erat to the Jacksonville Man.

"The Oregonian announces that a man by the name of W. M. Colvig, living at Jacksonville, in this state, has gone over to the republican party, bag and baggage, says the Baker City Democrat. "That gentleman was an aspirant two years ago for the nomination for congress at the hands of the democratic party, but the democracy would have note of him and nominated the scholarly Senator Daly instead.

cratic nomination for the circuit judgeship in his district, and was again turned down. Then he concluded it would be a big stroke to get into the county convention as a delegate, but met with his usual turndown.

"He has been wanting something ever since he was weaned. He has never gotten anything, and never will get anything. But he will always want something. He is for Colvig, and his infinence affects himself not twice alike in three weeks time. Colvig is one of those ducks whom no one can appreciate, and he knows it.

"He is sorry that the average run of men cannot see his excellent qualities, both of brain and influence, and realizes that all men ought to. He has tried to be a big gun in the democratic ranks in Oregon for some years, was a nominee for a presidential elec-tor once on the democratic ticket, and that is about the only time the democracy of the state forgot itself. "We shall miss him. But not long. In the next campaign he will be back again, God help us! We would like to poke fun at the republican like to poke fun at the republican party in Oregon over this grand accretion to its ranks, but while we now have it in for that outfit and always will have it in for it, we can never stoop so low as to grin over this awful misfortune that has smitten it un-sought and almost undeserved."
