C. H. Breck, jr., representative of an Omaha packing establishment, is a guest of the Hotel Pendleton.
Anson B. Woods, of Weston, is attending circuit court as a visitor, being interested in the case on trial today.
Walla Walla Statesman: Mrs. Brown and Miss Mingle Bateman, of Pendleton, are the guests of Mrs. B. H. Hoff.
Miss Mary Hilyard, who has been a patient at the Pendleton sanitarium, will be able to return on Wednesday to her home at Mauchau.
Robert Killgore, acting cashier of the Farmers' bank of Weston, is in Pendleton attending court. He is a guest of the Hotel St. George.
John Tharp has returned from a trip to the Helix country where he purchased four heavy horses for W. F. Matlock. He says he is still anxious to buy.
John E. Lathrop was able to walk down town today for the first time since his return from Walla Walla. He was taken sick with typhoid fever on Tuesday, November 6.
H. B. Lee, who resides on his farm between Milton and Weston, is a visitor in Pendleton and is attending court as a witness in the case of the First National bank vs. Donald McDonald.
Mrs. Major Walsh and A. S. LeGrow, of Walla Walla, and Mrs. Lina H. Sturgis, of Pendleton, who have been visiting Captain and Mrs. Winn, at Matanzas, Cuba, are en route home and are expected in a few days.
John L. Sharpstein, of Walla Walla, is a guest of the Hotel Pendleton. He represents the plaintiff in the interesting case of the First National bank of Walla Walla vs. Donald McDonald now being heard in the circuit court.
Claude Steen, together with wife, children and hired help, are sick with the grip at their home north of Weston. There is considerable sickness in the neighborhood. A. C. Cockburn, on Dry creek, is also down with the grip.
E. M. Shutt and S. P. Shutt, of the Heppner Times and the Granite Gem respectively, passed through town Monday night on her return from near Pittsburg, Pa., where they had spent a week with their aged mother, who is yet lingering between life and death. She was slightly better when her sons left again for the west.
W. F. Matlock returned from a trip to Portland this morning. While there he saw R. T. Cox and N. Berkeley, who are there because of the critical sickness of L. B. Cox, esq. These gentlemen told him that there was no hope for Mr. Cox and his death was liable to occur at any moment. Mr. Cox is afflicted with a cancerous growth in the stomach and intestines and the disease is far advanced.

GUILTY OF HIGHWAY ROBBERY.
When Colter Will Receive Sentence Wednesday Afternoon.
The attorneys plead in the case of the state vs. Colter this morning, the judge delivered his charge and the jury did the rest. After being out about 30 minutes they returned with a verdict of guilty. Judge Ellis announced that he would pass sentence upon the convicted man at the afternoon session on Wednesday. Mrs. Eph Leroy, wife of the proprietor of the tomalia manufactory on Court street, positively identified John Colter, on trial, as the man who was talking to Thomas L. Edwards on December 20, just before the highway robbery, and that he was the man chased by Mr. Edwards after the robbery. William Hickey swore that the hat found on the scene was one he had seen John Colter wearing. Those things coming so straight, of course had great weight with the jury.
For the Third Time.
The case of the First National bank of Walla Walla vs. Donald McDonald, is being heard in the circuit court today for the third time, the jury having failed to agree on two different trials. Many of the residents of Weston and Milton and the country surrounding are interested in this legal controversy. A number of cases involving the same point, the change of location of a government corner, are awaiting a decision in the circuit court.

MARSHALL DAY EXERCISES.

The Meeting Monday Evening at the Court House Was Interesting.
The meeting held at the court house Monday evening, being the one hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of John Marshall as chief justice of the United States, was largely attended. The exercises were fitting to such an occasion, being interesting and instructive. E. D. Boyd, president. Brief addresses were delivered as follows: R. J. Slater, general sketch of the life of John Marshall; W. M. Pierce, his youth and military career; John McCourt, his career as a diplomat; W. R. Ellis, his career as a member of congress and of the cabinet; T. G. Hatley, his career as chief justice. Judge Fee, who was to have spoken on Marshall's personal traits and his career as a lawyer, was unable to be present on account of sickness. Music was rendered by the Pendleton quartet. It is not an easy matter to arouse much enthusiasm over the career of a man who has been dead as great a length of time as has John Marshall, and the meeting last evening may be set down as only an educational success.

CASTE OF TURKISH WOMEN.

Ottoman Fair Ones Fear Contamination From Social Inferiors
It is not generally known that there exists among Turkish ladies of high class a kind of caste feeling similar to that prevailing among the Hindus, says the London Telegraph. It takes the form of a fear of contamination from the outer world, and is only observed, as far as I know, by those who cannot afford to keep servants in sufficient numbers. Before meals ladies always wash their hands at a tap from which the water runs into a marble basin. They will turn on the tap when they are just going to wash, but when they have finished they let the water run till somebody shuts it off, as to do it themselves would make them unclean. They cannot open or shut a door, as the handle would be unclean, so a slave is generally kept handy for the purpose.
One of those fastidious ladies was talking to a small niece the other day who had just received a present of a beautiful doll from Paris. The child presently laid the doll on the lady's lap, who was horrified and ordered the child to take it away. As the little girl would not move, it, and no servant was near, and the lady would be obliged to hold a doll that was brought from abroad, the only thing she could think of was to jump up and let the doll fall, which broke to pieces. The same lady will not open a letter coming by post, but a servant opens it and holds it near her for her to read. If her handkerchief falls to the ground it is immediately destroyed or given away, so that she should not use it again. This curious state of exclusiveness or fanaticism exists, I am told, in many of the large harems. Among men it is not practiced.

A CRAZY SHEEP HERDER.

He Has Taken to the Woods, Believing King of France After Him.
Several sheepmen came to Walla Walla Monday, says the Union with the story that a wild man was running at large in the Snake river country beyond Eureka Flat. The man was formerly a sheepherder in the employ of Adrian Magallon and he is said to be fleeing from an imaginary king of France whom he fears will guillotine him if not kept at a safe distance by flight.
The name of the supposedly demented individual is Myers and he is a cousin of the man by that name who committed suicide by hanging while in charge of a band of sheep in the mountains last winter. Sunday night, according to the story told at the sheriff's office by the men who came here to obtain a warrant for his arrest, Myers drove his sheep first to corral and began to sing the Marseillais. He then came to the cabin and demanded supper saying he had to go away and that his life depended upon the haste with which he was fed. After eating he sprang to his feet and ran shouting into the hills, having first told the men that he was being pursued by the king who would guillotine him if he could be captured.
The men at once sent a delegation from the sheep camp to this city to acquaint the sheriff with the facts in the case and the officers left yesterday morning to take the man in custody and send him to an asylum if necessary. It is feared that if he is not found within the next two days he will die from hunger and exposure.
