of the subject, when he remarked that "The coarser embraces so much that one cannot help being interested."

Mr. McKinley certainly rewards his friends, and proves it when he names Melrose, Thurston and Carter, all ex-senators who invariably consulted the president's wishes while they adorned seats in the upper national house.

The czar can hardly be expected to encourage the mining industry, when it is carried on with the evident intent of sending him to explore the deposits of precious metals in the New Jerusalem.

That was an ignorant person, indeed, who asked an Oregonian who was visiting in the East: "Let me see, Oregon? That is somewhere near Seattle, isn't it?"

JIM MONTAGUE'S SARCASM.

With apologies to the young Newberg orator, Minchin, J. J. Montague writes this in the Sunday Oregonian's "Note and Comment" column:

Mary had a little lamb,
Which was against the rule;
And every where that Mary went,
The lamb was sure to go.

It followed her to school one day,
When was against the rule;
It made the children laugh and play,
To see that lamb in school.

The foregoing lines, which were composed and written by us, have never before been published, because certain harsh critics who have never seen them accuse us of plagiarism and assert that they were stolen bodily from one of the classic authors—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, we believe, was the name mentioned. We submit them, therefore, to a candid world, and ask any one if we have not the right to compose and publish poems of our own, even if Miss Wilcox did get in a little ahead of us. There are thousands of Marys in the country, and if any one is oppressed by the notion that Miss Wilcox is acquainted with the only living lamb she need only read the agricultural tracts or look in the criminal columns of the daily papers for the reports of the doings of the stock exchange. Any lamb with any sense of personal cleanliness would keep its fleeces as white as snow, and as all lambs are of a very confiding and affectionate disposition, it is perfectly natural for them to follow their mistresses everywhere they went, which, of course, would include the same of poets. The fact that the lamb play when such an excellent excuse for deserting their copy-books offered as the presence of a lamb among them? Thus it can be seen that this occurrence is natural, that it might happen in a hundred places at once, and that if Miss Wilcox did celebrate a similar event in deathless verse, it does not necessarily follow that we stole her poem because we happened to use the same words. We simply used the best words we found in our word books, and it is high compliment to her literary taste if a classic author like Miss Wilcox employed the same. We therefore feel that we have acquitted ourselves of the charge of plagiarism, and publish our poem without fear or favor.

THE SOUTHERN MOUNTAINEER.

It is odd to think that he was not discovered until the outbreak of the civil war, although he was nearly a century old then, and it is really startling to realize that when one speaks of the Southern mountaineers, he speaks of nearly three millions of people who live in eight Southern states—Virginia and Alabama and the Southern states between—and occupy a region equal in area to the combined area of Ohio and Pennsylvania, as big as any of the German empire and richer, perhaps, in timber and mineral deposits than any other region of similar extent in the world. This region was and is an unknown land. It has been aptly called "Appalachian America," and the work of discovery is yet going on.

HER'S NOT A CINQUINATUS.

It is a story of great potentiality for the political novelist, that one concerning the manner in which T. T. Geer learned of his nomination for the governorship by the Astoria convention in 1888. The newspapers told, with pretty romance, how the "Tall Timothy of the Waldo Hills" was peacefully following a plow over one of his fields, when a little girl came along from school, swinging her lunch basket in her hand, and calling out: "Say, Mr. Geer, did you know you had been nominated for governor?" Certain other newspaper men aver that, instead of being at home leading the personally conducted excursion of a plow across a fertile Willamette valley wheatfield, the tall man was imprisoned in a room at the Perkins hotel in Portland, and was prevented from going to Astoria to attempt to further his gubernatorial ambitions; and that his jailer for the moment was the nestor of Oregon journalism, the wielder of the treacherous pen on the leading newspaper of the Pacific coast.

ONLY ONE OF A KIND WANTED.

The two great political divisions of this country are the Republican and the Democratic party, which represents the ruling classes. A Democratic party, which represents probably the majority, but seems just at present unable to do much in the way of successful work. The Democratic party includes a good many so-called democrats who are men belonging to what we are pleased to call the upper and better classes. These men are mainly distinguished by the fact that they find it easier to get money than to get nominated. Every once in a while we hear from their solemn advice as to "what the democratic party should do," or "how the democratic party can win." They say a good deal in a flip-doodle way about conservatism and so on, but they really don't say anything worth listening to.

Mr. Altgeld, the misunderstood man in Illinois, has put the whole situation very simply and briefly. We recommend his profound observation to the money-getting, vote-losing better class personalities of the democratic party.

Here is what Mr. Altgeld says: "This country does not need two corrupt parties: one is enough. And there you have the whole thing neatly put. A country does not need two parties trying to please the trusts, two parties trying to please the railroads and the general money-grabbing gentry."

In the way of corruptionism no party can hope to compete with the republican party. Nor can any party hope to win the votes of trust from the republican party, and the republican party is the most thorough possible kind of corruptionist party now exists and is in power. The democratic party or any other that wishes to win must realize that a second corruptionist party has no chance whatever.

The democrats to win must throw overboard the corruptionists, the sympathizers with trusts and the rest of the so-called "respectabilities" of finance. They belong in the republican party now and should go there.

A clean, anti-corruptionist party, with a clean, strong leader not afraid to think radically and independently, might win in this country. A weak-kneed, timid imitation of the successful corruptionist can't hope to succeed.—Herald's Chicago American.

CONCERNING ANANIAS

Richard Stuyvesant, of Spokane, Wash., in speaking of local affairs in his home city at the Hotel Imperial yesterday said: "About 10 years ago, when Spokane's boom was creating excitement, H. H. Kohlsat, now proprietor of the Chicago Times-Herald, began a newspaper enterprise out there, and stood sponsor for a paper called the Spokane Spokesman. Joseph French Johnson, professor in the Columbian university at Washington, and of economics and journalism in the University of Pennsylvania, was installed as managing editor. Charles B. Dillingham, at present a theatrical magnate in New York, was the city editor, and Harold C. Boke, who is in Spokane, was the managing editor. The department at Washington, was writing editorial paragraphs and was conducting what he used to say, if it was regarded through friendly lenses, might be termed a funny column called 'Slickens.' Among the city editors was a virile character, who at the Spokesman conceived a tremendous dislike.

The Spokesman believed him to be dishonest, and set out to expose his methods. Johnson arraigned him in editorials of learned length and thundering sound. Dillingham had with damaging ingenuity played up the success of the attack with the treasury town talk, when one fine day the city official turned on those who sought to harass him, and at one fell swoop he upset them all. He was a member at this time of the city council. Addressing that body, he said: 'Gentlemen, have you seen a student of the Scriptures, but never until recently, was able to fathom the meaning of the statement, "And Ananias stood forth." But now a great light has dawned upon me. Now I know the meaning. Joseph French Johnson comes first, Charles Boke comes second, and Ananias comes fourth. The councilman had a volcanic manner, and this explosion so convulsed the council that it adjourned in confusion.'

The Oldest and Best.

S. S. S. is a combination of roots and herbs of great curative powers, and when taken into the circulation searches out and removes all manner of poisons from the blood, without the least shock or harm to the system. On the contrary, the general health begins to improve from the first dose, for S. S. S. is not only a blood purifier, but an excellent tonic and strengthener and builds up the constitution while purging the blood of impurities. S. S. S. cures all diseases of a blood-poison origin. Cancer, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Chronic Sores, Scurvy, Ulcers, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Herpes and similar troubles, and is an infallible cure and the only antidote for that most horrible disease, Contagious Blood Poison.

A record of nearly fifty years of successful cures is a record to be proud of. S. S. S. is more popular today than ever. It numbers its friends by the thousands. Our medical correspondence is larger than ever in the history of the medicine. Many write to thank us for the great good S. S. S. has done them, while others are seeking advice about their cases. All letters receive prompt and careful attention. Our physicians have made a life-long study of Blood and Skin Diseases, and better understand such cases than the ordinary practitioner who makes a specialty of no one disease.

CLERGY MINISTER TO THE SICK.

From Many Parsonages Come Words of Praise for Paine's Celery Compound.

More practical work and shorter doctrinal sermons distinguish the pulpit of today. Bishops and plain ministers of the gospel are putting tremendous energy into the cause of good government, and plain ministers are earnestly endorsing the work of Barnum's celery compound as a scientific and practical remedy for the ailments of the best physicians—advising the use of Paine's celery compound now spring has come.

As soon as one has fairly begun to use Paine's celery compound, every day is a step toward assured health. Nervous, sluggish, and feeble persons find their blood becomes more solid, a more healthy color takes the place of the waxy, sallow look, and there comes an increase in the volume of the blood and an improved normal appetite because of this rapid feeding of the entire nervous system.

Clerks, employes, lawyers, doctors, mothers of families, hard working men and women in every state and country, and hosts of brainworkers—the most intelligent part of every community—are today taking Paine's celery compound with the happiest results to relieve themselves of rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous exhaustion, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and low spirits, the red of languor, clear the mind, unblock the skin, pump out the body, and get back to a normal, vigorous condition with Paine's celery compound—and begin now. March is the month when it is easiest to begin health.

Clergymen are investigating remedies as they have never done before, taking them, themselves and family, frankly recommending the valuable ones and condemning the worthless. And Rev. W. E. Aldridge, of Birmingham, Ala., says he considers it his duty to let his people know about Paine's celery compound, as he speaks from personal knowledge. He says: "Gentlemen—I had been afflicted for ten years with what I thought to be heart disease, but after having the physicians examine me, I learned that I was almost dead with indigestion. They told me that they could give me no medicine that would relieve me, but there was no permanent cure. Then, by using Paine's celery compound, which gave me immediate relief, and now I am well and enjoying good health. I can recommend Paine's celery compound to be the best remedy for all ailments I ever used, and furthermore, I tell my people if they will use the compound freely, they will have no doctor's bills to pay."
