An "Unripe Youth" Strikes Him With Iron Instrument.

THE EMPEROR KEEPS TO HIS BED.

The Deed Was Committed at Bremen; there Need be no Uneasiness Felt for the King, He Was Only Scratched.

Bremen, March 7.—Emperor William's wound, received at Bremen yesterday, is one and one-quarter inches long. The Kaiser has neither fever nor headache and no serious trouble is feared. In the reichstag Count Von Ballestrem said the wound was not an inconsiderable one and he thanked God for the Kaiser's deliverance. In the Prussian chamber of deputies President Von Kroeher said: "Count Von Buelow has officially communicated to me that his imperial majesty, the emperor and king, was wounded at Bremen yesterday by an iron instrument thrown evidently by an unripe youth. The wound is not serious. The emperor must keep his bed for several days. President Kroeher then led the house with vociferous shouts of 'Hoch der Kaiser.' The cheering continued for some time, until the sitting of the house was suspended.

The emperor's physicians, Lenthold, Bergmann and Iberg, issue an official bulletin as follows: "The wound is on the right cheek one and one-half inch in length. It passes over the eyebrow and has the character of a contused wound. There has been much bleeding but the wound is closed with bandages without being sewed. His majesty passed a good night.

POTATOES FOR DENVER.

Rev. G. W. Rigby is Shipping a Carload Today.

Rev. G. W. Rigby is shipping a carload of potatoes, 300 sacks, to Denver, Colo., today. He says there is as much profit in raising potatoes in Umatilla county as there is in raising wheat, and that, too, in face of the fact that potatoes at present are considered very low in price. They are worth 50 cents per sack in the local market, but the local demand is not sufficient to require all the potatoes that could be delivered. As a result, it becomes necessary to ship. The demand in Southern California, at Seattle and other sound cities and in Colorado, is good at present.

John T. VanOrsdall says he has potatoes for sale, but they are out in the country thirteen miles and it won't pay at present prices to haul them in the condition that the roads are. Potato raising may develop into a big proposition at this rate.

A CHINAMAN OF HIGH RANK.

Leung Ka Tien is in Pendleton in the interests of Reform.

A Chinaman of high rank, Leung Ka Tien by name, is in Pendleton as a representative of the Chinese Empire Reform society. He is accompanied by Gong Hee, of Portland, who is his interpreter. The object of the Chinese Empire Reform society is to secure the removal of Tai An, the empress dowager, from the throne, and to secure the reinstatement of Emperor Kwang Su. The emperor is at present powerless owing to the boxer hostilities, to the tactics and principals of which party he is decidedly adverse.

Concerning the objects of the society Gong Hee said: "The empress is like the majority of her subjects—content to remain at home and allow the empire to hold the same position among the nations it did 1000 years ago. Kwang Su is a staunch supporter of the reform movement, and it was mainly through his ardor in this line that he was dethroned. He favored the abolition of Joss houses throughout the empire and had inaugurated a movement to establish schools instead. This course of course did not meet with the favor of the empress dowager, but when the crisis came she sent over to the supporters of the empress. We who have lived here for a long time can easily see the advantages to be gained through civilization, though many Chinamen prefer to return home after having secured enough money to keep them there. We are confident of procuring the necessary funds to carry the reform movement throughout China, as the majority of Chinamen throughout America are directly opposed to the boxer belief and hope to some day see the empire classed among the leading powers of the world."

Gong Ka Tien will address the Chinamen of Pendleton at a big meeting to be held next Sunday.

EXTRA SESSION OF SENATE CLOSSES SATURDAY.

Frye, President Protempore, is Much Affected.

MORGAN MAKES A PATHETIC SPEECH.

Declares He Will Not Live to See a Nicaraguan Canal to Which He has Devoted the Best Years of His Life.

Washington, March 7.—An early adjournment of an extra session of the senate is expected, probably Saturday.

This morning Senators Cullum and Cockerell were appointed regents of the Smithsonian institute.

Proceedings of Senate.

Washington, March 7.—The senate, in executive session, confirmed the nominations sent in yesterday by President McKinley and ratified the amendment to the general convention signed by the powers at Brussels as a result of the patent congress.

When the senate rose from the secret session Senator Allison introduced a resolution providing for the election of a president pro tempore and this, being agreed to be named Senator Frye of Maine for the position. This action was unanimous. Frye was not present in the secret session, being in a rear room. He was escorted to the chair and was visibly moved. He said his cup was full and running over. The expressions of confidence he had received in the last few days made him supremely happy and he was overwhelmed. The session all through contained a note of pathos.

Senator Morgan, in finishing his remarks on the isthmian canal legislation, declared he had said all he was called to say, or ever would say on the subject, he had spent the best years of his life studying the question. His fight was finished and he did not expect to live to see the time when an isthmian canal would be an actuality.
