

SILK WAIST SALE

See Display in the North Window
$2.50 to $4.90, formerly $5 to $10.

Leaver Bros. Dry Goods Co.

TUESDAY, MARCH 19, 1901.

WILL BE HEAD CAUSE?

Will Be Elected in April to Succeed Young Chief at his death of Young Chief at his death of Young Chief on Sunday, March 18, the cause was deprived of its head chief. Ever since then there has been considerable electioneering on among the members of the tribe to see who would be elected to succeed Young Chief. Paul H. H. is hereditary chief of the Nez Percés and is looked upon as the successor to the chieftaincy. There are logrollers among the Indians as among whites, so it is settled as to whom will be elected. Chief Joseph of the Nez Percés was present when his nephew, Chief, died, and he has been elected as successor. A show-up is at present a going on at the Flathead Indian reservation, Montana, and writes that there is to be a big meeting and feast at the Flathead reservation the latter part of April, as a closing incident in the death and general history of Chief Joseph, and that time probably be the best of that time. Chief Joseph has been talking with some of the chiefs at the Flathead reservation, and that Chief Kiki-ne-y and Chief Shalla and at least one other chief will be present from the Flathead reservation and that the best men present from the Flathead reservation are the Yakton and Nespelem chiefs. Washington Kiki-ne-y is the Kootenai and Shalla chief of the Flathead Indians. Chief Kiki-ne-y says he will come out as he wants to see the people of the Flathead reservation.

Thousands Sent into Exile

Under the ordinance now in force, relating to the use of bicycles in the city of Pendleton, 52 wheelmen are fined for riding their wheels on the streets, but not on Court street from the Vincent street, or on Main

Engineer McElroy Saw Him, and Victim Saw Approaching Train as He Lay on the Track.

An O. R. & N. freight train, while running between Umatilla and Wallula, at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, passed over a man who was lying on the rails, and crushed him beyond recognition. George McElroy was in the cab of the head engine, and whistled to warn the man. The latter looked up, saw the ponderous engine rushing upon him, yet remained in his recumbent position, and two freight engines with their load of forty cars passed over the prostrate form. The man was crushed almost beyond recognition, the head being severed from the body. The body was taken to the trainmen to Umatilla, whence came a message to Dr. W. G. Cole, coroner, who was in Walla Walla, with Dr. F. W. Vincent, the O. R. & N. physician at this point. Both of them went to Umatilla on the night train, to hold an inquest on the body. Telegraphic instructions were sent to the local justice of the peace, to impel a jury and subpoena witnesses, and have everything in readiness when the officers arrived from Pendleton.

Engineer McElroy's Story.

Engineer McElroy tells a story which warrants the theory that the man was desirous of committing suicide, although it is possible that he had fallen in a state of partial paralysis, and was unable to move from a position between the rails that made death inevitable.

"We came through a deep cut," said the engineer, "and had a double-header, two engines, hauling forty freight cars. I whistled, and tried to check the train sufficiently to bring it to a standstill by the time we reached the spot where the man lay. But it was impossible to do so. He heard the whistle, looked up, and yet did not move from the track, and we passed over him, of course crushing out his life in an instant."

Description of the Man.

The coroner, Dr. W. G. Cole, and the company physician, Dr. F. W. Vincent, returned from Umatilla this morning. They were unable, during the inquest to elicit information throwing light on the mystery. The jury returned a verdict of death of an unknown man by an unknown cause.

A rather exact description was given by Dr. Cole. The man had on one arm tattoo marks of a heart and a dog above two stars, and figures of two females tattooed into the other arm. He was 5 feet 2 inches in height. He wore dark grey pants, a rough rider hat, tan shoes and tan stockings. He was apparently 21 years old.

One Suspicious Circumstance

Only one fact was brought to light that gave reason for suspicion. That was that the dead man's pants pockets were found turned "wrong side out," when he was examined by the officers. This may have been done by some of the train crew who were thus trying to discover means of identification. Not all the trainmen who were with the freight that did the killing were at the inquest, being not in Umatilla at the time. The pocket incident caused some to incline towards the theory that the man had been robbed and thrown onto the track. Dr. Cole believes, however, that this is not the real explanation, and thinks that the young man deliberately placed himself before the engine and thus ended his life.

Going Into Portland.

At a meeting in Portland, H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who was in Pendleton recently assisting in securing the $5000 subscription for a building here, made the following emphatic statement:

"As long as Frank Hellen is a gambler," he said, "I am against him, but if he quits gambling I will be his friend. Gambling is not wanted in Portland. The people do not desire it. We want a big moral wave to wipe out municipal corruption, and our remedy is the ballot-box. I serve notice that I am going into politics to work with those who are to make this matter a political issue. So far as the city government of Portland is concerned, I am through with republicans, democrats, prohibitionists, and even citizens. There is a new issue before us." (Applause.)

Arrivals at Hotel Pendleton.

Albert Wurzelweil, Joseph J. C. Lindsey, Portland. W. R. Glendinning, Portland. W. W. Smith. W. J. Hill, Decatur, Ill. W. L. Garlin, Milwaukee. A. H. Atherton, Boston. G. J. Myers, Boston. F. S. McMahon, Portland. Wm O Alden, Boston, Mass. A. P. Bradbury, Portland. Michael McEvry. H. E. Gerold, Portland. F. B. Miller, Walla Walla. J. A. Hazeltine, Portland. Clint Shafer, N. Y. C. E. Cochran, Union. C. W. Hodgson, San Francisco. J. K. Brown, London, Eng. Rufus Drum, Toledo, O. Phil Bray, Chicago. C. W. Garlett.

It's a Short Road from a cough to consumption.

Don't neglect a cough—take Shiloh's Consumption Cure when your cold appears. The "ounce of prevention" is better than years of illness.

THE BILL OF THE PLAY.

Schott, Schuecking and Vannod in Classic and Folk Songs—Modjeska the Next Attraction.

In Pendleton is heard occasionally, indeed frequently, complaint that too few good things come to the theater here. Yet, when something good comes, such as Anton Schott singing in concert with Lucien Vannod and Ottie Hill Schuecking, a handful of people appear, enthusiastic and appreciative, but too few to constitute any encouragement for other good things to visit this place.

Were one to offer such a wager as this, he would win: That a minstrel show on Monday night would have a larger attendance than the farce which would have brought out 100 per cent of the seating capacity.

About 90 people heard the Schott concert, and just 89 went to the

APPARENTLY A SUICIDE.

O. R. & N. FREIGHT TRAIN CRUSHES UNKNOWN MAN TO DEATH.

Engineer McElroy Saw Him, and Victim Saw Approaching Train as He Lay on the Track.

An O. R. & N. freight train, while running between Umatilla and Wallula, at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, passed over a man who was lying on the rails, and crushed him beyond recognition. George McElroy was in the cab of the head engine, and whistled to warn the man. The latter looked up, saw the ponderous engine rushing upon him, yet remained in his recumbent position, and two freight engines with their load of forty cars passed over the prostrate form. The man was crushed almost beyond recognition, the head being severed from the body. The body was taken to the trainmen to Umatilla, whence came a message to Dr. W. G. Cole, coroner, who was in Walla Walla, with Dr. F. W. Vincent, the O. R. & N. physician at this point. Both of them went to Umatilla on the night train, to hold an inquest on the body. Telegraphic instructions were sent to the local justice of the peace, to impel a jury and subpoena witnesses, and have everything in readiness when the officers arrived from Pendleton.

Engineer McElroy's Story.

Engineer McElroy tells a story which warrants the theory that the man was desirous of committing suicide, although it is possible that he had fallen in a state of partial paralysis, and was unable to move from a position between the rails that made death inevitable.

"We came through a deep cut," said the engineer, "and had a double-header, two engines, hauling forty freight cars. I whistled, and tried to check the train sufficiently to bring it to a standstill by the time we reached the spot where the man lay. But it was impossible to do so. He heard the whistle, looked up, and yet did not move from the track, and we passed over him, of course crushing out his life in an instant."

Description of the Man.

The coroner, Dr. W. G. Cole, and the company physician, Dr. F. W. Vincent, returned from Umatilla this morning. They were unable, during the inquest to elicit information throwing light on the mystery. The jury returned a verdict of death of an unknown man by an unknown cause.

A rather exact description was given by Dr. Cole. The man had on one arm tattoo marks of a heart and a dog above two stars, and figures of two females tattooed into the other arm. He was 5 feet 2 inches in height. He wore dark grey pants, a rough rider hat, tan shoes and tan stockings. He was apparently 21 years old.

One Suspicious Circumstance

Only one fact was brought to light that gave reason for suspicion. That was that the dead man's pants pockets were found turned "wrong side out," when he was examined by the officers. This may have been done by some of the train crew who were thus trying to discover means of identification. Not all the trainmen who were with the freight that did the killing were at the inquest, being not in Umatilla at the time. The pocket incident caused some to incline towards the theory that the man had been robbed and thrown onto the track. Dr. Cole believes, however, that this is not the real explanation, and thinks that the young man deliberately placed himself before the engine and thus ended his life.

Going Into Portland.

At a meeting in Portland, H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who was in Pendleton recently assisting in securing the $5000 subscription for a building here, made the following emphatic statement:

"As long as Frank Hellen is a gambler," he said, "I am against him, but if he quits gambling I will be his friend. Gambling is not wanted in Portland. The people do not desire it. We want a big moral wave to wipe out municipal corruption, and our remedy is the ballot-box. I serve notice that I am going into politics to work with those who are to make this matter a political issue. So far as the city government of Portland is concerned, I am through with republicans, democrats, prohibitionists, and even citizens. There is a new issue before us." (Applause.)

Arrivals at Hotel Pendleton.

Albert Wurzelweil, Joseph J. C. Lindsey, Portland. W. R. Glendinning, Portland. W. W. Smith. W. J. Hill, Decatur, Ill. W. L. Garlin, Milwaukee. A. H. Atherton, Boston. G. J. Myers, Boston. F. S. McMahon, Portland. Wm O Alden, Boston, Mass. A. P. Bradbury, Portland. Michael McEvry. H. E. Gerold, Portland. F. B. Miller, Walla Walla. J. A. Hazeltine, Portland. Clint Shafer, N. Y. C. E. Cochran, Union. C. W. Hodgson, San Francisco. J. K. Brown, London, Eng. Rufus Drum, Toledo, O. Phil Bray, Chicago. C. W. Garlett.

It's a Short Road from a cough to consumption.

Don't neglect a cough—take Shiloh's Consumption Cure when your cold appears. The "ounce of prevention" is better than years of illness.

THE BILL OF THE PLAY.

Schott, Schuecking and Vannod in Classic and Folk Songs—Modjeska the Next Attraction.

In Pendleton is heard occasionally, indeed frequently, complaint that too few good things come to the theater here. Yet, when something good comes, such as Anton Schott singing in concert with Lucien Vannod and Ottie Hill Schuecking, a handful of people appear, enthusiastic and appreciative, but too few to constitute any encouragement for other good things to visit this place.

Were one to offer such a wager as this, he would win: That a minstrel show on Monday night would have a larger attendance than the farce which would have brought out 100 per cent of the seating capacity.

About 90 people heard the Schott concert, and just 89 went to the

APPARENTLY A SUICIDE.

O. R. & N. FREIGHT TRAIN CRUSHES UNKNOWN MAN TO DEATH.

Engineer McElroy Saw Him, and Victim Saw Approaching Train as He Lay on the Track.

An O. R. & N. freight train, while running between Umatilla and Wallula, at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, passed over a man who was lying on the rails, and crushed him beyond recognition. George McElroy was in the cab of the head engine, and whistled to warn the man. The latter looked up, saw the ponderous engine rushing upon him, yet remained in his recumbent position, and two freight engines with their load of forty cars passed over the prostrate form. The man was crushed almost beyond recognition, the head being severed from the body. The body was taken to the trainmen to Umatilla, whence came a message to Dr. W. G. Cole, coroner, who was in Walla Walla, with Dr. F. W. Vincent, the O. R. & N. physician at this point. Both of them went to Umatilla on the night train, to hold an inquest on the body. Telegraphic instructions were sent to the local justice of the peace, to impel a jury and subpoena witnesses, and have everything in readiness when the officers arrived from Pendleton.

Engineer McElroy's Story.

Engineer McElroy tells a story which warrants the theory that the man was desirous of committing suicide, although it is possible that he had fallen in a state of partial paralysis, and was unable to move from a position between the rails that made death inevitable.

"We came through a deep cut," said the engineer, "and had a double-header, two engines, hauling forty freight cars. I whistled, and tried to check the train sufficiently to bring it to a standstill by the time we reached the spot where the man lay. But it was impossible to do so. He heard the whistle, looked up, and yet did not move from the track, and we passed over him, of course crushing out his life in an instant."

Description of the Man.

The coroner, Dr. W. G. Cole, and the company physician, Dr. F. W. Vincent, returned from Umatilla this morning. They were unable, during the inquest to elicit information throwing light on the mystery. The jury returned a verdict of death of an unknown man by an unknown cause.

A rather exact description was given by Dr. Cole. The man had on one arm tattoo marks of a heart and a dog above two stars, and figures of two females tattooed into the other arm. He was 5 feet 2 inches in height. He wore dark grey pants, a rough rider hat, tan shoes and tan stockings. He was apparently 21 years old.

One Suspicious Circumstance

Only one fact was brought to light that gave reason for suspicion. That was that the dead man's pants pockets were found turned "wrong side out," when he was examined by the officers. This may have been done by some of the train crew who were thus trying to discover means of identification. Not all the trainmen who were with the freight that did the killing were at the inquest, being not in Umatilla at the time. The pocket incident caused some to incline towards the theory that the man had been robbed and thrown onto the track. Dr. Cole believes, however, that this is not the real explanation, and thinks that the young man deliberately placed himself before the engine and thus ended his life.

Going Into Portland.

At a meeting in Portland, H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who was in Pendleton recently assisting in securing the $5000 subscription for a building here, made the following emphatic statement:

"As long as Frank Hellen is a gambler," he said, "I am against him, but if he quits gambling I will be his friend. Gambling is not wanted in Portland. The people do not desire it. We want a big moral wave to wipe out municipal corruption, and our remedy is the ballot-box. I serve notice that I am going into politics to work with those who are to make this matter a political issue. So far as the city government of Portland is concerned, I am through with republicans, democrats, prohibitionists, and even citizens. There is a new issue before us." (Applause.)

Arrivals at Hotel Pendleton.

Albert Wurzelweil, Joseph J. C. Lindsey, Portland. W. R. Glendinning, Portland. W. W. Smith. W. J. Hill, Decatur, Ill. W. L. Garlin, Milwaukee. A. H. Atherton, Boston. G. J. Myers, Boston. F. S. McMahon, Portland. Wm O Alden, Boston, Mass. A. P. Bradbury, Portland. Michael McEvry. H. E. Gerold, Portland. F. B. Miller, Walla Walla. J. A. Hazeltine, Portland. Clint Shafer, N. Y. C. E. Cochran, Union. C. W. Hodgson, San Francisco. J. K. Brown, London, Eng. Rufus Drum, Toledo, O. Phil Bray, Chicago. C. W. Garlett.

It's a Short Road from a cough to consumption.

Don't neglect a cough—take Shiloh's Consumption Cure when your cold appears. The "ounce of prevention" is better than years of illness.

THE BILL OF THE PLAY.

Schott, Schuecking and Vannod in Classic and Folk Songs—Modjeska the Next Attraction.

In Pendleton is heard occasionally, indeed frequently, complaint that too few good things come to the theater here. Yet, when something good comes, such as Anton Schott singing in concert with Lucien Vannod and Ottie Hill Schuecking, a handful of people appear, enthusiastic and appreciative, but too few to constitute any encouragement for other good things to visit this place.

Were one to offer such a wager as this, he would win: That a minstrel show on Monday night would have a larger attendance than the farce which would have brought out 100 per cent of the seating capacity.

About 90 people heard the Schott concert, and just 89 went to the

APPARENTLY A SUICIDE.

O. R. & N. FREIGHT TRAIN CRUSHES UNKNOWN MAN TO DEATH.

Engineer McElroy Saw Him, and Victim Saw Approaching Train as He Lay on the Track.

An O. R. & N. freight train, while running between Umatilla and Wallula, at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, passed over a man who was lying on the rails, and crushed him beyond recognition. George McElroy was in the cab of the head engine, and whistled to warn the man. The latter looked up, saw the ponderous engine rushing upon him, yet remained in his recumbent position, and two freight engines with their load of forty cars passed over the prostrate form. The man was crushed almost beyond recognition, the head being severed from the body. The body was taken to the trainmen to Umatilla, whence came a message to Dr. W. G. Cole, coroner, who was in Walla Walla, with Dr. F. W. Vincent, the O. R. & N. physician at this point. Both of them went to Umatilla on the night train, to hold an inquest on the body. Telegraphic instructions were sent to the local justice of the peace, to impel a jury and subpoena witnesses, and have everything in readiness when the officers arrived from Pendleton.

Engineer McElroy's Story.

Engineer McElroy tells a story which warrants the theory that the man was desirous of committing suicide, although it is possible that he had fallen in a state of partial paralysis, and was unable to move from a position between the rails that made death inevitable.

"We came through a deep cut," said the engineer, "and had a double-header, two engines, hauling forty freight cars. I whistled, and tried to check the train sufficiently to bring it to a standstill by the time we reached the spot where the man lay. But it was impossible to do so. He heard the whistle, looked up, and yet did not move from the track, and we passed over him, of course crushing out his life in an instant."

Description of the Man.

The coroner, Dr. W. G. Cole, and the company physician, Dr. F. W. Vincent, returned from Umatilla this morning. They were unable, during the inquest to elicit information throwing light on the mystery. The jury returned a verdict of death of an unknown man by an unknown cause.

A rather exact description was given by Dr. Cole. The man had on one arm tattoo marks of a heart and a dog above two stars, and figures of two females tattooed into the other arm. He was 5 feet 2 inches in height. He wore dark grey pants, a rough rider hat, tan shoes and tan stockings. He was apparently 21 years old.

One Suspicious Circumstance

Only one fact was brought to light that gave reason for suspicion. That was that the dead man's pants pockets were found turned "wrong side out," when he was examined by the officers. This may have been done by some of the train crew who were thus trying to discover means of identification. Not all the trainmen who were with the freight that did the killing were at the inquest, being not in Umatilla at the time. The pocket incident caused some to incline towards the theory that the man had been robbed and thrown onto the track. Dr. Cole believes, however, that this is not the real explanation, and thinks that the young man deliberately placed himself before the engine and thus ended his life.

Going Into Portland.

At a meeting in Portland, H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who was in Pendleton recently assisting in securing the $5000 subscription for a building here, made the following emphatic statement:

"As long as Frank Hellen is a gambler," he said, "I am against him, but if he quits gambling I will be his friend. Gambling is not wanted in Portland. The people do not desire it. We want a big moral wave to wipe out municipal corruption, and our remedy is the ballot-box. I serve notice that I am going into politics to work with those who are to make this matter a political issue. So far as the city government of Portland is concerned, I am through with republicans, democrats, prohibitionists, and even citizens. There is a new issue before us." (Applause.)

Arrivals at Hotel Pendleton.

Albert Wurzelweil, Joseph J. C. Lindsey, Portland. W. R. Glendinning, Portland. W. W. Smith. W. J. Hill, Decatur, Ill. W. L. Garlin, Milwaukee. A. H. Atherton, Boston. G. J. Myers, Boston. F. S. McMahon, Portland. Wm O Alden, Boston, Mass. A. P. Bradbury, Portland. Michael McEvry. H. E. Gerold, Portland. F. B. Miller, Walla Walla. J. A. Hazeltine, Portland. Clint Shafer, N. Y. C. E. Cochran, Union. C. W. Hodgson, San Francisco. J. K. Brown, London, Eng. Rufus Drum, Toledo, O. Phil Bray, Chicago. C. W. Garlett.

It's a Short Road from a cough to consumption.

Don't neglect a cough—take Shiloh's Consumption Cure when your cold appears. The "ounce of prevention" is better than years of illness.

THE BILL OF THE PLAY.

Schott, Schuecking and Vannod in Classic and Folk Songs—Modjeska the Next Attraction.

In Pendleton is heard occasionally, indeed frequently, complaint that too few good things come to the theater here. Yet, when something good comes, such as Anton Schott singing in concert with Lucien Vannod and Ottie Hill Schuecking, a handful of people appear, enthusiastic and appreciative, but too few to constitute any encouragement for other good things to visit this place.

Were one to offer such a wager as this, he would win: That a minstrel show on Monday night would have a larger attendance than the farce which would have brought out 100 per cent of the seating capacity.

About 90 people heard the Schott concert, and just 89 went to the

APPARENTLY A SUICIDE.

O. R. & N. FREIGHT TRAIN CRUSHES UNKNOWN MAN TO DEATH.

Engineer McElroy Saw Him, and Victim Saw Approaching Train as He Lay on the Track.

An O. R. & N. freight train, while running between Umatilla and Wallula, at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, passed over a man who was lying on the rails, and crushed him beyond recognition. George McElroy was in the cab of the head engine, and whistled to warn the man. The latter looked up, saw the ponderous engine rushing upon him, yet remained in his recumbent position, and two freight engines with their load of forty cars passed over the prostrate form. The man was crushed almost beyond recognition, the head being severed from the body. The body was taken to the trainmen to Umatilla, whence came a message to Dr. W. G. Cole, coroner, who was in Walla Walla, with Dr. F. W. Vincent, the O. R. & N. physician at this point. Both of them went to Umatilla on the night train, to hold an inquest on the body. Telegraphic instructions were sent to the local justice of the peace, to impel a jury and subpoena witnesses, and have everything in readiness when the officers arrived from Pendleton.

Engineer McElroy's Story.

Engineer McElroy tells a story which warrants the theory that the man was desirous of committing suicide, although it is possible that he had fallen in a state of partial paralysis, and was unable to move from a position between the rails that made death inevitable.

"We came through a deep cut," said the engineer, "and had a double-header, two engines, hauling forty freight cars. I whistled, and tried to check the train sufficiently to bring it to a standstill by the time we reached the spot where the man lay. But it was impossible to do so. He heard the whistle, looked up, and yet did not move from the track, and we passed over him, of course crushing out his life in an instant."

Description of the Man.

The coroner, Dr. W. G. Cole, and the company physician, Dr. F. W. Vincent, returned from Umatilla this morning. They were unable, during the inquest to elicit information throwing light on the mystery. The jury returned a verdict of death of an unknown man by an unknown cause.

A rather exact description was given by Dr. Cole. The man had on one arm tattoo marks of a heart and a dog above two stars, and figures of two females tattooed into the other arm. He was 5 feet 2 inches in height. He wore dark grey pants, a rough rider hat, tan shoes and tan stockings. He was apparently 21 years old.

One Suspicious Circumstance

Only one fact was brought to light that gave reason for suspicion. That was that the dead man's pants pockets were found turned "wrong side out," when he was examined by the officers. This may have been done by some of the train crew who were thus trying to discover means of identification. Not all the trainmen who were with the freight that did the killing were at the inquest, being not in Umatilla at the time. The pocket incident caused some to incline towards the theory that the man had been robbed and thrown onto the track. Dr. Cole believes, however, that this is not the real explanation, and thinks that the young man deliberately placed himself before the engine and thus ended his life.

Going Into Portland.

At a meeting in Portland, H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who was in Pendleton recently assisting in securing the $5000 subscription for a building here, made the following emphatic statement:

"As long as Frank Hellen is a gambler," he said, "I am against him, but if he quits gambling I will be his friend. Gambling is not wanted in Portland. The people do not desire it. We want a big moral wave to wipe out municipal corruption, and our remedy is the ballot-box. I serve notice that I am going into politics to work with those who are to make this matter a political issue. So far as the city government of Portland is concerned, I am through with republicans, democrats, prohibitionists, and even citizens. There is a new issue before us." (Applause.)

Arrivals at Hotel Pendleton.

Albert Wurzelweil, Joseph J. C. Lindsey, Portland. W. R. Glendinning, Portland. W. W. Smith. W. J. Hill, Decatur, Ill. W. L. Garlin, Milwaukee. A. H. Atherton, Boston. G. J. Myers, Boston. F. S. McMahon, Portland. Wm O Alden, Boston, Mass. A. P. Bradbury, Portland. Michael McEvry. H. E. Gerold, Portland. F. B. Miller, Walla Walla. J. A. Hazeltine, Portland. Clint Shafer, N. Y. C. E. Cochran, Union. C. W. Hodgson, San Francisco. J. K. Brown, London, Eng. Rufus Drum, Toledo, O. Phil Bray, Chicago. C. W. Garlett.

It's a Short Road from a cough to consumption.

Don't neglect a cough—take Shiloh's Consumption Cure when your cold appears. The "ounce of prevention" is better than years of illness.

THE BILL OF THE PLAY.

Schott, Schuecking and Vannod in Classic and Folk Songs—Modjeska the Next Attraction.

In Pendleton is heard occasionally, indeed frequently, complaint that too few good things come to the theater here. Yet, when something good comes, such as Anton Schott singing in concert with Lucien Vannod and Ottie Hill Schuecking, a handful of people appear, enthusiastic and appreciative, but too few to constitute any encouragement for other good things to visit this place.

Were one to offer such a wager as this, he would win: That a minstrel show on Monday night would have a larger attendance than the farce which would have brought out 100 per cent of the seating capacity.

About 90 people heard the Schott concert, and just 89 went to the

APPARENTLY A SUICIDE.

O. R. & N. FREIGHT TRAIN CRUSHES UNKNOWN MAN TO DEATH.

Engineer McElroy Saw Him, and Victim Saw Approaching Train as He Lay on the Track.

An O. R. & N. freight train, while running between Umatilla and Wallula, at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon, passed over a man who was lying on the rails, and crushed him beyond recognition. George McElroy was in the cab of the head engine, and whistled to warn the man. The latter looked up, saw the ponderous engine rushing upon him, yet remained in his recumbent position, and two freight engines with their load of forty cars passed over the prostrate form. The man was crushed almost beyond recognition, the head being severed from the body. The body was taken to the trainmen to Umatilla, whence came a message to Dr. W. G. Cole, coroner, who was in Walla Walla, with Dr. F. W. Vincent, the O. R. & N. physician at this point. Both of them went