La Grande Chronicle: An interesting service, marking the clearing off of the last cent of debt from the First Methodist church, of which Rev. John W. H. Miller is pastor, will take place at the church this evening and the public generally is cordially invited to participate in the jubilation.

The deputy city marshal dog taxer has been doing fairly well since starting upon his work. He has prevailed upon 75 residents of Pendleton to acknowledge that they will pay the city tax therefor rather than that the animals should be murdered in accordance with the provisions of the ordinance, or in any other manner.

A force of Japanese is at work at the O. R. & N. depot, putting in new ties and otherwise repairing the main line of the railroad at the Main street crossing. It is about as busy a place as the siding at Tien Tsin, over which the English and Russians clashed. The repairs will be made in time that no delay will be caused to the coming and going of the passenger trains at 5 o'clock and 5:15 this afternoon.

La Grande Chronicle: Harry Hastings, an artist of considerable note, who painted a number of the most noted horses of fame of the present age, among which are the famous pacer, Chehalis, formerly owned by Frank Frazer, of Pendleton, and G. L. Melquist's fine horse, Mint, took his departure for Anacoma, Montana, Sunday morning where he is engaged to paint some of the fine horses of that city.

The man brought down from Weston on Saturday and placed in jail on account of his mental condition, was somewhat improved Monday and today. He cannot give much of an account of himself as yet, however, so his examination will not be held for several days. County Physician Vincent stated on Monday that he had hopes that the man would recover without the necessity of sending him to the asylum.

Sheriff Blakley started out this morning to the vicinity of J. E. Smith's sheep ranch south of Pilot Rock, called there to bring in a man who had become demented. J. E. Smith telephoned this afternoon to the East Oregonian that the sheriff had just passed his home on his return to Pendleton with an old man by the name of Augustus Hinze in charge.

Mr. Hinze had been making his home with Mr. Wolf, who occupies one of the Smith ranches. It became necessary to send the officer in order that Mr. Hinze might receive proper medical treatment and not injure himself or anyone else.

FOR JOSEPH'S DEFENSE.

Gen. O. O. Howard Cited as Proving the Chief Didn't Murder.

Many persons have resented the assertion made by J. W. Redington regarding Chief Joseph, as printed in Monday's East Oregonian, which was to the effect that Joseph was guilty of the brutal murder of Mrs. Manuel. In "Reminiscences of an Old Timer" is found the same assertion. One Colonel George W. Hunter is the author of the work.

However, Gen. O. O. Howard, in his "Chief Joseph, His Pursuit and Capture," shows that Joseph could not have been at the place when Mrs. Manuel was murdered. Gen. Howard thus writes:

"Until very recently, the testimony had been uniform that Joseph had nothing to do with the perpetration of the following chapter of horrors. Of late, it is asserted by Arthur Chapman, the interpreter, that other Indians, who were engaged with him in the war, caused Joseph himself to kill Mrs. Manuel, with his own hand, after others had left her wounded and treating her for her life. I believe this charge is not true. His wife was ill and separated from the main camp. Joseph, it is proved by our own scouts, remained with her, protesting, until he believed it too late—till he felt like many who joined the great southern rebellion—that in a war already begun he must identify himself with his own people."

Gen. Howard proceeds to tell of several murders, and to show how it was not Joseph, but some other Indians who committed them. In the possession of a citizen of Pendleton is the outline of an interview with Joseph, obtained during his recent visit to the Umatilla reservation, in which Joseph indicates how he was drawn into the war against his will.

NEED NEW SWITCH ENGINE.

O. R. & N. COMPELLED TO BRING MORE POWERFUL ONE HERE

Business Has Justified Keeping the Switching Crew in Pendleton During All the Past Year.

A new switch engine will be brought to Pendleton by the O. R. & N. Co., to replace the one now in use. The new one will be much more powerful than the one now used here. This is demanded because the present engine is not able to do the immensely larger business the company has at this point. The new engine will be sent here so soon as the company receives from the East the several engines that have been bought. Another fact, significant of the steady increase of freight traffic in Pendleton, is that during the past year, the switching crew has been kept busy all the time. During previous years, the switching has been done by the engines hauling the trains, excepting during the busiest seasons. Now, a switching crew has work all the time, and even must have a larger engine to perform the work.

BUFFALO COMMISSION.

Ankey is Chairman of the Board in Washington.

Walla Walla, March 20.—Levi Ankey, president of the commission, arrived home yesterday from Tacoma, where he attended its initial meeting and brought with him a bit of news.

Mr. Ankey is enthusiastic over the probability of making a fine display in Buffalo, and he says the men who will have the affair in charge will certainly carry it through to a successful issue.

"Gov. Rogers just handed over the $25,000, and told us to go ahead," said Mr. Ankey. "He also assured us of other assistance in the matter of printing. The governor stated at once he had no recommendations to offer, and simply left all in the hands of the commission he had appointed."

The following officers have been elected to complete the organization:

Secretary—J. J. Anderson of Tacoma.

Assistant secretary—Frank La Wall of Tacoma, at a salary of $150 per month.

Treasurer—F. O. Ehrlrich, of Mt. Vernon.

Executive commissioner—O. M. Moore, of Seattle, at a salary of $250 per month.

The executive committee, in addition to the chairman, secretary and treasurer, consists of J. B. Andrews of Seattle, chairman; T. B. Summer of Everett and Lee B. Hart of Seattle.

According to the Salem Statesman, the fruit prospects of the Willamette valley are growing brighter as the season advances, and with a heavy crop in view the growers should begin to set about devising methods of securing a market throughout the eastern states for the rich product of Oregon orchards.

CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT.

I Thought Miss Beale Fainted Before Falling From the Pony.

Miss Maude Beale, the victim of the accident of last Saturday evening, was resting easy today and improving even more rapidly than was expected. The attending physician, Dr. C. J. Smith, is of the opinion that she will continue to improve and within a short time will be as well as ever, provided she is kept quiet and allowed to rest for a few days. She remains somewhat weak, but has fully recovered her mental faculties. She states that she remembers nothing whatever of the accident—not even that she was falling or about to fall from the pony she was riding. This has led her mother to the belief that Maude fainted before the accident, and in that condition, of course, would not know when she commenced to fall. This theory is a plausible one, as without something of that kind, it is difficult to imagine why she should fall, as the horse was a gentle one and was not cutting up any pranks at the time.

T. E. WELLS APPOINTED.

He Will Be One of the Deputies of the State Game Warden.

T. E. Wells received notification today of his appointment as deputy state game warden for this district. The new game law passed at the recent session of the legislature provides for a state game warden, who is authorized to appoint deputies for the different districts, which are defined in the act. L. P. W. Quimby is the state game warden. The deputy game wardens receive $2 per day and expenses while actively engaged in their duties of ferreting out violators of the law. Mr. Wells will receive the hearty co-operation of all true sportsmen in this district in seeing that the provisions of the game law are complied with, and that violators thereof are brought up with a round turn at the bar of justice.

A MILITARY DRAMA.

Held by the Enemy? Bill for Monday Night.

The Howard company produced William Gillette's famous war drama at the Fraser on Monday night. The company carries some beautiful scenery, and on this occasion used it to good effect in staging the play. The theatre goers and is of acknowledged merit as a product of the playwright. It tells a story of the civil war, opening in 1864, near the close of the great struggle, and ending with scenes built upon the events of 1865, a pretty love tale run through the five acts, in which a charming Southern girl and a gallant Northern colonel of volunteers are the leading characters. Miss Howard as "Bachae McCreary," and Francis Boggs as "Colonel Prescott" were clever, indeed. While some of the other members of the company were rather subject to adverse criticism.

Tonight, the company produces "Master and Man," an English melodrama, sensational and startling. One of the best and most realistic is the foundry scene, where one sees a roaring, blazing furnace, and machinery in full operation.

Wednesday, the concluding night of the company's stay, "Trilby" will be presented.

The summer time schedule will go into effect on the O. R. & N., Thursday, March 28, says the Spokane Spokesman.

Several important changes will be made and a new local freight service will be inaugurated between Spokane and Wallace, Idaho.
