him to observe.

Street fairs, harvest carnivals, and Fourth of July celebrations are levelers, they are makers of the spirit of democracy, they strengthen republican institutions, they engender a spirit of sympathy between all classes. This then is their real value. Were there no arguments except that trade is stimulated, and mere temporary amusement offered there would be small warrant for the expense and worry and anxiety incident to preparing for one of these events; but, they have a marked effect upon the social order, and for that reason they should be encouraged, because that effect is wholesome, and because people are better for having been brought together in that relation.

Pendleton has extended an invitation to the people of the inland Empire to come here from September 18 to 22 and enjoy a period of recreation from business cares and every day toil. Business men interested have endeavored to furnish the most enjoyable means of amusement, and have labored faithfully to secure a maximum of result for the minimum of expenditure. It is to be hoped that people will fully appreciate that the invitation emanates from a spirit of hospitality, and the really sincere desire that neighbors from the county and adjoining towns come here in large numbers, and furnish opportunity for the people of this place to exhibit the cordial feelings which they have for the rest of the world.

any point, and that no expense or pains will be spared to provide liberally for the people whose homes and wealth have been swept away, and whose bodies have been maimed by the awful force of the tornado. It is noticeable that the first person in the field was a Galveston Post correspondent, and thus the first steps towards ascertaining the exact extent of the damage and intensity of the suffering was by the newspaper men. However people may speak superficially of modern newspaper methods, it cannot be denied that on such occasions frequently special newspaper correspondents perform invaluable service in saving time by being unhampered by any necessities of red tape.

THE VIEWS OF JOHN SHERMAN.

John Sherman, former secretary of state in McKinley's cabinet, in an interview, condemns in no uncertain terms the imperial policy of the administration. With his old-time vigor he denounced the acquisition of countries far from our shores and the needless sacrifice of the lives of our young men and the expenditure of vast sums of money.

Sherman has in the past been accused of changing his politics for popular opinion, but in his retiring years shows a stiff adherence to the tradition of old conservative republicanism.

In talking of the Philippines Mr. Sherman said:

"The wealth we are taking out of our own country now to bring after those Philippine islands is fabulous. We have taken away the miners and agriculturists to subdue the Philippine natives. Depend upon it, the other nations do not envy us, but think us foolish.

"Above all, we are not a monarchical people, but a republican people. We should stand by our own lines and continue the example of our country, instead of becoming another England or Germany, using up our young men and our treasure to get a foothold in unhealthy and unproductive lands.

"I see not the slightest sense in our long excursion of 12,000 miles to the Philippine islands. There we have no acquaintances or affinities, or anything which gives promise of a happy solution of a most foolish undertaking. Old as I am, I would be willing to take a stand against our expeditions and sacrifices in those far-away islands, which do not promise anything material or moral to reimburse us. They are nearly halfway around the world from us. The climate is deadly. The natives show they do not want us by the courage with which they fight us. They are making a strong fight."

of prosperity to breed tyrants, and they meant when such should reappear in this fair land and commence their vacation they should find left for them at least one hard nut to crack.—Abraham Lincoln, speech at Springfield, Ill., June 26, 1857.

The preservation of the sacred fire of liberty and the destiny of the republican model of government are justly considered as deeply, perhaps as finally, staked on the experiment entrusted to the hands of the American people.—George Washington.

If there be one principle more deeply written than any other in the mind of every American it is that we should have nothing to do with conquest.—Thomas Jefferson.

No man is good enough to govern another man without that other's consent. I say this in the leading principle, the sheet-anchor of American republicanism. When the white man governs himself, that is self-government; when he governs another man, that is not so, but government—that is despotism.—Abraham Lincoln.

A republic can have no subjects. If the Filipino is to be a subject our form of government must be changed. An imperial policy nullifies every principle set forth in the Declaration of Independence.—W. J. Bryan.

I speak not of forcible annexation, because that is not to be thought of, and under our code of morality that would be criminal aggression.—President McKinley.

No matter how easy may be the yoke of a foreign power—no matter how lightly it sits upon the shoulders—if it is not imposed by the voice of his own nation and of his own country he will not and he cannot and he means not to be happy under its burden.—Daniel Webster.

The constitution has made no provision for our holding foreign territory, still less for incorporating foreign nations into our union.—Thomas Jefferson.

Arbitrary governments may have territories and distant possessions, because arbitrary governments may raise them by different laws and different systems. We can do no such thing. They must be of us, part of us, or else strangers.—Daniel Webster.

There is no territorial aggrandizement which is worth the price of blood. * * * Our principle should be by growth and organic expansion in obedience to "pre-established harmony, recognizing always the will of those who are to become our fellow-citizens.—Charles Sumner.

Born in a land of liberty, my anxious recollections, my sympathetic feelings and my best feelings are irresistibly excited whenever in any country I see an oppressed nation unfulfill the banners of freedom.—George Washington.

By negotiation with a foreign power Mr. Jefferson obtained the province of Louisiana. Without any alteration of our constitution we have made it a part of the United States, and its senators and representatives now come from several states are here among us. Now, sir, if instead of being Louisiana this had been one of the provinces of Spain proper or one of her South American colonies he must have been a man that should have proposed such an acquisition. A high conviction of its convenience, arising from proximity and from close natural connections, alone reconciled the country to the measure.—Daniel Webster, 1820.

The fond mother dreams great dreams of baby's future as she holds the sleeping little one in her arms. But the dreams will never come true unless she has given him a strong body and a healthy mind. Children die in haste, or live to struggle through life feeble of body and full of mind because the mother was not physically and mentally fit for motherhood. Women who use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription enjoy their children with strong bodies and bright minds. It is every mother's duty to give her child the advantages of a healthy body and mind. A weak or sickly woman cannot do this. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Mr. Orrin Stiles, of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., writes: "I have been interested in writing to you ever since my baby was born in regard to what you wrote 'Favorite Prescription' for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I now am. In July last I had a baby boy, weight 11 pounds, and was nearly a short time, and since I got up have not had one sick day. I have not had any womb trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all of my friends here are surprised to see me so well."
