With his last breath General Harrison spoke feebly of the Boers and their hopeless struggle for national life. His voice was weak and trembling, but listeners bending over him could hear words of pity for the dying farmer republic.

Harrison's Last Moments.
In deference to the wishes of the widow, there will be no military display at the funeral. However, a magnificent display is being planned by the Indiana National Guard, which is to be in evidence while the body lies in state. Mayor Eggart in his proclamation announcing the death of Benjamin Harrison: "In his death," says the president, "the country is deprived of one of its greatest citizens. A brilliant soldier in young manhood, he gained fame and rapid advancement by his energy and valor. As a lawyer he rose to be the leader of the bar. In the senate he at once took and retained high rank as an orator. As a legislator and in the high office of president he displayed extraordinary gifts as an administrator and statesman. In public and private life he set a shining example to his countrymen, and as testimony of the respect for his memory held by the government and the people of the United States, I do hereby direct that the flag on the executive mansion and department buildings be displayed at half-mast for thirty days, that suitable naval honors be rendered him on the day of his funeral."

President McKinley's Proclamation.
Washington, March 14.—President McKinley this morning issued a proclamation announcing the death of Benjamin Harrison. "In his death," says the president, "the country is deprived of one of its greatest citizens. A brilliant soldier in young manhood, he gained fame and rapid advancement by his energy and valor. As a lawyer he rose to be the leader of the bar. In the senate he at once took and retained high rank as an orator. As a legislator and in the high office of president he displayed extraordinary gifts as an administrator and statesman. In public and private life he set a shining example to his countrymen, and as testimony of the respect for his memory held by the government and the people of the United States, I do hereby direct that the flag on the executive mansion and department buildings be displayed at half-mast for thirty days, that suitable naval honors be rendered him on the day of his funeral."

"Winter before this, my oldest boy (who is now nearly five years old) had a terrible cough. He had it the whole winter and all summer. I tried every remedy I could get, but nothing would do him good. I bought a bottle of your Discovery and gave it to him. He was coughing so much that he could not sleep. After your Discovery had cured my cough so quickly, when everything else failed, I gave my wife to bring him back from the country. She having carried him back in a box, I would do his good. We were living in November, '98, at the time. She brought him back with your Discovery. He was coughing so much that he could not sleep. He is entirely recovered."

DEATH OF EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON

McKinley Issues a Proclamation in Respect to His Memory.

FLAGS HALF-MAST ON PUBLIC BUILDINGS

The Last Disconnected Thoughts of the Great Soldier and Statesman Were of the Boers and Their Struggle Against Great Britain.

Indianapolis, March 14.—Ex-President Benjamin Harrison died at his home in this city at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after an illness of one week's duration.
Last Thursday morning he found himself with a slight cold, which developed into the grip and afterwards into pneumonia. He became unconscious about twenty-four hours before his death and remained so until the end.
Mrs. Harrison and little daughter, Mrs. McKee, daughter, General Harrison's two brothers, Carter B. Harrison, of Tennessee, and John Scott Harrison, of Kansas City, and his sisters, Mrs. Eaton, of Cincinnati, Mrs. Morris, of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Bevin, of Ottumwa, Iowa, were present at the bedside.
General Harrison's end was peaceful, but he failed to recognize any of his loved ones who were gathered around him in his last moments.
The Life of Harrison.
Benjamin Harrison, son of John Scott Harrison, was born in North Bend, Ohio, August 20, 1833. He was graduated in Miami university in 1852, studied law in Cincinnati and 1854 removed to Indianapolis, where he remained until his death. President Hayes appointed him on the Mississippi river commission in 1875 and in 1880 he was elected United States senator from Indiana, taking his seat March 4, 1881.
In 1888 he was nominated by the republican party and elected president of the United States, taking his seat March 4, 1889, being the twenty-third president. In 1892 he was renominated by his party but defeated for election, by his antagonist of the previous presidential election, Grover Cleveland. Upon his retirement from the presidency in 1893 he resumed the practice of law, afterwards becoming the attorney of Venezuela in the famous case entitled the Venezuela Diapute, for which service he received a fee of $100,000. He served in many other distinguished positions, always with great ability.

Washington are lowered to half-mast. The president, Mrs. McKinley, Secretary Cortelyou and Dr. Hixson leave at 7:30 this evening for Indianapolis to attend the funeral.
Cleveland's Statement.
Princeton, N. J., March 14.—Ex-President Cleveland made the following statement on the death of former President Harrison: "In high public offices he was guided by patriotism and a devotion to duty often at the sacrifice of temporary popularity, and in private station his influence and example were always in the direction of decency and good citizenship. Such a career and the incidents related to it should leave a deep and useful impression upon every section of our national life."

NEW YORK TENEMENT FIRE.

BY WHICH A NUMBER OF PEOPLE LOSE THEIR LIVES.
The Firemen Saved Many Lives at the Risk of Their Own From the Fire Trap.
New York, March 14.—Pinned in a blazing tenement in Brooklyn, three persons were killed, one by being burned to death, and two by jumping, at an early hour this morning. The dead are, Mrs. Mary Madden, aged 70; Mrs. Mary Rontree, aged 35 and George Rontree, aged 12. The three persons seriously injured are: May Beas, Farrell Murray and Lona Marshall. The tenement was a "double decker," in which twenty families lived, and was a death trap. The fire started in a baker shop, on the first floor, while the tenants were all asleep and a wild panic ensued when the alarm was given. The firemen rescued many from window ledges and from fire escapes on the upper floors.

THE VALIANT COUNT BONI.

Gould's French Son-in-Law Slaps a French Editor.
Paris, March 14.—Count Boni Castellane slapped his old antagonist, Editor Du Rodays, of Figaro, in the face today, and it is likely he will have to fight a duel in consequence. The occasion for the insult was that the latter had insinuated that Boni was the messenger who was slated by Paul DeRoudele to have come to him on the night of February 22, 1899, and asked him what he should do if the Duke de Orleans should appear among his friends. DeRoudele had replied he would arrest the duke, whereupon DeRoudele's plan for an attempt at a coup was promptly discovered. Rodays' statement about Castellane was in effect a charge that Castellane had been treacherous to DeRoudele. Rodays the count, with Editor Morel, of the Journal, called upon Rodays demanding an explanation. Rodays showed a disposition to temporize when Count Boni slapped him several times in the face and stalked out. Rodays says: "Castellane struck me while I was engaged in a table and the wall. He said: 'If I could rise, that was a cowardly trap.' It is the old story of drink and poverty. Castellane's father is very proud of his son's prowess."

Eight Children Made Orphans.

Canal Dover, O., March 14.—Sitting on the edge of his wife's bed early this morning, George Weaver, truckman of local mills, smoothed back the hair from his wife's temple and placed a revolver at her head and fired, the bullet splattering the brains and blood over the twin babies just born. Then Weaver discharged another ball into his own head with fatal result. It is the old story of drink and poverty. Eight children are left without support by the father's act.

A Village Destroyed by Fire.

Dallas, March 14.—The entire village of Lincolnville was destroyed by fire last night, and burglarized every safe in town. They fired the buildings for this purpose. Hundreds of people are homeless. Posses with bloodhounds are searching for the criminals.
