A Republican Paper for Bryan.

Hastings, Neb., Oct. 21.—The Hastings Republican, which has been republican since its beginning in 1888, and is the daily of largest circulation in Nebraska outside of Omaha and Lincoln, came out today for Bryan.

The paper declares that Bryan "stands for the same fundamental principles for which Abraham Lincoln lived and died," scorns the "Ohio crowd," denounces Hannaism as a conspiracy of corporations and McKinley for the shedding of American blood in the Philippines to crush a liberty-loving people.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1900.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET

FOR PRESIDENT,

William J. Bryan.

OF NEBRASKA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

Adlai E. Stevenson.

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS,

W. M. PIERCE, of Omaha.
DELL STUART, of Multnomah.
J. WHITAKER, of Benton.
K. KRONER, of Multnomah.

"CHOOSE YE, THIS DAY."

Americans will experience no difficulty in choosing between these two sentiments. Mark Hanna thus advises workingmen the country over:

"Your interests are the same as those of the man who hires you," says Hanna. "Vote as he tells you to vote, and you will be happy."

Abraham Lincoln thought otherwise. On July 4, 1864, he wrote to the postmaster at Philadelphia:

"My wish is that you will do just as you think fit, with your own suffrage in the case, and not constrain any of your subordinates to other than he thinks fit with his."

Of course, any thoughtful man will understand the two principles here presented. They are diametrical opposites. The one comprehends a citizenship of men with independent thought, not headstrong and wilful and conceded in their own presumed superior knowledge; but confident enough to vote according to the light on public questions that has been given them. Advice such as the Ohio senator gives will not appeal to men of self-respect. A man who asks any other man to tell him how to vote is a moral coward, a craven cur, who deserves no more the title of an American sovereign citizen than a fawning sycophant or a tyrant.

The man who is willing to vote a certain way because he has been told to do so by an employer is fit for nothing better than the chains of slavery, whether actual chattel slavery, or an industrial slavery which is virtually as bad and much more difficult of combatting.

"HANNA IS IN TOWN"

There was humor in the town of Winslow, Kansas, when, Saturday, upon the occasion of the republican chairman's visit there, placards were posted, bearing this device:

"Populist farmers beware! Chain your children to yourselves, or keep them under the bed! Mark Hanna is in town!"

These spurts of exuberant "joshing" during an intense political campaign tend to relieve the strain and create a better feeling than do the hurrying of terrible thunderbolts of invective and the calling of bad names.

The oftener the people indulge in these exhibitions of innocent fun-making, the better for the people. There is a plenty of real issues grave and menacing, sufficient to engage the attention of speaker and writer, without resorting to nonsensical statement and grandiloquent warning concerning the result in the event the other party gains the election.

KRUGER AS AN ACTOR.

"All the world's a stage," and President Paul Kruger is the actor, just now, essaying the leading role in a play unequalled in interest, matchless in its thrilling motive. The stage will be France; the stage managers, those who arrange details for Kruger's reception; the audience, people of every nation and in every clime; the footlights, the newspapers which tell of the events in connection therewith; Kruger's support, the excitable French populace.

French sympathy for the Boers, foe of France's hereditary enemy, England, has been marked. Now will come the final test. In the light of recent developments, the visit of Paul Kruger holds possibilities of dramatic scenes of international importance.

Perhaps the future of the smaller republics of the world depends upon whether the audience applaud or hiss, commend or condemn; are "en rapport" with the actors or are severe in hostile criticism.

It is a brilliant conception, this plan of Kruger's going to France. It is a masterpiece of diplomatic genius.

THE ROGERS REGIME.

Can any administration, republican or democratic, ever in power in Oregon, furnish a truthful statement showing a record equalling the one made by the Rogers administration in the state of Washington, which is:

A very old book containing the sayings of a very wonderful and wise and good man has this: "By their fruits ye shall know them." And certainly, if judged by its fruits of substantial saving to the people of the state of Washington, the John R. Rogers regime has been one which should be given a second trial.

While the financial considerations alone are not enough to form a basis of final judgment yet they are vital. That ordinarily men in office spend the public money too readily is a fact so familiar that its statement occasions no more than passing notice. And when a man orders a state government in a manner such as to make so great saving as that made by the Rogers administration, the voters may well look upon it favorably.

The Portland Oregonian says that "It ought not to be a strenuous choice between Croker and Hanna. Little as we love Hanna, we cannot love Croker more." Here is a comment by the Portland paper that is pertinent and truthful. With Hanna losing the administration, and Croker trying to lose the democracy, many voters are contemplating a trip into the woods and remaining there until both these fat corruptionists are buried, not only in a political grave, but literally in a hole in the ground six feet long and about as deep.

SOME CAUSTIC CRITICISM.

That veteran politician Colonel A. E. McClure, somewhat pointedly contrasts the political methods of 1860 and 1900 in the state of Pennsylvania. The entire contributions to the Lincoln Curtis state committee in 1860 aggregated $12,000; and, of that sum, $3000 was paid for printing and $2000 was a contribution of rent by Dr. Jayne, leaving the committee but $7000, not for the organization of an existing party, but for the creation of a new party out of discordant elements, with the doubtful state of Pennsylvania, whose verdict in October made Abraham Lincoln president.

Already on the mere financial skirmish line of 1900, the city of Philadelphia is asked to contribute $60,000, and it is not doubted the amount will be raised. Money is now lavishly employed, not only to elect candidates, but to nominate them, and the rule has become next to general that active party workers must be paid actively in cash to assure the best results for the party. We are thus in the midst of what may be justly called a tidal wave of political profligacy, and debauchery, and it is confined to no one political party.

L. H. Cox seems to be one democrat who finds the sayings of democratic leaders, living and dead, still worth quoting from, and in this he seems to be a happy exception to the army of democratic spellbinders, now traveling the country. The writer recently had the pleasure of hearing one of them; and while Lincoln, Sewall, Hoar, even Mark Hanna and Agnew, were copiously quoted from in an attempt to inculcate democratic doctrine, if any democratic leader in times past or present excepting W. J. B., has ever said anything worth being quoted, their pearls seem to have been cast before swine as far as the spellbinder was concerned.

The light of a new star has appeared in the literary firmament of the east. His name is Albert J. Beveridge. Speaking recently of newspapers, he says: "The newspapers are a marvelous influence, but they are not everything; and they do not supply everything. For example, it is commonly supposed that they absolutely and exclusively mould and control public opinion. But they do not. When all has been said, the most powerful public opinion, after all is that from month to month public opinion, that living, moving opinion which spreads from neighbor to neighbor, and has fused into it the vitality of the personality of nearly every man—yes, and woman; don't forget that—in the whole community." And still Mr. David Starr Jordan, an educated man living in California, says that the college graduates are the sole units in a community. What rot?

Mark Twain, being recently interviewed, was found in a massage establishment, and confided to the reporter that he was being treated for what he called "private hotel lumbago." "One gets it from the beds," he said. "They are unnecessarily firm, and their main characteristic is of a geological nature. They are composed of silurian superimposed upon red sandstone, and still contain the imprint of the prehistoric man."

An eastern newspaper remarks: "The one fact about which there seems to be no uncertainty in China, is that while the other powers are negotiating, Russia is absorbing large succulent chunks of the ancient empire."

New York Life comments thusly on the change since Rip Van Winkle's time:

THE SERVANT GIRL PROBLEM.

The Portland Evening Telegram takes part in the discussion of the servant girl problem with the following editorial:

An advertisement in an Eastern paper states that "a young couple want a bright, companionable maid to do general housework. A bicycle girl, who sleeps at home, preferred." May not the perplexed student of "the servant-girl problem" find in this announcement a want suggestion of value? Might not the policy thus indicated go far to solve the problem, and to avoid the troubles which arise to plague both housekeepers and maid servants in their mutually interdependent relations? One principal cause of trouble is a lack of understanding of each other, not in any of sympathy, with each other. But this young mistress looks out for that rock in advance; she wants a "companionable girl."

That is, the girl must be fit to be a companion, and if so, the mistress will make a companion of her, treating her, when her well-earned work is over, or at meals, as one of the family. She must be a girl of taste and intelligence; tidy, bright and able to talk and act sensibly—and keep her place at the same time. She must have a wheel, because that gives her the kind of exercise that most girls crave, and allows of her sleeping at home, even if she lives a considerable distance away. Besides, if the girl is to be a companion, especially of young mistresses, the latter does not want her constant companionship; the mistress prefers in the evening to have out her husband or family with her at home, or company of her choice. Meantime the maid servant can be in her own home, or in such proper company as she chooses.

These requirements are not always to be met in a servant girl; nor would every mistress offer such terms; the advertisement is only cited as a suggestion of a condition which might be approximated, and toward which mistresses and maids might both move with advantage. The household might not be a mere drudge, receiving less real consideration than a horse or a dog; but on the other hand, if she desires and expects to be only a little lower in the household in which she serves than her mistress, she must fit herself to be "companionable," a lady in our American sense of that term, as well as her mistress.

If there were more such mistresses as the one who inserted the advertisement quoted, there would be more ladylike, companionable, bright yet modest girls, who would not think it a disgrace to serve as housemaids.

Scrofula and Consumption

People tainted with scrofula very often develop consumption. Anemia, running of the ear, scaly eruptions, imperfect digestion, and enlargement and breaking down of the glands of the neck, are some of the more prominent of scrofula symptoms—are forerunners of consumption. These conditions can be arrested, consumption prevented and health restored by the early use of

Clean Bread

Can't be made by foul hands and clean, pure blood can't be made by a foul stomach. The blood is made by the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition.

When these are diseased they contaminate every drop of blood made from the food they act upon, and this contamination is carried through the whole body. It may settle in the liver, kidneys, heart or lungs, but the root of the disease is in the stomach. Cure the stomach and you cure the disease.

Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures disease of the organs of digestion and nutrition perfectly and permanently. It purifies the blood, and so by curing the cause of disease, cures many forms of disease in organs remote from the stomach.

"For the past seven years I have had torpid liver and indigestion and tried many doctors and medical men, but I could not get a cure," writes Mrs. M. S. Jones of Clyde, Maine, U.S.A. "Three months ago I bought a bottle of your Golden Medical Discovery and his Pleasant Pellets. I got six bottles of each and I received a good result in a week, and today I am cured and well. The symptoms were coated tongue, spots before the eyes, disposed to be cross and irritable, foul stomach and taste in the mouth, head aching, a feeling of dread or fear, headache, yellow skin, etc. These symptoms did not all appear at once. I suffered from such troubles for several years. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets" as directed in pamphlets wrapping bottles will bring back the bloom of life as it did with me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

For You to Read

"What puzzled me in the beginning was that I kept losing flesh without any cause for it that I could see. I had a little trouble with my stomach, too, and after a while began to grow weaker and to cough. The cough, I thought, would soon go away and cure itself, but it didn't. It grew worse, and then I began to spit up a peculiar looking substance. I never thought of consumption, but one day I had a hemorrhage, and then I was frightened in earnest and did just what you would do. I rushed to the doctor. He was either too busy, or something else, for he didn't do me any good. I kept going on down hill, and the outlook was bad. Things took a different turn, however, when I heard of Acker's English Remedy for Consumption, for I took it, and it not only cured my coughing and spitting, but also built up my whole system. I took on permanent flesh, and today am just as healthy a man as you can find in a week's travel. You may be sure I always keep Acker's English Remedy in the house, and it is a good thing I do so, for one night my youngest child was seized with croup. That cough, wheezy cough was the first signal, and I lost no time in giving the poor little sufferer proper doses of this grand medicine. In almost no time the disease was under control, and my child was saved. I advise every parent to have a bottle handy all the time. It serves the same purpose in keeping croup out of the house that a good lock and key serve to keep burglars out. It is both an expectorant and a tonic. It cured me of croup, and my child of croup, and I know what I am talking about." (Signed) Hon. M. HOBAN, picture frame manufacturer, 225 Center Street, New York.
