FOUND DEAD IN A ROOM

Dr. Christopher Ahlstrom and a Handsome Unknown Woman.

TRAGEDY OCCURRED IN NEW YORK

The Woman is Probably From Chicago—Her Lien is Marked "M. M." But No Further Identification Has Occurred.

New York, Nov. 15.—Dr. Christopher P. Ahlstrom and a handsome, well-dressed woman were found dead in a room at the Hotel Boulevard this morning. Gas from open valves of the heating stove filled the room. The physician was identified by papers found on his person. There were no indications that poison was used. The woman, who possessed numerous costly jewels, was recognized as a visitor at the doctor's apartments. It is believed she was a rich patient of the doctor. Her body, partially disrobed, lay on the floor, as if she had made an attempt to reach the door. Ahlstrom and the woman went to the hotel yesterday afternoon and after they had had drinks at the restaurant went to a room on the third floor, registering as "John Mullin and wife." A year ago Ahlstrom's wife died under circumstances which led to an investigation, but nothing came of it.

The Woman is Still a Mystery. At noon today no further identification of Ahlstrom's companion had been made. Her skeleton sack bore the name of a Chicago firm and the linen is marked "M. M." The police are not yet satisfied that death was due to carbonic acid. The doctor's daughter says the woman called on her father for an hour yesterday before they went out to the hotel.

Doctor Unintentionally Killed Her. The police now believe that Dr. Ahlstrom unintentionally killed the woman with cocaine and then he endeavored to escape the disgrace. The waiter at the hotel states that the doctor had almost to carry her up stairs. A half-emptied bottle of cocaine was found in the room. He turned on the gas when he found he could not revive his companion, accepting death himself rather than face the results.

The Woman Identified. New York, Nov. 15.—This afternoon the woman was identified as Mrs. Maud Gardner, aged 26 years, of 109 West One Hundred and First street, by Henry Gardner, her husband.

GOVERNMENT SURVEY SNAKE RIVER.

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION IN PORTLAND ELECT OFFICERS.

The Price of Wheat Drops Off One-Half Cent. Oriental Shipments of Flour Are Small.

Portland, Or., Nov. 14.—Captain Hart, of the United States Engineering Corps, has just sent to the war department a complete report of the government survey along the course of the Snake river. The survey was completed several weeks ago, and the officials here have been at work for some time past on the report. The survey extended from Lewiston to Riparian, along the course of the river a distance of 23 miles. At the latter named point a connection was made with the survey made by Capt. Taylor and party in '97, and with the completion of the report with its maps, there is on file in Washington, D. C., matter descriptive of the river for 138 miles in course. The department also has definite information relative to the shoals in this stretch. The engineers will soon be ready to estimate as to the cost of improvement of the waterway. The recent expedition was in charge of Frank Gilliam and a party of fifteen men. The party was absent on the survey about three months.

Manufacturers' Association.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Manufacturers' Association of this city was held here yesterday. Officers for the ensuing term were selected as follows: President, E. H. Kilham; Honorary Treasurer, E. H. Kilham; Vice-president, W. H. Morrow, of the Pacific metal works; treasurer, R. J. Holmes, of the Portland Canning company; secretary, C. H. Melanson. Delegate to Irrigation Congress.

Doran H. Stearns left this evening for Chicago. He goes there as a delegate from this state to the National Irrigation Congress that convenes there next week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Mr. Stearns attended the meetings of this body for the past ten years, and will, it is thought, be the only Oregonian who will be present at the congress this year as a delegate.

The congress, as its name implies, is called for the purpose of discussing the subject of irrigation and for taking steps towards the establishment of suitable irrigation systems throughout the arid states. At the present session an effort will be made towards reaching the congress of the United States by resolution and committee, and get in way of appropriation of money for the cost of erection of reservoirs at the heads of the streams flowing through these arid regions. The question of water supply to these regions is indeed an important one and Mr. Stearns asserts that he will do all in his power to get the present congress to consider the reservoir plan mentioned. Later he will visit the states on the Atlantic seaboard.

Fishermen Make Protest.

The office of Capt. Langitt, of the U. S. A. engineers corps, has been visited by many river fishermen within the past few days, who come to enter protest against the order which the captain caused to be posted a few days ago, ordering the owners of fishing sites in the Columbia to remove the piles that are so desirable to the success of their vocation. The captain has had no desire to injure the fishing grounds, but rather is obeying orders from the department in preserving the river in this regard. The men who have called at the office are those who believe that they are without the jurisdiction of the order, and therefore protest against its enactment in their particular case. The order says that all piles must be removed within thirty days from the original date, and that length of time has already nearly expired. All protests are justly considered and no fisherman or owner of land in the region where the notices are posted will be treated unfairly.

Sent to the Pen.

Wheat still continues to decline in value. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the price paid was 54 1/2, a dropping off of a half cent from yesterday's price.

The local warehouses seem to be well filled, and the demand at the present time is not great. The Oriental shipments of flour continue, though very small. The warehouses at Hong Kong are filled to overflowing and the affairs of the country are at present in such a condition that there are scarcely no shipments of flour to this country, as is that of Japan, so this has its effect upon the shipments from American ports.

ACTION FOR LIBEL.

Agent Sued for Leaving Around a Multi-lated Picture.

A singular libel suit is reported from Oskaloosa, Ia. Anson Peck, agent for a portrait company, obtained an order from H. R. Harris for a likeness of his father, R. C. Harris, who is dead. The picture was rejected as unsatisfactory. When portraits are sent to agents the agents are charged with the portrait, and receive credit when the cash for the same is remitted. In case the portrait is refused, the agent cuts out the eyes of the figure and remits them instead of cash, and thereupon receives the credit. When the Harris portrait was refused, Mr. Peck took the picture from the frame and cutting out the eyes, as had been his custom, he threw the remainder into some high weeds and proceeded on his way. Some one found the defaced portrait and placed it on a fence exposed to the public. Mr. Harris was informed that his father's portrait, cut and defaced, was stuck up on the public highway. He supposed that this had been done by the agent on account of the refusal to take the picture. He came to the city, consulted attorneys and filed an information against the man, charging that Mr. Peck was found and arrested.

Riparian Rights.

In the United States supreme court Justice Harlan rendered the opinion of the court in the case of Gilmore v. Schrontz, versus Eben S. Wieseler, coming to the court on a writ of error from the supreme court of the state of Michigan. The case involves the riparian rights of owners of navigable streams to damages for the loss of accessibility to such streams caused by government improvements made for the purpose of improving navigation. A pier erected at St. Mary's falls, Michigan, cut off Schrontz's access to the river. The Michigan court decided against Schrontz, and the opinion affirmed that decision. A dissenting opinion was delivered by Justice Shiras and concurred in by Justices Gray and Peckham.
