THE STEEL TRUST STRIKE.

It is apparent that a mighty struggle is on between the allied labor organizations and the combination of iron and steel works in the East. The situation is intensified by the fact that the various factories and furnaces, heretofore operating singly and able only to agree as to the mere general features of management, are now absolutely under the control of a central office, whence may issue specific and imperative orders affecting the combine's attitude towards the demands of their employees.

One man will dictate the course the trust must pursue. That man is J. P. Morgan. He therefore becomes at this time the most important personage of all American citizens. He can prolong or shorten a struggle that means much to the country, for no one will doubt that the issue will be settled only after the most tremendous battle that labor and capital have ever fought, in the event that Mr. Morgan decides to stand out against the unions.

Were it a matter of wages, the situation would be less serious. But the workmen look upon it as decisive of the very existence of trade unionism in the United States. The announcement that the Federation of Labor will stand behind their brethren employed at the steel trust plants gives it a scope broad as the country itself and deep as the feeling of the workingmen that causes them, and rightly, too, to regard their unions as the one bulwark for their defense against the men who would compel the death of all labor combinations, while they themselves enter into the most gigantic combine yet known to man. It will be no boy's quarrel. Vast masses of capital will contend against hosts of men who will starve, almost, before they give in and vote the unions a failure and not founded on justice and the principle of self-protection.

NO MARTIAL LAW IN IDAHO.

The Boise Statesman sees in the recent murder at Gem, Idaho, cause for Governor Hunt again to declare martial law in the Coeur d'Alene. If one put on his thinking cap he will remember that one time a bloody murder was committed in Boise. According to the Statesman's reasoning, Ergo, martial law should have been declared in Southern Idaho.

Governor Hunt the other day proclaimed that martial law would no longer be maintained by the state of Idaho in the Coeur d'Alene mining region. At about the same time, one man kills another in Gem. It is not right to argue from the coincidence that it was a mistake to have ended the reign of martial law. Certainly the Statesman writer will not make the mistake of reasoning that an act being followed by another act must have been the cause.

For several months there has been no good reason for ruling Northern Idaho under the rifle and the bayonet. Lawlessness previously prevalent there has been corrected. Northern Idaho is law abiding, quite as much as any other section of the country. It was always doubtful that the declaration of martial law by Governor Steunenberg, the former chief executive, was right. And certainly there exists now no reason for its continuance. Murders are committed in all localities. Perhaps Northern Idaho has been as free from them as any other part of the state.

THE TOM JOHNSON IDEA.

The Portland Evening Telegram says: The Pendleton East Oregonian thinks Tom L. Johnson, mayor of Cleveland, O., is "the coming man" for president of the United States—because Tom L. Johnson happens to suit the East Oregonian on some special issues or ideas—single tax and free trade, for example. But the single taxers and absolute free traders, not yet the Bryanites, will not control the next democratic national convention.

The East Oregonian commends Tom L. Johnson for more reasons than one. Simple advocacy of any one or two principles would not necessarily entitle him to support. He might believe in single tax and free trade, excellent as are these two doctrines, and yet be not entitled to commendation. Tom Johnson is a man bigger than any one idea, excepting that idea be justice to all men, and no man is bigger than that. Tom Johnson is one who believes in conserving the interests of the laboring man, not on a hypocritical pretense of desiring to sacrifice his own interests for their good, but be-of cheerfulness and elation overcomes despondency.

Pleasure excites the heart, increases the activity of the lungs and the consequent absorption of oxygen. Every remotest corner of our physical bodies must be subject to influences of the mind. That being so, there can be no question as to the importance of controlling these mind influences.—Hearst's Chicago American.

BILLIONS OF STAMPS.

In the matter of postage stamps it is estimated that on an average every man, woman and child in the United States will use 35 postage stamps during the year 1901, forty of them being of the popular 2-cent denomination. The total number consumed will be over 4,000,000,000,000, and nearly 1,000,000,000,000 of these will be of the 1-cent variety. One person out of every ten will send a special delivery letter in the course of the present year.

The first process in the manufacture of stamps at the money mill is to count the sheets of blank paper, which are purchased by contract. This work is done by women, who indeed, perform most of the labor in the bureau of engraving and printing, simply because they have proved themselves more capable than men for business of this description.

Each sheet is the proper size and shape to make 400 printed stamps, with a small margin. After they have been counted the sheets are mounted by laying wet rags between them at intervals of twenty, and next morning, when the rags are removed, the sheets are ready for printing.

These plates, always horizontal, travel around the four sides of the square at a moderate rate of speed, passing in turn beneath an ink roller. Each of them is engraved with the faces of 400 stamps and after being inked by the roller goes under a mechanical rubber, which removes most of the ink.

Then the plate is cleaned of all the rest of the ink save what is in the grooved lines by a man who rubs it with a cloth and his bare hands, and finally it goes under a dry, cloth-covered roller, which, a sheet of white paper being interposed, does the printing. All of these processes are accomplished four times inside of half a minute.

A girl supplies the fresh white sheets as the plates come around to her in quick succession, and another girl takes them out, fresh printed, as they appear on the outside of the cloth-covered roller, piling them neatly as she does so.

Then the sheets, so new and beautiful with their bright-colored impressions, are carried to another room to be counted, after which they are laid on racks in wire cages on wheels and hauled into steam drying rooms to stay over night.

On the following morning they are taken into the examining room, where each of them is carefully inspected for defects. Torn or otherwise imperfect ones are rejected, but all fragments are carefully struck together, so that each sheet may be accounted for. Each person in this department of the money mill is expected to examine 12,500 sheets in a day's work.—Washington Times.

Told by Pain
If you have pains you should look after them quickly. Pain shows something is wrong. The sharper the pain the more danger there is in delay. There are thousands of women to-day who are bearing awful pain almost continually, rather than tell a physician about the shooting pains in their lower abdomen, about the agony of falling of the womb and the distress of leucorrhoea. They let the months pass and their trouble becomes harder to cure and more distressing. But modest women can secure exemption from the embarrassment of a private examination. When pain tells them of danger they can cure themselves by the use of WINE OF CARDUI in the privacy of their homes. You can be cured without distressing publicity. With these facts before you there is no reason for the delay which is increasing your misery and wasting the days of your life. Why not stop the pain today?
Helen, Miss, March 9, 1900.
I have used one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Foodford's Black-Drainage. Before I began to take your medicine I had pains in my back, hips, lower bowels and my arms. Sometimes I thought I would go blind. My head ached and I was so weak I could hardly walk across the floor. Now I can only feel a little of the pain in my side and I am going to use your medicine until I get cured, for I believe they will certainly cure me. I have been married twelve years and am the mother of seven children. I thank you for your wonderful medicine and what it has done for me.
