Hugh Starr, who was a resident of West in in the "flush times" of stage coaches and big freight wagons, was over on a visit Saturday and Sunday from Elgin. He was successfully engaged in the hardware business there until a year ago, when he sold out, although retaining extensive property interests at Elgin. Two decades have passed since Mr. Starr left Weston, yet he found numerous acquaintances here of "auld lang syne," and enjoyed his stay. He found the Weston of today a much more substantial town than the Weston of twenty years ago.

at Pan-American Exposition.

Samuel S. Wolfischn, special commissioner of the Pan-American exposition to be held at Buffalo. N. Y., May I to November I, 1901, has been in Pendleton as an envoy. He was introduced to many of the business men of this city by K. Alexander. Mr. Wolfischn talked interestingly of Buffalo, his home city, and of the coming exposition.

Within a circle with a radius of 500 miles, Buffalo being the center, 44,000,000 people live. The necessity of advertising the resources of Oregon through that section was advocated by Mr. Wolfischn. He stated that every country of South America and every state in the Union would be there with an exhibit, more or less complete, and that he thought that Oregou could not afford to be unrepresented.
